Sale of Sullivan Text To Georgia Attacked

Edwards Plans Own Probe at The Mansion

Former Safety Commission Denies He Profited From Books.

By LUKE GREENE.

Two state investigations appeared to be pending yesterday as the general assembly settled down for its regular 60-day session following the 10-day organization meeting.

H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards, the senator from Lowndes, announced he planned to conduct his own investigation as to the condition of furnishings at the executive mansion, despite the fact that an inventory taken by the purchasing and auditing departments showed no missing articles of any consequence.

Administration leaders also pointed to the probability of an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the sale of 40,000 textbooks written by Lon Sullivan, former commissioner of public safety, to the State Board of Education. Although the books were written by Sullivan they were sold by the B. F. Johnson Publishing Company, of Richmond, Va.

Books Recommended.

State Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins said the Georgia Board of Education had purchased about $27,000 worth of safety textbooks written by Sullivan, recently ousted by Governor Talmadge.

He said the books were bought by the board of education on recommendation of the professional text book committee. He said he had heard no objections to the books.

The social science committee which approved the Sullivan books was composed of B. M. Grier, of Athens; Walter Stancil, of Dalton; E. V. Whelchel, of Atlanta; Warren T. Jackson, of Atlanta; and M. C. Wiley, of Carrollton.

Denies He Benefited.

Sullivan said "I did not get a dime out of those books, which I wrote at the request of the department of education. Officials said there was no book in the free textbook system on highway safety and asked me to write one, emphasizing particularly Georgia angles."

Senator Edwards' threatened investigation followed a fiery speech on the floor of the senate in which Edwards charged that expensive rugs and silverware were missing from the executive mansion, and that many state offices had been stripped of their supplies.

He continued to stick to his contention yesterday, emphasizing he did not say that the same number of articles were not to be found

Bill To Abolish $3,600 Jewel Past Due Poll And Cash Theft Taxes Proposed Reported Here

Measure Would Restore Franchise to Many, Says Kendrick.

A bill to abolish past due poll taxes and start again from scratch was introduced into the house of representatives yesterday by W. C. Kendrick, of Fulton.

If adopted, the bill would enfranchise thousands who have allowed their poll taxes to pile up for years and now feel financially unable to buy back the privilege of voting, its sponsor said.

Subject of bitter editorial debate for years, complete abolition of the tax already has been advocated in a house bill introduced by Representative Mimms, of Miller, and Drake, of Seminole.

The Kendrick measure would satisfy those who do not wish to do away with the tax completely, yet admit the lump-sum payment of back taxes may be keeping otherwise well qualified voters away from the polls.

The dollar a year tax may not accumulate for more than six years. Penalties, plus the dollar, which must be paid for the coming year, however, may bring the total sum due the tax collector to $15.

W. Lint Miller Pleads in Vain to Prevent Ouster

Committees Hear Plea, Then Give Bills Favorable Vote.

By JACK SPALDING.

W. Lint Miller, still fighting earnestly for his post as highway chairman, made two unsuccessful appearances before general assembly committees yesterday which had under consideration administration bills to abolish the board he heads and create a new one.

Miller talked before both senate and house committees on the state of the republic. Both bodies listened politely, went into executive session and reported favorably on administration measures designed to oust him.

The majority of other measures by which the administration hopes to reorganize the state government also received the committees' stamp of approval. No bills were reported adversely by the house committee, but action was deferred until a later date on five.

"Not a Politician."

Appointed for a six-year term expiring February 1, 1943, Miller fought Rivers' attempt to oust him and was upheld by a supreme court decision. Yesterday he stated his only interest in remaining on the job was to "render service and straighten out the mess in which the department is."

He said he was appointed as a businessman, brought business methods to the department, reduced the debt until his powers were stripped from him by Governor Rivers, and that he was 100 per cent behind Talmadge's economy program.

"I'm not a politician and have no political aspirations," he told the house committee. "I felt though I was justified in coming over here and making my position clear."

The chairman stated he had received offers of help from many friends in the house and over the state to help him fight for his job, but he had no intention of calling on them. He told the committee-men that if he remained on the board it would be at a personal and financial sacrifice, but he was interested in the justness of his position.

"I don't believe in Mr. Talmadge's heart he personally wants me out," he said, adding, "I can straighten out the mess over there in six, eight or ten months."

Hopes To Remain.

Miller said that during the first 20 months of his tenure of office everything was fine, then "I commenced stopping things I didn't think were proper and set up an undercurrent of opposition."

He said he was thrown out because he resisted action he considered unfair and not in the best interests of the public. He fought for his job then because he "hoped the situation in Georgia would improve and I could serve out my remaining two years and render the services the people are entitled to have."

When Rivers took over active operation of the board Miller said he had worked highway commitments down to less than $4,000,000. Since then they have risen to around 22 millions.

"I feel I should fill out my unexpired term unless I have done something unbecoming a public official," he said.

The new bills would set up a board with a full-time chairman at $5,000 a year and two other members who would be paid on a per diem basis. The three would be from different parts of the state.

Yesterday Miller told the senate committee that "some of the work carried on in Lanier county I'm ashamed of, but it was taken out of my hands."

Miller, Governor Rivers and former board member L. L. Patten are residents of that county. Patten and Herman Watson, the third board member, have resigned.

British Smash At Derna on Land, in Air

Shattering Bombing Is Aimed at 4 Nazi Air Bases in Sicily.

By the United Press.

CAIRO, Jan. 23.—British land and air forces today smashed at the defenses of Derna, last Italian stronghold in the eastern reaches of Libya, and reported a shattering aerial bombardment of four German air bases in Sicily where Nazi dive-bombers are massed.

General Sir Archibald Wavell's 45-day-old desert offensive, wiping out the last remnant of Italian "terribili" resistance in captured Tobruk and pushing on toward Derna, claimed a staggering total of nearly 100,000 Fascist prisoners.

On four fronts, from the Mediterranean to the equator, British empire forces were described as rolling the Italians back in steady drives aimed at smashing Benito Mussolini's empire and knocking Italy out of the war.

New Blows.

The new British blows included: 1. Heavy attacks by RAF bombers last night on the Sicilian airdromes of Catania, Syracuse, Augusta and Comiso, where Adolf Hitler is reported to have massed 400 dive-bombers in an effort to break Britain's control of the Mediterranean.

2. Thrusts by advance mobile units of tanks and armored cars on Derna, 130 miles west of Tobruk by coast road, accompanied by savage aerial bombings said to have started fires at Derna visible for 80 miles.

3. Indications that General Wavell, believing Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's North African Army to be shattered beyond hope of reorganization, is determined to push on to Italy's main North African base at Benghazi, 125 miles due west of Derna and Mekili.

Thrust Into Eritrea.

4. A thrust of 60 to 75 miles into Italian Eritrea on the East African front, and continued offensive operations against the Italians on the eastern and southern frontier of Ethiopia.

5. An RAF night bombing of the Italian airdrome of Maritza on the Island of Rhodes in Italy's heavily fortified Dodecanese, causing "fires among military buildings."

6. The capture of more than 14,000 prisoners at Tobruk, including four generals, an admiral and a number of high Army and Navy staff officers. (London reported that the Tobruk bag of prisoners might reach 30,000.)

Hugh Johnson Predicts Danger Of U. S. at War in 30-90 Days

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Fish, Republican, New York, he believed that no nation could attack the United States.

"I don't see why the people should begin to turn up their noses at 3,000 miles in the Atlantic and 5,000 in the Pacific," he said, "when we see the trouble Mr. Hitler has been having with 22 miles."

He made the statement in the course of his appearance before the committee in opposition to the administration's lease-lend bill. He said he opposed the bill because it constituted a "defensive and offensive alliance" with Great Britain.

The bluff, ruddy-complexioned one-time chief of NRA testified after Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh had completed more than four hours of testimony, highlighted by declarations that it was unlikely that even the United States and Britain combined could defeat Germany and that a policy of absolute neutrality on the part of this country could have prevented the European war.

Johnson told Representative Fish, Republican, New York, he believed that no nation could attack the United States. "I don't see why the people should begin to turn up their noses at 3,000 miles in the Atlantic and 5,000 in the Pacific," he said, "when we see the trouble Mr. Hitler has been having with 22 miles."

Sinkwich Off Squad, Is 'Tired of Football'

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 23.—Frankie Sinkwich had quit the University of Georgia football squad today.

The Youngstown (Ohio) sophomore who was one of the most publicized kids ever to wear a gridiron uniform in the United States, failed to report for the second day's spring practice. He was out for practice yesterday.

Coach Wallace Butts said after this afternoon's drill he knew nothing of Sinkwich's whereabouts and as far as he was concerned the incident was closed. He had no further comment.

Sinkwich, a tailback, was found late tonight, drinking a beer while seated in his sports roadster in the "yard" of a well-known Athens "juke-joint."

"I quit because I'm tired of football," the Youngstown lad replied to questions. "I think it will be the best thing for me when I finish school. My ol' man told me he was interested only in me making good grades. And that's what I'm out to do."

"I intend to keep on going to school. My ol' man will pay the expenses," Sinkwich elaborated he wanted to be just like any other student.

"Have you ever wanted not to be famous?" he asked. "Well, I want to do just that—to see my girl whenever I want to just like any other guy."

Tonight hardly a handful of students knew of Sinkwich's decision. Some teammates were not aware of it until this afternoon. When he quit before for a couple of days, he received little sympathy. Sinkwich moved to his fraternity house today. Later he helped decorate Woodruff Hall for a dance his fraternity will give tomorrow night.

16 Billion Hike Rebels Agree In Debt Limit To End Battle Is Agreed On In Bucharest

Democratic Leaders Say Defense Will Set Ceiling at 65 Billions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—

Democratic leaders in congress agreed today to seek an increase of about $16,000,000,000 in the debt limit, and thus open the way for one of history's greatest bond-selling campaigns to finance the defense program.

The decision was announced by Representative Robert L. Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, after he and other congressional leaders conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Morgenthau said the step was favored by President Roosevelt.

The debt limit now is $49,000,000,000 and the increase would raise it to $65,000,000,000. Doughton explained, however, that $65,000,000,000 was a tentative figure, and might be changed after he consulted members of his committee.

In effect, congress will be asked to authorize some $20,000,000,000 of borrowing, since the debt now is $45,157,324,061.

2,000 Believed Dead Over Nation; 6,000 Casualties Feared.

SOFIA, Jan. 24.—(Friday)—(P)

The official Bucharest radio said in a broadcast early today that the last of the rebels holding the police barracks and city hall there had agreed to end hostilities in which some border reports estimated the dead at 2,000 throughout the country. Total casualties were estimated at 6,000.

It was not clear whether all fighting had ceased in Bucharest itself between the dissident Iron Guardists and the government backed by the Rumanian Army, but border dispatches said the revolt still was proceeding outside the capital—especially in Transylvania province.

(In London, The Daily Mail's Sofia correspondent said that 30,000 armed Iron Guardists with an army of angry peasants were converging on Bucharest tonight to attempt to depose General Ion Antonescu, according to the United Press.)

Blast Rebels.

An air traveler reaching here said the Rumanian troops turned their artillery on rebels holding the Bucharest police barracks, firing at a distance of 300 yards.

He put the minimum dead in the capital in the hundreds. Reports said there were more than 2,000 dead in Bucharest morgues, including many Jews taken from their homes and killed along with Iron Guards.

It was reported the city hall and police barracks were being vacated. Between 700 and 800 rebels were said to have barricaded themselves in the barracks during the disturbances.

The air traveler said Bucharest was "like a military camp with fighting in the streets following all rules of modern warfare with tanks, machineguns and artillery."

Disdain Fear.

"The legionnaires, mostly young people, usually marched onto the streets in the first few days in big crowds with an almost mystic disdain of fear in going against these forces."

The new Rumanian minister of the interior, Popescu, ordered all civilians to yield all weapons to their local authorities within the next 24 hours, threatening death to those refusing. This announcement on the official radio in Bucharest was heard here.

He also announced that the mayors of every town and village must be replaced within 38 hours by men who haven't participated in the widespread disorders.

Won't Accept Excuses, Says Defense Aide

Charges Increased Costs and Delivery Delays Blocking Defense.

By the United Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—National Defense Commissioner Leon Henderson bluntly warned the lumber industry today that unless it cuts prices sharply and speeds deliveries he will recommend invocation of the government's power to "draft industry."

Henderson, in charge of price stabilization for the commission, issued his pronouncement before a meeting of the Lumber and Timber Products Defense Committee. The group had invited him to explain recent statements that government control of lumber prices might be necessary in view of difficulties encountered in the huge army cantonment building program.

"The government can get all the lumber it wants by having the commander in chief of the United States Army fix prices, and then use the selective service act to draft lumber for the camps," he said. "If I don't get lumber, I'm going to make that kind of a recommendation, although I cannot guarantee its acceptance."

Rejects Statement.

He rejected a statement by M. L. Fleishel, chairman of the lumber committee, who said there was plenty of lumber available at reasonable prices. Fleishel blamed the price rise and delivery delays on disorganized government purchasing.

Henderson said Fleishel's remarks sounded like "the same sort of argument I heard when I was in the NRA," of which he was compliance director, and added: "The main thing is that lumber prices are just too high. When I say too high I mean too high in terms of maintaining the degree of stability in this economic level in view of present and probable future production demands. . . ."

"This situation cannot go on. It is true that there has been some readjustment recently after a lot of hell was raised . . . I have had all of the arguments, excuses and explanations that I want, and a damned sight more than I need."

Criticized Industry.

Henderson has criticized the lumber industry on previous occasions, charging it seeks undue profits out of the defense program. Similarly he has warned other industries that their prices are rising more than is warranted. His language was stronger today, however.

He pointed out that since the preparedness drive got under way last May, general industrial production had increased by 22 per cent with only a 2 per cent accompanying rise in prices.

But the lumber industry, he charged, was "completely out of line" with this trend and was engaging in the same sort of tactics and "demoralization" that kept the United States from producing rapidly during the World War.

"It is a confession of failure if we have to institute price control in an industry that has not even used

U. S. Pipe Line Bill Would Affect State

Bills have been introduced in the United States congress which have important bearing on the "pipe line legislative fight" now going on in Georgia.
A bill, S. 170, to divorce the business of producing, refining, and transporting of petroleum products from the marketing of petroleum products has been presented by Senator Gillette, and referred to the judiciary committee.

Its companion bill, H. R. 1393, was introduced by Representative Harrington, to "prohibit interstate commerce carrier pipe lines from transporting commodities in which such carriers have any interest."
These bills, if passed, will prohibit any oil company from owning, controlling, or operating a gasoline pipe line anywhere in the United States.

Two Out of Three Voters Favor Aid to Britain, Gallup Reveals

Sharp Increase Seen in Number Believing U. S. Should Send England Help Since Roosevelt's Fireside Chat and Message to Congress.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Copyright, 1941.
PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 23.—A sharp increase in aid-to-Britain sentiment following the President's fireside chat and his defense message to congress is revealed in a new nation-wide survey by the Institute.

Sentiment toward Britain has reached the point where more than two voters in every three favor giving her aid even at the risk of getting into the war. This figure is nearly double what it was at the time the Nazis invaded Holland, Belgium and France last May.

Last spring and summer Institute surveys showed that staying out of war was the stronger desire. How the situation has changed since then, how sentiment for helping England even at the risk of war has grown, is shown in the following analysis.
"Which of these two things do you think is the more important for the United States to try to do—keep out of the war ourselves, or help England win, even at the risk of getting into the war?"

	Help England Even at Risk	Stay Out
May, 1940	36%	64%
June	36	64
July	39	61
August	47	53
September	52	48
October	50	50
December	60	40
January, 1941	68	32

One interesting sidelight in the most recent survey is that voters who listened to the President's fireside chat December 29 are considerably more in favor of aid to Britain than those who did not listen. Interviewing began the first week in January and every one polled was asked: "Did you happen to listen to President Roosevelt's radio speech December 29?"
The correlation follows:

Persons Who Listened to Fireside Chat December 29	71%	29%
Persons Who Did Not Listen	59	41

By EDDY GILMORE.
HORTA, the Azores, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie "carried" this island of 20,000 today.

Because of slight translation difficulties and despite his explanations, most of the natives believed they were entertaining the President of the United States. The 1940 Republican candidate had to stop over on his trip to London until tomorrow because of a 35-mile-an-hour gale that grounded the Pan American Clipper.

Not since the last big earthquake in the '20s has excitement run so high on this pin point in the Atlantic west of Portugal.

Farm-loving Willkie lost no time in touring the open country to interview farmers.

"What kind of a hog is this?" he asked one.

"Eating hog," gouth the farmer. "Looks like a Berkshire," said Willkie, getting into the muddy pen to examine the stock.

"What kind of corn is this?" he asked a group of farmers who had gathered around him.

"Eating corn," answered one.

"It's Indian corn," announced Willkie.

Delving into the political and social problems of the island, Willkie asked the natives if they had the vote. They told him no.

"Well, suppose you don't like something?" Willkie asked.

"Get hushed up," a native replied.

Told by a delegation in the afternoon that the last American to stay local conditions was Mark Twain, who termed Horta a good place to wear out old clothes, Willkie remarked:

"Not to me. I'm delighted to find Indian corn and Berkshire hogs like in Indiana."

Federal Reserve Board experts who worked out this estimate said it was at least $13,000,000,000 larger than in the best days of 1928-29. It meant a gain of more than $5,000,000,000 in the last year.

A charter amendment to pension Brunswick city employees was proposed yesterday by Representative Charles Gowen, of Glynn.

Gowen seeks a three-man pension board, two of them to be named by the city commission and one elected by city employees. Employees could retire at one-half pay after serving 20 years and reaching age 60, or upon becoming disabled while in the city's service. Pensions would be limited to a maximum of $100 a month.

Workers would contribute up to two per cent of their salaries to a pension fund and the city would match their contributions.

1. Why do housewives favor Southern Twin Pack Bread? That's what the bakers of Southern Twin Pack Bread wanted to know. To get first hand information, they employed a number of expert interviewers to conduct south-wide personal interviews. Read this typical report of what one housewife had to say.

2. Interviewer: Good afternoon, Madam. I'm collecting opinions on Southern Twin Pack Bread. Can you tell me if you use it and what you think of it?

3. Housewife: I'll be glad to give you my opinion because it's my favorite bread. I think the way Southern Twin Pack Bread wraps each half loaf separately is a great money saving idea. It solved a problem for me because my husband insists that his bread be fresh. When I used other breads, I always had to throw the last few slices away because they got stale. But not so with Southern Twin Pack Bread. It keeps better because it's not all opened at one time.

4. There you are, folks—there's one of many housewives who has found a recipe for curing those "stale bread blues." You can save money, too, by buying Southern Twin Pack Bread. Industry Takes Plant Inventory To Aid Defense

Stimson Praises Move as 30,000 Answer Questionnaires.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Manufacturers and plant owners throughout the United States surveyed their factory facilities today in a huge industrial inventory to determine the nation's capacity for making munitions of war. The effort had the special commendation of Secretary of War Stimson.

They were answering 30,000 questionnaires sent out by the National Association of Manufacturers on the subject of plant adaptabilities. Officials said the first telegraphed returns indicated the survey would provide an integrated picture of the defense industry.

Secretary Stimson wrote the NAM: "Spontaneous and voluntary co-operation is the only magic which a great democracy can employ when it embarks on such a tremendous undertaking as our present national defense program."

"Industry's own census of equipment, available for use in creating the essentials of national defense, exemplifies the spirit which is making America strong in a day when strength alone counts.

"The value of your census will become apparent as the necessity for all out production becomes increasingly evident."

The NAM explained the method of the survey as follows: As manufacturers fill out their questionnaires, they forward them for file in regional offices, such as state industrial associations, for reference by procurement and ordnance officers and by manufacturers in search of subcontractors.

The general results of regional surveys will be transmitted to New York headquarters for complete cross-indexed tabulation.

Eivin Bjornstad To Sing Tonight

Eivin Bjornstad, lyric-dramatic tenor of Oslo, Norway, will give a series of sacred concerts, beginning tonight and continuing nightly through Tuesday at the Atlanta

Bible Institute, 759 West Peachtree street, N. E. These concerts will be at 7:30 o'clock each night, and the public is invited.

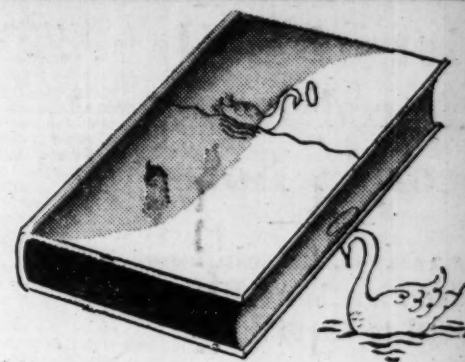

For many years Bjornstad sang in grand opera in Vienna, Berlin and other leading cities of Europe. Now he devotes his entire time to the singing of the Gospel on the religious platform. He received his vocal training from the greatest masters of Europe, and later made his operatic debut in New York city.

See the Good Housekeeping Wardrobes Inspired by Doree Smedley's Book In Our Women's Shops, 3rd Floor

See the 10 pages of pictures in February Good Housekeeping (on newsstands now) and see how five women who had "given up youth" were actually transformed. See these Good Housekeeping wardrobes for five basic figure-types at Davison's today. Let us help you choose the clothes, the foundation, the cosmetics, the hair-do that will do most for your figure. For years we have given the same understanding to clothes-problems for women-over-thirty as we give to our Davison Debs and Career Girls. It's only natural that Good Housekeeping has chosen us as exclusive Atlanta headquarters for "You're Only Young Twice" wardrobes.

Quarter Million Annual Slash Made by Three Departments

Budgets from three large state departments calling for savings of more than $250,000 annually either were submitted to Governor Talmadge yesterday or were ready for his approval.

The State Department of Education turned in a sharply trimmed finance sheet providing for an annual saving of $87,000 in overhead. The Board of Education recently fired a number of employees and cut the salaries of others in order to effect the needed economies.

Net funds to come from the state treasury for the first quarter total $10,553,963.77. This includes payment of $3,927,625.28 in back salaries to teachers by March payment of $699,697.16 on unpaid teachers' salaries for December and $207,000 on the textbook debt.

Quarterly Budget.
The total quarterly budget ran to $12,112,595.23 but $1,064,898.74 comes from the federal government and other sources.

Fiscal officials pointed out that the budget for the entire year would run to around $20,000,000, including the payments to be made on debts.

Governor Talmadge approved the education budget contingent upon the passage of a special appropriations amendment by the general assembly. This amendment would give him power to and for other purposes. Referred to the Committee on Public Highways No. 2.

No More Jobs Until Assembly Ends-Governor

Talmadge Sharply Protests Increasing Flood of Office-Seekers.

Protesting against an ever-increasing flood of job-seekers, Governor Talmadge said yesterday "no more jobs will be filled until after the legislature adjourns."

"State officials," he said, "are supposed to do a certain amount of work, but it can't be done if they have to spend 18 hours a day seeing persons who want jobs."

The Governor said there might be "an exception or two" to his edict, but added he, personally, would see no more applicants.

$12,112,000 School Allotment Planned

Governor Talmadge announced yesterday he would allot about $12,112,000 for the next three months provided the legislature adopted a pending bill giving him broad control over finances.

He said the sum would pay $3,921,000 in back salaries to teachers and salaries for January, February and March.

In addition $699,000 in December teachers' salaries and $188,000 in payment on a textbook debt of $177,000 would be paid, he added.

Talmadge said the budget set up for the Education Department would cut overhead costs by $87,717.24 in the next year. He told Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins, "let's make that $100,000 before the year is out."

U. S. Could Not Hope To Win War-Lindbergh

Aviator Favors Negotiated Peace, Even If It Is Unjust.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh emphatically denounced the British aid bill today as a "major step" toward involvement in a war which America could not hope to win and asserted that if the United States minds its own business, and arms itself reasonably, it is not in any danger.

Repeatedly, in answer to questions put by members of the house foreign affairs committee, he said that the combined forces of both Great Britain and the United States could not successfully invade the continent of Europe, unless there should be an internal German collapse.

Urges Peace.

The famous flyer, appearing at the request of opponents of the bill, urged an immediate negotiated peace. Even though it would not be a just one, according to American standards, he said, it was preferable to the continuance of a war which would bring disaster to Europe.

While Lindbergh was on the stand, Representative Luther Johnson, Democrat, Texas, inquired: "Have you ever expressed any opposition to Mr. Hitler's policies, his aims or his war objectives?"

"Yes, I have," the flyer promptly replied. "I believe that publicly we should maintain a position of neutrality. Privately, I don't like many things that are going on in Germany."

Favors Neutrality.

Representative Johnson then noted that several witnesses had said they were "praying" for a British victory, but opposed sending aid to England, and added that apparently Lindbergh was not praying for either side and was opposed to assistance, too.

"I believe in complete neutrality, sir," was the aviator's crisp response.

A crowd which jammed every available inch of the big committee room heard the testimony. There was applause when Lindbergh entered the room, more when he arose for the luncheon recess, and an ovation when his testimony was ended. Between times, the spectators applauded several of his statements and once raised a chorus of hisses for Representative Courtney, Democrat, Tennessee, when he bluntly inquired:

Would Be Disaster.

"Which side do you want to win if the war is fought through to a conclusion?"

"I want neither side to win," was Lindbergh's answer.

"I think it would be a disaster for Europe if either side won," he urged that America try to APPEASER—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, center, yesterday told a house committee holding hearings on the aid-to-Britain bill that he prefers a "negotiated peace" in the European war to a victory by either side. The famous flyer is shown with Chairman Sol Bloom, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, left, and Representative Hamilton Fish, ranking minority member.

"create an attitude of reception to a negotiated peace, stop shouting down any talk of peace as we have been doing and be open-minded to it." More "objective information" on actual conditions abroad, he thought, would "eradicate a great deal of the fear of war current in this country."

Questioned by Representative Eaton, Republican, New Jersey, as to his reasons for opposing the bill, he said:

"First because I believe it a step away from democracy and second, because it's one more step closer to war and I don't know how many more we can take, short of war."

TESTS SHOW NORTHEAST VULNERABLE TO INVASION

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(P)—Three days of exercises by the air defense command—in which thousands of volunteer observers have acted as "spotters" of "invading" planes—have shown that the northeastern seaboard "is vulnerable to enemy invasion by air from the sea," an army major general said today.

The four-day tests, added General T. A. Terry, commanding officer of the First Coast Artillery district, were a step in overcoming this vulnerability.

U. S. CONTEMPLATES 10,000 FIGHTING PLANES

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—American "national air defense" contemplates a force of about 10,000 planes to be reached at some future date," Major General Henry H. Arnold said today after he was informed of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's statement that 10,000 first-line planes and equal reserves were needed for American "security."

MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR SAYS U. S. IN DANGER

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 23.—(P)—Governor Paul B. Johnson, on his return today from Washington, asserted the United States "is in most serious danger" and declared: "England may not hold out longer than four or five months. If England fails and the Axis powers get control of the English navy this country is absolutely sure to be invaded. And unless we help England very greatly the chances are against England being successful."

Attack Is Seen On Purchase of Sullivan Texts

at the mansion. He argued that some of the expensive furnishings had been replaced with cheaper products, giving the silverware as an example.

"I was at the mansion and while there I was shown the place where the rugs had been and they were gone," he said. "I looked at the silverware and was informed the original silverware was gone and had been replaced with silverware bought at Gainesville."

"I found that pictures and frames were gone," he continued. "The picture of Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh which was paid for by the state was taken away. I personally went upstairs and looked for the rugs but I could not find them."

Edwards said he was asking the purchasing department for a list of everything bought for the mansion during the Rivers administration. With the aid of the auditing department he said he was going out and make a personal check himself to see if the same articles were there.

Audit Made.

State Auditor Edmonds Thrasher said an audit of mansion property was made on the day Rivers left office and Governor Talmadge moved in "at the request of Governor Rivers and Carlton Mobley, an aide to Governor Talmadge."

The inventory shows 22 rugs, ranging in value from $1 to $300, with the higher priced rugs valued at $300, $200, $150 and $100.

The silver inventory includes the silverware set from the battleship Georgia valued at $35,000, including a punch bowl and 22 cups.

The flat silver, which includes 36 each of knives, forks, spoons and such, is valued at $1,000.

Other main items in the inventory include $300 refrigerator, $200 range, $220 bed, $138 chair, $200 piano, $114 love seat, $210 davenport, $200 table, $500 grandfather clock, $1,000 furnace, $170 bed, three $110 beds, $300 chandelier, $1,300 worth of chinaware, $500 worth of draperies, a $3,000 painting, $600 worth of Christmas decorations, including Santa Claus and his reindeer, and a $500 automobile.

The inventory totaled $52,215.23.

The disclosure that the Sullivan textbooks had been purchased and were being used in many Georgia schools came as a climax to a controversy between Governor Talmadge and Sullivan over the latter's ouster as head of the State Highway Patrol.

Bought Directly.

Dr. Collins said the books were purchased directly from the publishing house and that Sullivan at no time came before the Board of Education or any of its committees to urge their adoption.

A bill from the publishing firm showed that the state board bought 30,000 copies of a text entitled "Be Safe and Live," by Sullivan, at 70 cents per copy. It also showed that 10,000 copies of "Drive and Live," a Georgia supplement, had been purchased at 79 cents per copy.

The state school superintendent explained that the order of books was dated April 25, 1940.

E. D. RIVERS JR. CHALLENGES EDWARDS

E. D. Rivers Jr. in Cordele yesterday challenged Senator Edwards to prove his charges that executive mansion furnishings were removed before Rivers' father left the office of Governor Talmadge or that they are intentionally fabricated lies of the whole cloth.

The Valdosta legislator had charged in the senate that "all the fine silver has gone and not even a vacuum cleaner was left to take up the dust."

Young Rivers, former chairman of the State Industrial Board and now operating a Cordele radio station, issued this statement:

"I see by the press that the maudlin mouther from Lowndes is loose again. I make this brief statement in deference to my mother, whose absence from the state at this time is well known to this maker of noises."

"This dastardly, cowardly attempt to besmirch the character of one of Georgia's finest ladies will be as deeply resented by all decent, honorable people as it is by me."

Rivers added a charge that Edwards was attempting "to personally publicize himself at the expense of Georgia womanhood."

Warn Lumber Industry To Cut Prices at Once a big percentage of its capacity during the past years," he said.

He said that present facilities will be accentuated—unless conditions are remedied—by future increased defense orders, growing British requirements and the "pressure of acceleration on delivery for these things."

Demands Results.

He cited a "lack of seriousness" on the part of some industrialists as to the grim realities of the situation, and a belief "that the government does not mean business," as largely responsible for many difficulties.

"I take my responsibility seriously, and so does our country," he shouted. "If I am out of step I can step out."

"Perhaps this industry is not able to handle its own affairs. Maybe the industry is not able to maintain the stability that is necessary. Maybe we have got to have such a situation and must let it go like at Fort Meade, Md., where we paid 75 per cent increase in lumber for that cantonment."

"Maybe we have got to have a situation where building companies are going out of business because of an increase in lumber prices."

"But I don't believe it. Until I am stopped, I am going to recommend things that will get results."

"If the whole price level had acted in the same way as the lumber industry this country would be in a state of paralysis."

Fleishel told Henderson the lumber industry was "patriotic" and "nonprofit-making," and that prices had been falling since October. In December, he said, they had declined to $35.81 per 1,000 board feet.

Henderson replied that he regarded $25 as "a good price for No. 2 southern pine"—used primarily in cantonment construction—at the mill. There is no reason, he said, to let the price run to its present level of $31.25.

"I am going to resist that fallacious theory that if you let the price run, you will get all you want," he added. "I have been told that in copper and zinc, and I know it is not true."

"In the old NRA days, we used to exhort, cajole, threaten, wheedle, politely bribe, crack down and everything else to get the job done. But I've had all of that my capacious stomach will hold."

There was only a smattering of applause when he finished. As he strode down the aisle from the platform, Fleishel followed, assuring him that the industry would co-operate, but Henderson paid him no attention.

Taft Proposes Movie Actor Substitute Bill Favors All-Out To Aid Britain Aid to Britain

Would Make Cash Loans to England and Allies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—A substitute aid-to-Britain bill, providing for loans of $1,000,000,000 to the United Kingdom, $500,000,000 to Canada and $50,000,000 to Greece, was introduced today by Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio.

"This substitute," Taft explained, "is designed to give aid to England instead of aid to the President of the United States. It will give it quicker with much less dissension and discord in this country."

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, introduced a bill permitting the government to lend $2,000,000,000 worth of war materials to Britain. The only payment required would be reports on how the material functioned in battle.

Movie Actor Favors All-Out Aid to Britain

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Says There Should Be No Stopping Place.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr., movie star and vice chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, declared today he favored all possible assistance to Britain in war, in order "to keep the threat of Hitlerism as far away as possible."

Fairbanks' statement was made to newspapermen after he had conferred briefly with Senator Hull, and he emphasized he was expressing his "personal" views.

"If Hitlerism is a menace," Fairbanks said, "it should not be fought with halfway measures, but with all out aid."

"Even going to war?" he was asked.

"War should, of course, be avoided if possible," he replied, "but our determination to defeat Hitlerism's menace to civilization should have no stopping place."

Hepburn, Cast Arrive Here This Morning

All Seats To Three Performances Have Been Sold.

Katharine Hepburn and her company will arrive in Atlanta this morning to find all seats to their three performances of "The Philadelphia Story" at the Erlanger theater sold out.

It is the first complete advance sell-out for a legitimate stage attraction in Atlanta since pre-depression years, and theatrical people attribute the wide demand for tickets to a desire by people to see for themselves if Miss Hepburn has made a complete comeback.

Performances will be given at 8:30 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night and at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Written by Philip Barry, this Theater Guild cast's interpretation of the play brings an intimate glimpse into the life in an exclusive suburb of Philadelphia. Barry has his fun with the socially elite, while at the same time taking some fun pokes at several well-known magazines which send reporters to uncover the ways and manners of the Lord family on the daughter, played by Miss Hepburn.

In the cast are Van Heflin, who won high critical praise as the traitor in the movie "Santa Fe Trail"; Joseph Cotten, Nicholas Joy, Viola Roache, Forrest Orr, Dan Tobin, Frank Fenton, Ruth Holden and Lenore Lonergan.

Students of Opportunity School visited Fulton courts yesterday. Many of them spent the afternoon listening to the trial of Clarence Thompson, charged with defrauding the city of water.

Charlie Lyle, sergeant of the county police, who is ill at the Georgia Baptist hospital, is reported better.

Jake Sewell, deputy clerk of superior court, who has been ill with "flu," returned to his duties yesterday.

Fulton planning commission and the county board of health held monthly meetings yesterday. Routine business was transacted.

at the CITY HALL

Boys' High school will hold a mid-term graduation and will issue midyear diplomas Monday night for the first time since it was established in 1873. Dr. H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of schools, said yesterday. Exercises will be held and 60 diplomas issued at 8 o'clock at the municipal auditorium. In the past when a student completed his course in the mid-term he waited until the June graduation to get his diploma.

School authorities yesterday began a study of the 1941 budget, and Thomas W. Clift, school business manager, was telling to principals the first complete advance expenditure of the available money, approximately $3,741,000. A special meeting of the board will be held early next week to pass on the budget.

Wade H. Bennet and Hugh K. Marshall, of the city personnel bureau, were guests yesterday of Dr. E. R. Enlow, of the school department, at the meeting of the Atlanta chapter of the American Statistical Institute.

Extension of receipt of applications for the position of sanitarian until noon tomorrow was announced yesterday by the city personnel office. The job pays from $130 to $160 a month.

A cut in the $50,000 annual water bill the government pays the city for services at Fort McPherson and the federal prison was sought yesterday when J. W. Sanford, warden of the prison, headed a delegation of officials in a conference with Mayor LeCraw. The group also cited the fact that the government will be a large water user when the ordnance depot is established near Conley.

EXPANSION IN STEEL.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(P)—Increasing expansion schedules to provide greater facilities for making steel will call for steel companies in 1941 spending $282,000,000 for new productive equipment, contrasted with $171,000,000 last year, the American Iron & Steel Institute announced today.

Fierce Flames Rage in Ancient Dublin Castle

Firemen Control Blaze After 90 Minutes; Offices Burned.

DUBLIN, Friday, Jan. 24.—(UP)—Firemen, after 90 minutes, brought under control a fire which broke out in ancient Dublin castle early today.

Huge clouds of smoke still poured out of the structure but there appeared little danger the fire would spread.

At first it was believed that the State apartments and St. Patrick's hall had been destroyed, but later it was established that they only were damaged. The offices of industry and commerce, however, were burned badly.

The ancient castle, built in the first two decades of the 13th century, now is the center of a congested residential district in the heart of the city.

Fire engines jammed the narrow streets as the firemen sought to prevent the blaze from spreading.

Within the limits of the old castle walls are Christ Church cathedral, the city hall, municipal offices and several business houses.

The fire was going strongly when first discovered. The flames were visible for miles around.

All fire-fighting equipment in Dublin was rushed to the conflagration and appeals were sent to other cities and towns for additional equipment.

The fire was discovered by a messenger taking copy from a newspaper to the censorship offices in the castle.

The fire was believed to have started about 1:30 a. m. The castle formerly was the seat of British government in Ireland and witnessed many dramatic incidents during the long and bloody struggle for Irish freedom resulting in the establishment of the present government of Eire.

From the site of St. Patrick's Hall sheets of flame shot several hundred feet into the air.

Statehood Sought For Cuba in Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Senator William H. Smathers, a Democrat of New Jersey, basing his action on what he said he believed to be the views of "many leaders and representative citizens of Cuba" today introduced a bill authorizing the United States to accept that sovereign republic into statehood.

Smathers' bill would permit President Roosevelt—after negotiating an agreement with Cuba—to advise the congress when the little island republic with its lengthy history of wars for liberty and its blood brotherhood in that struggle with this country, might be willing to add its lone star to the banner of this union.

'Flight Command' Moves to Rhodes

"Flight Command," a naval aviation drama with Robert Taylor, Ruth Hussey and Walter Pidgeon, started today at the Rhodes theater. It played last week at Loew's.

Some of the exciting scenes are of power dives, battle practice, Taylor's parachute jump into sea, Pidgeon's forced landing and rescue in the fog by Taylor, "dog fights," and carrier landings.

SEEK TO PRESERVE CIVIL SERVICE—Mayor LeCraw, right, called a public hearing yesterday to seek solution to the squabble over who will be clerk in Recorder Luke Arnold's traffic court—Edward Basmajian or Charlie O. Murphy. The hearing developed that three clerks in the recorder's court divided $2,400 last year in commissions received from the state patrol. Mayor LeCraw withheld decision, saying civil service was "not on trial." Left to right, Recorder Arnold, City Attorney Jack Savage and Mayor LeCraw.

Drop in Northern Mills Is Protested

BOSTON, Jan., 23.—(P)—The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, in a general review of conditions in the northern textile industry, appealed yesterday to manufacturers, labor leaders and communities to combine their efforts in preventing loss of northern spindles.

Quoting Bureau of Labor statistics to show that the cost of labor in the north was 20 per cent higher than in the south, the statement said it was that factor "that has put so many northern mills out of business."

The association said that during the past year spindles in place in New England dropped from 6,143,000 to 5,884,000 and active spindles from 5,408,000 to 5,278,000.

KESSLER'S

City Recorder's Clerks Divide $2,400 in Fees

Attempt Made To Force Arnold To Retain Civil Service.

Three clerks of the Atlanta recorder's court divided $2,400 in commissions received from the state patrol last year, it developed yesterday after a public hearing on a council resolution to force Traffic Judge Luke S. Arnold to submit to city civil service provisions and retain Charles O. Murphy as clerk of the division.

Eugene McLaughlin and Edward Basmajian divided equally with him about $2,400 in fees paid by the state last year for certification of hazardous moving convictions obtained against automobile drivers in the traffic division, Murphy said.

The certifications include convictions for speeding, driving drunk, reckless driving, failing to stop at stop signs and cutting red lights, it was explained, and are in line with a system of reporting set up by the National Safety Council.

Murphy and McLaughlin drew city salaries amounting to $160 a month each, while Basmajian's salary is $100 monthly.

Since Arnold became judge of the traffic division, he has declined to permit Murphy to serve as his clerk, and Basmajian has acted.

Mayor LeCraw yesterday held a public hearing on the council resolution to designate a committee to confer with Arnold "to preserve the civil service laws."

The hearing was adjourned and LeCraw withheld action pending an attempt to exchange Murphy for a clerk in the same classification in the city hall. Basmajian is not in the same classification, and according to civil service provisions could not change places with Murphy without a reclassification.

Murphy said yesterday he had not decided whether or not he would agree to a swap of jobs, a condition precedent to replacing him with an employee in the same classification, it was said.

In the meantime, Arnold conferred with Lowry Sims, deputy city clerk and son of former Mayor Walter A. Sims, about a transfer with Murphy. Sims had not yet decided whether he wished to make the exchange.

Veto Expected.

LeCraw is expected to veto the council resolution because a group of Arnold's friends, including several attorneys, pointed out that if the mayor sanctioned the measure, he would in effect "convict Arnold of violating civil service provisions as charged in the resolution."

Charges and denials that civil service itself was on trial were made at the hearing.

LeCraw said the hearing had placed him in the false light of putting civil service on trial.

"We are not trying civil service and I want to de-emphasize this whole thing," he added. "As mayor, I expect to uphold civil service and all other laws as long as they are on the books."

Arnold told the mayor he did not believe the council would have passed the resolution charging him with "willfully, knowingly and continuously" violating civil service acts if it had all the facts.

For Civil Service.

"I don't believe it is a willful violation of the law for me to keep the solemn promises I made to more than 13,000 who voted for me in the primary," he said. "I am for civil service. I just don't think it should extend to the courts. If the council places me on trial for violation of the law, as it has been ruled it has a right to do, and fails to convict me, what position will civil service be left in then?"

Among those who participated in the hearing are: Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, one of the authors of the council resolution; Dewey L. Johnson, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor; Albert Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; Mrs. J. D. Thomas, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

Attorneys W. Paul Carpenter, Benton Gaines, Joseph S. Crespi, R. A. Gilbert and Carl Davie appeared for Arnold and all contended the court clerks are not protected by civil service in any other court of the nation.

Mayor Pledges $15,000 to New Air Squadron

City Will Match County Appropriation To Keep Unit Here.

Mayor LeCraw yesterday assured Adjutant General Sion B. Hawkins the city will appropriate $15,000 for the proposed 128th Air Observation Squadron here within the next 30 days.

The mayor's action followed receipt of a radiogram by General Hawkins, in which the War Department asked if funds are immediately available for organization, and added, if not available within 48 hours, the squadron may be transferred to another state.

General Hawkins said yesterday he would inform the War Department of Mayor LeCraw's assurance the money would be available within a month, and added he felt confident the squadron would remain here.

The Observation Squadron, for which the county already has appropriated $15,000, will be located at the Camp Gordon Naval Training air field, and will be organized as a part of the Georgia National Guard. George Finch, Atlanta attorney and veteran army flyer, is commander, and a number of leading pilots in this section have already applied for commissions.

Five Trophies To Be Given In Polio Drive

Counties, District, School Will Be Presented Awards.

Five valuable trophies will be presented to counties, a district and a school that lead in Georgia's 1941 Fight - Infantile - Paralysis drive, Ellis Arnall, chairman of the state committee for the celebration of the President's birthday, announced yesterday.

Arnall declared four of the trophies are silver cups and will be retained permanently by the groups winning them, while the fifth, known as the Keith Morgan trophy, will be kept at the headquarters of the Georgia state chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, but will have the name of this year's winning county inscribed upon it.

Three of the trophies are being presented by Wiley L. Moore, state treasurer for the 1941 celebration, while a fourth is being presented by H. T. Dobbs, executive director of this year's Fight-Infantile-Paralysis campaign.

The Dobbs trophy will go to the individual school in Georgia that pays into this year's campaign the most money per pupil.

One of the Moore trophies will go to the county that raises the most money per person, based on the 1940 census figures. Another of the cups presented by Moore will go to the county that pays the largest percentage of money above the net total raised during the 1940 celebration of the President's birthday.

The third Moore trophy will go to the district that pays the largest percentage above the net total raised in the district last year.

The Keith Morgan trophy is awarded to the county that raises its quota of funds first.

ROME, Ga., Jan. 23.—Mrs. Madge Lee Hodge, of Chattahoochee, was free today in connection with the slaying of her husband at the home of her mother near Kingston early New Year's Day.

An acquittal verdict was returned by a Floyd county jury two hours after Solicitor Henderson Lanham called the case to trial.

In her statement, Mrs. Hodge admitted shooting her husband, whom, she said, had knocked her to the floor and threatened her with a blackjack. Hodge was killed with a shotgun.

Another murder case of the week came to an end with the conviction of Clarence Batey for killing William Shirley, a painter, last year. Batey, found guilty of involuntary manslaughter, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

'Ad' Item Veto May Cost Mayor LeCraw $25

Mayor LeCraw's veto of a council resolution providing $2,100 for advertising Atlanta may cost him $25 in cash.

In a letter to Alvin L. Cates, member of the advertising committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, LeCraw yesterday proposed that the needed sum be raised by private subscription and offered to head the list with a $25 contribution.

'Colonel Blimp' School Cracked Down on Hard

Briton Who Urged 'Old School Tie' Loses Command.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(P)—The British war office cracked down hard today on the "Colonel Blimp" school of thought in its modern army and relieved of his command Lieutenant Colonel R. C. Bingham, who wrote a letter to the Times saying that British officers unblessed by "the old school tie" had fallen down on the job.

Colonel Bingham, who wears the tie of Eton himself, commanded an officers' cadet training unit. His letter complained that new officers drawn from the working classes, as contrasted with the "old aristocratic and feudal (almost) classes who led the old army," thought only of themselves. He added: "Never was an old school tie and the best it stands for more justified than today."

This aroused bitter comment in parliament and elsewhere.

February 11 Is Set For 2 Executions

Jimmie Lee Gibbs and Willie Jenkins, convicted in 1939 of slaying T. W. Adcock, West End grocer, yesterday were sentenced to die in the electric chair at Tattnell prison on February 11.

Judge E. E. Pomeroy imposed the sentence. Gibbs and Jenkins first were sentenced to the chair in October, 1939, but appealed their convictions to the supreme court, which recently upheld the lower court. One man is serving a life term in the same murder case and another one is still at large. Adcock was killed with a shotgun in a hold-up of his store.

Fulton Convict Finds Pardon Doesn't Help

One Condition Same as Original Sentence, He Discovers.

A man who got a pardon during the hectic last days of the Rivers administration showed up in Fulton criminal court yesterday only to find his pardon did him exactly no good at all.

J. J. Anglin was convicted last year on two counts of drunken driving and one charge of using opprobrious words to Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. McNeal Jr. The judge sentenced him to serve six months on each of the drunken driving cases and gave Anglin a fine of $50 or six months for cursing. The Rivers conditional pardon was only for sentence resulting from cursing and it imposed as a condition of pardon that Anglin pay a fine of $50—exactly the same as in the judge's original sentence.

Anglin now must serve 12 months and pay $50, or serve a total of 18 months.

Two other persons called before the court yesterday on the certiorari calendar exhibited pardons granted by Rivers. They were Howard Coppage and William White, both under sentences for lottery charges. They were freed.

License Plates For Trackless Buses Sought

Senate Resolution Calls for Group To Make Investigation.

The senate yesterday adopted a resolution by Senator Hugh Couch, of Fulton county, providing for the appointment of a committee of three members to make an investigation as to why trackless trolleys should not be required to purchase license plates.

Sensors approved the resolution by a vote of 33 to 0, and President Charles D. Redwine immediately named Senators Couch, John H. McGehee, of the 25th district, and Dr. G. N. Coker, of the 39th district, as members of the committee.

When called upon by Senator H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards to explain the resolution, Couch said the trackless trolleys did not contribute anything toward the upkeep of the highways, since they did not pay gasoline and oil taxes, and that, consequently, he thought they should be regulated much as gasoline buses.

Traffic on Mississippi Is Expected To Expand

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—(P)—The Mississippi river is a "broad highway," down which will float a new trade to Central and South America, springing from industries gradually spreading away from the east into the midwest, Governor Sam Houston Jones of Louisiana said today, at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce.

The meeting brought together a number of civic organizations and other groups interested in inland waterway transportation on the Mississippi river.

Firm Here Asks Benefit Of Internal Revenue Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—The War Department announced today that the Georgia Paper Stock Company, of Atlanta, and the Peerless Woolen Mills, of Rossville, Ga., are among firms that have applied for certificates which would permit them to take advantage of the internal revenue act of 1940 and amortize over a period of five years plant construction or expansion connected with national defense.

9-Month School Term Assured, Says Collins

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
GRIFFIN, Ga., Jan. 23.—Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, told the Kiwanis Club of Griffin yesterday that the public schools of Georgia will be operated on a full nine-month schedule this year and next year.

He said the school budget would be $15,434,000, and that he and Governor Talmadge are determined the schools shall operate the full nine months.

WILL ATLANTA DO IT'S PART?

Twenty years ago, before all Real Estate began to shrink in value, the property of the Churches Homes for Girls was appraised by two prominent Realtors of Atlanta at $150,000.00. It would be appraised today at far less, but all six of the Homes are in good repair, freshly painted and with new roofs.

More than 200 working girls and women are cared for monthly. In the 27 years of operation more than 22,000 have lived in these Homes, and records show that 95% have made good. The motto of the organization is "Helping Girls to Help Themselves and Others."

This great work is supported by the $4.00 per week the girls who have jobs pay as board, by donations from individuals, appropriations from Fulton County, the City of Atlanta, and the Atlanta Community Fund. These appropriations are specifically made for the purpose of caring for working girls and women of Fulton County and the City of Atlanta who are out of a job and have no money with which to pay board. All three of them forbid that any part of these appropriations be used for what is called "Capital Account," which simply means that it cannot be used for the purchase of property nor for the payment of mortgages on property owned by the Churches Homes.

The Annual Audit of The Churches Homes for Girls, Inc., prepared by F. W. LaFrentz and Co., Certified Public Accountants, by direction of the Atlanta Community Fund, shows, as of October 31, 1940, "Total due on mortgages $24,135.83. Since this audit was made a friend of humanity and of these Homes residing outside of Fulton County has sent his check to pay off the mortgage against the Eliza Manget Home (this friend requests that his name not be given), so now, the total indebtedness against the Homes is reduced to $21,593.80. If this could be paid off, a greater day of usefulness would immediately dawn for this great, helpful and uplifting organization.

WE ARE IN RECEIPT OF TELEGRAMS FROM THREE VERY GENEROUS FRIENDS OF THESE HOMES, ONE IN NEW ORLEANS, LA.; ONE IN ROCHESTER, MINN., AND ANOTHER FROM A GEORGIA CITY (NOT ATLANTA) IN WHICH THE THREE AGREED THAT IF ATLANTA PEOPLE AND OTHERS OUTSIDE ATLANTA, WOULD RAISE $10,000.00 TOWARD PAYING OFF THESE MORTGAGES, THEN THESE THREE FRIENDS WOULD PAY $10,000.00, OR MATCH WHATEVER IS RAISED TOWARD IT, DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR.

Surely this magnanimous offer from non-residents will appeal to the generous hearts of Atlanta. If it does, and the $10,000.00 is raised, this writer will gladly pay the balance of $1,593.80.

Please make your checks payable to "Churches Homes for Girls Mortgage Fund" and send to any one of the following Directors and members of the Executive Committee: Mrs. Claude C. Smith, 2380 Dellwood Drive, N. E.; Mrs. John M. Slaton, 2962 Peachtree Road; Mr. Josiah T. Rose, 22 Marietta Street Bldg.; Mrs. Wm. L. Percy, 164 Waverly Way, N. E.; Mrs. Geo. C. Of paramount interest in fashionable social circles is the announcement made today of the marriage of Mrs. Katherine Dickey Dowling to Lawrence Wordsworth Snell, of New York city, the ceremony having been quietly solemnized here this morning at the Second Congregational church, with Rev. Daniel Bliss officiating.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was held at The Colony Club in New York, for the wedding party, which included I. J. Dickey, uncle of the bride. Mrs. Snell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Dickey, prominent residents of Atlanta, Ga., and enjoys widespread popularity. She is a member of the Atlanta Junior League.

Mr. Snell is the son of Mrs. John D. Beals, of New York City, and the late Lawrence W. Snell, of Detroit, Mich. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1923 and is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He is a prominent figure in social and business circles and is a member of the Union Club of New York City.

Wedding Date Set By Miss Cowles

Miss Julia Iverson Cowles and Lee Bernard Geithman, of New York city, whose engagement was announced on Sunday, have selected Sunday, January 26, as the date for their marriage.

The ceremony will be solemnized at the Church of the Transfiguration in New York at 3 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends of the popular couple.

The couple will leave after the ceremony for a trip to New England, after which they will reside in New York.

Prior to leaving yesterday for New York, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. A. C. Cowles, Miss Cowles was feted at several social affairs. The pretty bride-elect was central figure at the shower given by Miss Kay Duncan at her home on Boulevard drive. Monday evening Miss Ethel Albright feted Miss Cowles at a dinner party at her home on Alpine road.

Child Welfare Association Re-elects Mrs. Frank Neely

... THE CHILD WELFARE ASSOCIATION had the good judgment to re-elect Mrs. Frank Neely as president of its board of directors at the annual meeting held this week. Other evidence of the association's foresight was the re-election of J. P. Jones as vice president, H. R. Stone as treasurer, Mrs. Hughes Spalding as Mr. Stone's assistant, and Mrs. Herbert Elsas as recording secretary. These officers, with Harold Patterson, Dr. William V. Gardner and Mrs. C. E. Harrison, constitute the organization's executive committee.

Like everything that Mrs. Neely does, her report was the highlight of the meeting. With pardonable pride she spoke of the two national recognitions that the year has brought to the association—its designation by the Federal Children's Bureau for the placing of European refugee children for the state; and the appointment by the Child Welfare League of America of Miss Florence Van Sicker, executive secretary, as one of five experts to investigate children's agencies throughout the country and to make recommendations as to how these agencies may improve their standards.

The burden of responsibility carried by the association was demonstrated by Miss Van Sicker's report that 671 children were handled by the association during 1940, and by Mrs. Ryburn Clay's analysis of 2,048 volunteer hours of service given the association, of which 1,597 hours were contributed by the Junior League. Robert Sams reported on the association's work to correct abuses in adoptions throughout the state, the organization being one of the few in Georgia designated as a legalized adopting agency. Mrs. Paul Potter, chairman of the scholarship committee, reported on the children on school scholarships through the generosity of the Woodruff and Whitehead foundations.

A splendid memorial fund has grown in perpetuation of the memory of such beloved figures as Mrs. W. A. Albright, Judge Frank Harwell, Herbert Porter, Mrs. Leroy Childs, Robert Snow, Mrs. Robert G. Lyon, Mrs. W. P. Corbett, Mrs. G. H. Tuttle, Mrs. Lafayette Traynham, J. H. Currie, Felix Jackson, Hampton Fitts, Mrs. William D. Ellis Jr., Mrs. C. V. Rainwater, Collett Munger III, Virginia McGill, Mrs. J. W. Goldsmith, Thomas B. Paine, William C. Saunders, J. Bulow Campbell, Mrs. Frances Parker, Mrs. John K. Ottley Sr., Colonel Hunter Pendleton, Mrs. Charles Boynton Sr., William H. Glenn, Mrs. Richard Fuller Sams, Mrs. Frances White Clay, Mrs. James Thompson, and Helen Muse. Reports on this fund were given by Mrs. Dan McDougald, Mrs. Hughes Spalding, Mrs. James Ragan and Robert Sams.

The doctors who serve the association appeared in person, their reports showing 102 clinics held, 754 children attending, 84 initial examinations, 577 re-examinations, and 262 individual children treated. Other aspects of the report covered dental record, hospitalizations, immunizations, laboratory work, special examinations, treatments, and home and office visits.

Growing out of the meeting were the following ambitious goals which the association set for itself: A study home for problem children; a school for delinquent Negro girls; an occupational program for adolescent boys and girls during the summer, and a subsidized home for unmarried mothers.

... THREE GEORGIAN.

will have a part in the annual Southern Authors' luncheon to be held at the Park Lane hotel in New York tomorrow under the auspices of the Southern Women's National Democratic organization in New York.

Erskine Caldwell will be one of the guests of honor. His latest book, "Trouble in July," was published last year and has added to his already wide reputation. Another guest of honor will be Eleanor Boykin, a former Atlantan, who is the author of the recently published book of manners for young people, "This Way, Please." Miss Boykin has lived in New York for a number of years and has written and lectured on etiquette and allied subjects.

The toastmaster at the luncheon will be Dr. Stella S. Center, a native of Forsyth, well-known educator who is founder and director of the New York University Reading Clinic. She is the author and editor of many textbooks, the latest of which is a series bearing the title, "Reading and Thinking." Dr. Center is also chairman of the committee which each year chooses the winner of the organization's award for the most distinguished book written by a southerner on a southern subject during the year. The 1940 award will be announced during the luncheon.

Mrs. Caroline O'Day, another former Atlantan, who is congressman-at-large from New York is serving on Mrs. Oliver Harriman's committee in charge of arrangements for the luncheon. Mrs. Winifred Kittredge Nondet, formerly of New Orleans, who is president of the southern women's club, was a visitor in Atlanta during the Christmas holidays when she was the guest of Mrs. Reid S. Welfer at 1393 Peachtree street.

... WHEN attractive Clara Smith, of Marietta, becomes the bride of Willis Hames at a quiet ceremony taking place tomorrow afternoon, she will wear a dainty brooch worn by her mother at her own wedding. The bride's mother, Mrs. Edgar M. Smith, is the former Ruby Lynn Huie, of Hapeville, her marriage to Mr. Smith having taken place 36 years ago.

Clara, who is one of the most popular members of the Cotillion Club in Marietta, will wear in her slipper a sixpence which has been used by three other members of her family. Those who have worn the lucky sixpence are Mrs. Eugene Smith, of Pensacola, Fla., the former Josephine Wharton, of Annapolis, Md.; Mrs. Russell Grove, of Marietta, who was Miriam Smith before her marriage, and Mrs. Clem Fountain, of Acworth, the former Essie Smith.

... GLIMPSED at Mrs. John Colley's test. The honor guests, Barbara Indell, Julia Chapman and Mary McGaughey, greeting new arrivals and accenting their gowns with shoulder sprays of gardenias. . . Lillian Klein passing a tray of sandwiches, and looking very lovely in peach-blossom slipper satin. . . Mrs. Strother Fleming Jr. wearing a saucy feather toge to offset her costume. . . Mrs. Spencer Kirkland wearing a turquoise feather hat matching the turquoise trim on her black dress. . . Marjorie Macon offsetting her unusual blondness with an all-black outfit. . . Mrs. William Barnwell wearing a stone-blue dress and hat, both of which were accented by clusters of deep purple violets. . . Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell being served a cup of coffee by Mrs. Harry Indell. . . Mrs. Gordon Jones speaking to the receiving line. . . Charlotte Chapman wearing a becoming off-the-face black hat with her black dress. . . Mrs. Lester Price and her daughter, Peggy Price, being greeted at the door by Elizabeth Colley Shelton. . . Anne Harris completing her dramatic black velvet coat by a huge black sombrero, and receiving compliments of the debutante from Jane Osburn, who was strikingly gowned in raspberry crepe. . . Winifred Coolidge wearing winterberry red and carrying a mammoth muff of mink fur. . . Marjorie Ward, Ethel Erwin and Bebe Young Deas chatting together. . . Mrs. W. E. Letts conversing with guests who congregated around the punch bowl.

... GLIMPSED at the reception given by Crawford Long Auxiliary in the new Nurses' Home. Mrs. Carl Lewis chatting with guests as they greeted the receiving line. Debutante Helen Randall looking pretty in a black costume topped by a brilliant red gold-embroidered jacket. . . Martha Merritt, secretary of the Debutante Club, keeping the guest book. . . Mary Lib Beers serving punch.

Debutante and Brides-Elect Feted at Elaborate Parties

The social spotlight was focused Wednesday upon debutantes and brides-elect, who formed the inspiration for three of the loveliest parties of the season.

Mrs. John E. Colley was hostess in the late afternoon at a tea in compliment to Miss Barbara Indell, debutante, and Misses Mary McGaughey and Julia Chapman, brides-elect, several hundred members of the married and unmarried social contingents having been invited to meet the charming trio at the hostess' home on Club drive.

Mrs. Charles Shilton Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., the former Miss Elizabeth Colley; Mrs. Charles Shilton Sr. and Mrs. M. L. Hollowell greeted guests at the door.

The hostess and honor guests stood before a background of greenery placed before the mantel in the living room. Miss Indell wore a model of black lace topped with a peach lace bodice. Miss McGaughey was gowned in champagne lace, and Miss Chapman chose for the occasion a green chiffon model. Shoulder sprays of gardenias accented their costumes. The hostess' gown was of rose sand color, and her flowers were talisman roses.

The tea table, overlaid with a lace cloth posed over white satin, was centered with a silver tureen of white roses, gladioli and carnations. Mesdames Edward Chapman, Frank McGaughey and Harriett Indell, mothers of the honor guests, presided at the tea services, and Misses Dorothy Grove and Dorothy Chapman served punch from a huge bowl posed on a mound of varicolored fruit, which was placed in the sunroom. Assisting in entertaining were Misses Selma Wight, Jane Osburn, Elizabeth Groves, Lillian Klein, Bolling Spalding, Olive Bell Davis, Adelaide Barnett, Charlotte Chapman and Mesdames Robert Schwab Jr. and W. E. Letts.

Earlier Wednesday Miss McGaughey was honored at a luncheon given at the Piedmont Driving Club by Miss Helen Tripp, covers having been placed for members of the wedding party, and Miss Mary Jane Thweatt, Mesdames Pat Dinkins, Frank McGaughey, Lawrence Dickey, Richard Tripp and the hostess.

White tulips and white narcissi centered the table, and white cardboard wedding bells formed the placecards.

Mrs. Gordon Kiser Jr. was hostess at a luncheon in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club on Wednesday honoring Miss Chapman.

The bridal motif was carried out in the table appointments, and covers were laid for Misses Selma Wight, Elizabeth Groves, Peggy Dutton, Marjorie Macon, Jane Osburn, Mesdames Robert Chambers, William Mason, Strother Fleming, Saffley Hughes and Winfield Jones.

Miss Chapman will again be central figure on January 27 at a luncheon at which Miss Virginia Richardson and her mother, Mrs. L. Richardson, will entertain at their home on Montclair drive.

Invited for 1 o'clock are Misses Selma Wight, Elizabeth Groves, Jane Osburn, Bolling Spalding, Dorothy Chapman, Mesdames Gordon Jones, Beverly duBose Jr., Robert Schwab, Gordon Kiser Jr., Robert Chambers and William Mason.

An interesting affair yesterday was the luncheon at which Miss Virginia Richardson and her mother, Mrs. L. Richardson, will entertain at their home on Montclair drive.

The artistic table decorations carried out the bridal motif featuring a silver tray graced with gardenias and miniature brides gowned in tulle. The table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth, and silver candelabra holding burning white tapers were placed at either end.

Guests in addition to the honor guests were their bridal attendants and a few close friends.

Miss Virginia Evans Marries William Evans in Greensboro

GREENSBORO, Ga., Jan. 23.—The marriage of Miss Mary Virginia Evans and William Archer Evans was solemnized this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James William Evans, in this city. Dr. Edmund F. Cook, of Macon, performed the ceremony.

The graceful stairway in the home was draped with smilax and at intervals white candelabra holding burning white tapers were placed. The living room, where the ceremony was performed, was decorated with garlands of smilax and baskets containing white gladioli, carnations, chrysanthemums and snapdragons.

Completing the decorations were branched candelabra holding white tapers and vases of white roses, chrysanthemums, narcissi, talisman roses, bronze snapdragons and violets in the other rooms.

The ushers were Edward C. Evans, of Little Rock, Ark.; William R. Jackson, of Greensboro; and Kyle Smith, of Greensboro. The bridesmaids were Mrs. William Chandler Jr. and Mrs. J. A. McWhorter, of Atlanta.

The bridesmaids were gowned alike in ice blue satin models fashioned with shirred bodices featuring sweetheart necklines and short, puffed sleeves. From the snug-fitting bodices extended the bouffant skirts of ice blue and bluish-pink tulle. They carried colonial bouquets of red roses tied with matching satin ribbon.

Little Mary Jane Merritt, of Atlanta, cousin of the bride, was ring-bearer. Her dainty dress was fashioned of pink net, styled with shirred bodice and a very full skirt of pink and misty-blue net. The dainty pillow upon which the ring was carried was made of white satin with insets of rose point lace.

The groom was attended by W. H. Gilbert, of Greenville, as best man.

Bride Enters.
The beautiful bride entered with her father, James William Evans, by whom she was given in marriage. The bride was a picture of loveliness in her wedding gown of magnolia bridal satin featuring a deep yoke of rose point lace.

The lace having graced her mother's wedding gown. The bride was styled with leg-o-mutton sleeves extending to points at the wrists. The bouffant skirt extended to form a graceful train. Her veil of illusion was caught to a halo coronet of rose point lace by miniature orange blossoms.

Carried a lace handkerchief which was used by her mother at her wedding, and a bouquet of roses and valley lilies.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Evans were seated at a reception table.

The dining room was decorated with bowls of blue delphinium, white gladioli and potentilla carnations. The table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth and centered with a silver basket containing white roses, stevia, valley lilies and fern. Silver candelabra holding white tapers flanked the centerpiece.

Tea and coffee were poured from silver services by Mrs. E. W. Copelan and Mrs. Carey Williams. The bride's table, was covered with an imported cloth of lace embroidery. Centering this table was a three-tiered wedding cake, embossed with valley lilies. Narcissus and fern formed a festoon about the cake.

Miss Ann Copeland and Miss Henrietta Sisk kept the bride's book.

Assisting were Mesdames Edward C. Evans, W. R. Jackson, J. G. Faust, Kyle Smith, M. E. Sisk, Pierce Copeland, of Greensboro; Mrs. Sibley Bryan and Mrs. Harold Bryan, of Union Point; Mrs. S. Carson, Miss Margaret Carson, Mrs. Garret Evans, Mrs. Edward Merritt, Mrs. Percy Merritt, of Atlanta; Mrs. E. G. Adams Jr., Mrs. Harold Brook, Mrs. Owen McCormons, Mrs. James Crossley, Miss Gussie Kimbrough, Mrs. Lloyd Lewis, Miss Margaret Hunter and Miss Hillma Ghesling.

Handsome Costumes Worn.
Mrs. Evans, the bride's mother, wore a dress of hyacinth blue crepe, the bodice of which was studded in crystal beads. She wore a shoulder spray of gardenias. The groom's mother, Mrs. Sarah Archer Evans, wore a blue crepe gown and her flowers were also gardenias.

Mr. Evans and his bride left by motor for a wedding trip to the golf coast. For traveling the bride wore a navy wool gabardine ensemble styled with white collar and cuffs of point de Venise lace. She wore navy accessories and a shoulder spray of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans will reside with the bride's parents.

Atlantans present were Mrs. Edward F. Merritt, Mary Jane Merritt, Edward Merritt Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Percy Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Garret Evans, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Carson and Miss Margaret Carson; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Singletary, Mr. and Mrs. Simms Bray, Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bruce Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dickert, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Waldon, Mrs. K. R. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merritt and Miss Marion Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell, Miss Jane Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Atkins.

Henson-Hancock Rites Announced

Miss Mary Kathleen Henson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Henson, became the bride of John R. Hancock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Hancock, at a ceremony taking place Wednesday evening at the North Atlanta Baptist church.

Rev. J. F. Mitchell read the marriage service and Mrs. Robert Carley, organist, and Mrs. Johnny Bandy, soloist, presented a program of music.

Calla lilies, white gladioli and palms, interspersed with seven-branched candelabra holding lighted white tapers, formed the altar decorations.

Miss Dorothy Horton was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a dusty pink suit with matching hat and natural accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of gardenias.

John W. Hancock Jr., cousin of the groom, acted as best man, and serving as ushers were Edward C. Henson, brother of the bride, and Jaffery Brock.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, H. T. Henson, was attired in a modish blue costume suit, with which she wore a hat to match. Natural accessories and a shoulder cluster of orchids completed the ensemble.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Center street. Misses Jeanne Chafin and Doris Caudel assisted in entertaining.

A profusion of calla lilies was used in the effective decorations throughout the reception rooms.

Mrs. Henson, the bride's mother, wore a gown of soldier blue crepe with matching accessories and a shoulder spray of sweetheart roses. Mrs. Hancock, mother of the groom, wore a smart printed model and her flowers were a shoulder cluster of gardenias.

Later in the evening the young couple left for a wedding trip, and upon their return they will reside with the bride's parents at 1084 Center street, N. W.

Fraternities Plan Functions

Among outstanding events to highlight the midwinter social calendar are affairs planned by various fraternities which will assemble members of the high school and college contingent.

An interesting affair scheduled for this evening is the formal dinner-dance to be given by members of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity of Emory University at the Piedmont Driving Club in honor of the new initiates.

Feature of the dance will be the presentation of the chapter sponsor immediately preceding the Alpha leadout. The chapter will give a breakfast at a downtown restaurant following the dance.

Initiates are Arthur Moore, Sidney Goss, Bob Young, Ben Smith and Lamar Glass, of Atlanta; Led Brown, of Tallahassee; Carol Bowie, of Starr, S. C.; Ed Jackson, of Columbus; Henry Banks, of Guerrytown, Ala., and Relfe Pruett, of Pittsview, Ala.

Frank Wright, president of the Epsilon Province of Phi Delta Theta and alumni secretary at the University of Florida, will be principal speaker at the seventieth annual banquet to be given by members of Georgia Beta Chapter of Phi Delta Theta fraternity on January 31, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Dr. Haywood J. Pearce Jr., professor of history at Emory University, now on leave as vice president of Brenau, will be toastmaster. The banquet, which is a highlight of the midwinter social season, will be followed by a formal dance.

A feature of the affair will be the introduction of a new fraternity song written by Claud Wilson, '42, of Savannah. The song is named "Carnations," for the fraternity flower.

The banquet and dance are given in honor of the pledges, who will become members of the fraternity that evening.

The honor guests will be George Bates, Charles Gray, Quincy, Fla.; Claud Wilson, Savannah; Ben Franklin, Metter; Ashby McCord, Fort Valley; Alan Secord, Atlanta; Oscar Freeman, Gadsden, Ala.; Billy Bryant, Atlanta; Clinton Horton, Clemson, S. C., and Burton Trimble, Atlanta.

Psi Chapter of Sigma Pi fraternity at Emory University will honor its initiates at a Monte Carlo party at the chapter house on Oxford road on Saturday from 7:30 to 12 o'clock. Neophytes who will be honored are Charles Spenser, Roy Jones, Wendell Williams,

Do you suffer monthly from cramping pains due to functional causes? Here at last is a safe prescription especially made for you. Written by a physician for his own women patients, they praised it so much that it is now offered to all women. It is called Tempo, and comes in tablet form in two sizes, 20c and 40c.

Tempo tablets do far more than merely relieve pain. They soothe the nervous irritability and promote relaxation. They are proving a blessing to many women unable to find relief by using remedies meant for general use. They contain no opiates. Originally women paid the physician five dollars to get this prescription.

Now you can get the same thing in Tempo tablets for only 20c or 40c. At all good druggists.—(adv.)

Star Passer Is Chosen At Annual Fete

'Truck' Kimsey Named Alternate at Poss' Big Barbecue.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 23.—Heyward Allen, shifty little tailback from Birmingham, tonight was elected captain of Georgia's 1941 gridiron forces and Cliff (Truck) Kimsey, of Cornelia, was named alternate captain.

Allen, nicknamed "Shifty" by his teammates, is one of the best passers ever to wear the Red and Black. Although weighing only 160 pounds, the little Birmingham kid has played a lot of football during his two-year career at Georgia.

GREAT SCRAPPY.
He is a great scrapper, as can be seen by the fact he played ex-

Georgia Changes Dates of Games

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 23.—A couple of minor changes have been made in the Georgia 1941 football schedule.

South Carolina will be played on Saturday night, October 4, instead of Friday as originally announced, and Mississippi will be played on Friday night, October 10, instead of Saturday night.

Centre College will be played on Saturday afternoon, November 15, instead of Friday afternoon as first announced.

actly 45 days after having an appendectomy as a sophomore.

The new leaders of the gridiron team were named tonight at the annual barbecue dinner given by the R. E. Poss, owner of Poss' famous barbecue stand on the outskirts of Athens. Members of the varsity eleven were honored with the dinner by the popular Poss for the sixth straight year.

It was a pretty big job—feeding 55 football players all the barbecue they could eat—but Mr. Poss gladly undertook it and came out with flying colors.

Mr. Ears Whitworth, the Georgia line coach, ate more than any two players to keep his championship title for the second successive year. However, Spec Towns was out of the city and Coach Whitworth had little competition defending his title.

Only lettermen took part in the voting on a captain and alternate captain.

SHIFTED AGAIN.
Kimsey, like Allen, is a senior. He played tailback as a sophomore, fullback as a junior and Wednesday at the start of spring practice was shifted to blocking back. He is a cousin of John Bond, one of Georgia's greatest backs in years gone by. He was handicapped by a knee operation last year, but nevertheless turned in several good performances and lived up to his reputation of being one of the best fullbacks in the league.

The Bulldogs are just starting spring drills and things are progressing fine, according to Head Coach Wallace Butts. The boys all reported in fairly good physical condition and plunged right into their work.

This afternoon half a thousand spectators were on hand to watch proceedings as the boys ran through signals and got their blocking and defensive assignments down pat.

V.P.I. NEEDS COACH.
BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan. 23.—Within the next few days—or as soon as the flu permits—Virginia Tech (V. P. I.) is expected to name one from among 30 applicants as head coach to succeed Henry Redd, who resigned at the close of last season.

Great Investment

Those Crackers have the very thing some major league club, like Detroit, needs. They have a gilt-edged investment in a young outfielder.

The Detroit, American League champions, are going to lose Hank Greenberg to Uncle Sam. Either Greenberg is to be drafted before Jude or he will enlist. Detroit may lose other players to the service.

Other American and National League clubs expect to give up star players for a season in the interests of national defense.

It will give star young players a real chance to rise to the majors.

One of these may be the Crackers' Willard Marshall. Several major clubs have professed an interest in Willard heretofore.

Willard is a gilt-edged baseball investment. He was too young to register for the draft. He won't be 20 until February 8.

That no-trade rule is still in effect in the American League. And, unless it is changed, Detroit can't trade within the circuit for purposes of strengthening, even if Greenberg is lost.

The rule was aimed at the Yankees, who couldn't trade in their own league last season. The present rule prohibits the champion from making deals with other American League clubs.

Rule or no rule, however, I doubt there is a Marshall available in the American League. The Richmond youngster is an outstanding rookie. He'd help any club.

Detroit or Cleveland or any other major outfit needing help because of the draft or otherwise, might do well to contact Colonel Earl Mann, Atlanta Baseball Club, Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga.

Ryan's Another

Connie Ryan is another Cracker youngster who didn't have to register for the draft. Ryan, star of the Savannah club last season, is 20 years old.

The New Orleans youngster will take over second base for the Crackers next season. If he has the right type of keystone partner, Ryan will do his part toward keeping the Crackers at the top of the league in double plays.

Ryan might have made the grade with the Crackers last year. No one will ever know. Ten days before the season started the kid came down with a throat infection.

This naturally threw him off stride and, figuring he might have a difficult time catching up, President Earl Mann farmed him out to Savannah for the season. He was the best infielder Savannah had.

It has been some time since the Crackers have had a real second baseman. Ryan looks like an improvement on Nig Lipscomb in his prime. He is a real prospect.

A winning team must have a strong double-play combination, and the Crackers at least have one-half of what they need in Connie Ryan.

Great Rule

A card from Paul Richards, who is visiting in old Monterey, Mexico, brought to mind baseball managers and a very fine rule that's in force in the International League.

It's a great rule. Every league could use it with profit. It would speed up games and save wear and tear on the fans' nerves. Too often managers forget old John Fan when they drag games out with ceaseless and useless harangue and other stall acts.

In the International League a manager is allowed to walk out and talk with the pitcher once an inning. But if he goes out to the mound TWICE in the SAME inning, he must either take himself or the pitcher out of the game.

Now, there's a rule.

The fans probably would be in favor of the manager taking himself out, no matter how badly the pitcher was faring.

The manager might be catching, or he might be playing an infield or outfield position. Regardless of whether he is actively in the game or on the bench, two trips to the mound in the same inning automatically removes him or the pitcher.

What baseball needs is a little more action and less delay. Fans don't have any need for the extra five or ten minutes saved. They simply enjoy seeing a game move along.

Ordinary games that last over two hours often are dull. Usually games that require an hour and 50 minutes, or thereabouts, are fast-moving and highly interesting.

Danning First Giant Holdout; Five Yankee Rookies Signed

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(P)—The New York Yankees broke their winter silence on salary negotiations today to announce that signed contracts had been received from five rookies who hope to stick in the big time this year.

The group included Shortstop Phil Rizzuto, who batted .347 at Kansas City last year; Outfielder Tommy Holmes, who hit .317 for Newark, and three pitchers, Don Henrickson, a 16-7 winner for Kansas City; George Barley with a 15-9 record at Newark, and Alan Gettel, 4-3 hurler for Newark.

The New York Giants received Catcher Harry Danning's 1941 contract—unsigned.

President Horace Stoneham said the rangy backstop did not say how much salary he wanted and that apparently Danning did not expect to have any serious trouble in reaching an agreement.

Danning was believed to have received about $15,000 last year and recently was selected in a poll of baseball writers as the outstanding catcher in the major leagues in 1940.

Confronted with the prospect of having Outfielder Morrie Aronovitch drafted for military service in the middle of next season, the Giants suggested to him that he enlist immediately so that his year of training would not break up two years of baseball.

President Stoneham said he had written the 26-year-old Superior, Wis., player concerning this procedure as a solution to an apparently inevitable draft next summer.

Aronovitch's order number is 212 on the national list.

Crosby's Meet Starts Today With Parties

'Most Unusual' Tourney on Golf Circuit Draws Stars.

DEL MAR, Cal., Jan. 23.—(UP)—The nation's most unusual golf tournament commences Friday morning with traditional fun and frolic accentuated over matters financial and technical.

It is the fifth renewal of the homey little pro-amateur shindig annually sponsored and underwritten by Bing Crosby. Outwardly, this tourney is much like others. Some $3,000 and many trinkets will be awarded as prizes, all clubs will be swung in the orthodox manner and the men with fewest strokes will haul off the loot.

But here the similarity ends. For at Del Mar there are no promoters or players, there are merely hosts and guests. Primarily the party is the thing, and probably in no other event is there so much of the ad lib and the impromptu.

Much of the happy confusion is derived from the paucity of accommodations near the course. The tourney is played at Rancho Santa Fe, some five miles inland from the point where Del Mar race track, another Crosby enterprise, sits on the edge of the Pacific. Since Rancho Santa Fe is merely a name and Del Mar just a dateline, guests are bivouacked along 55 miles of nearby coastline. This abnormally wide front leads to numerous complications and the result is that few people ever bother to go to their quarters and sleep. Usually the host favors his visitors with a variety of solo vocals and then all hands join in a community sing which evolves into something more melodious than expected.

Sinkwich's Third 'Departure' Surprises Georgia Followers

Bulldog Tailback Says He Likes To Play But Thinks Game Does Him No Good.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 23.—The report that Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia sophomore tailback, had quit the squad for "keeps" came as a big surprise to football followers tonight in this quiet academic city.

Bulldog gridiron partisans recalled that this was at least the third time that the Youngstown boy had left the team and many of them appeared to think it was just another "time out" for the "in-and-out" grid star.

However, with Sinkwich, it was described as his final departure. "It's not that I don't like the game," Sinkwich said. "I intend to keep on working out. I still like the game but I just don't think it is doing me any good."

NO ARGUMENT.
Regarded as one of the best tailbacks ever to play in the south, Sinkwich said he didn't feel as if he was letting anybody down by quitting.

"Have you any argument with the coaching staff or anybody else connected with athletics at Georgia?" Sinkwich was asked.

"No," he replied, "I am just tired of football. I want to be just like any other fellow—not Frank Sinkwich, the football player."

It is not the first time Sinkwich has quit the squad. Before last year's Kentucky game, the Youngstown lad didn't show up for practice on Monday. However, he returned on Tuesday to become one of the game's greatest stars on Friday night.

Coach Butts said tonight he had never had a bit of trouble with Sinkwich on the field. He acted just like anybody else, Butts said, and he worked just as hard as I could expect while on the field.

Once during his freshman year at Georgia he left school and went to Youngstown, only to return. Possibly anticipating Sinkwich's departure, Butts had Jim Todd

While making her 10th appearance since turning professional, Miss Marble lost seven of the 14 service games she had in the 28-game extra-set match that was played without an intermission.

THE SPORTLIGHT

BY GRANTLAND RICE

CHAMPIONS AND THEIR CHANCES FOR 1941.

No. 5—The Golf Parade.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 23.—Lawson Little faces the toughest job in sports. As national open golf champion of the United States he will have more stars clawing at his scalp than any other champion from any other sport.

Only Ralph Guldahl has been able to defend the open crown since Bobby Jones retired.

Each year the odds are killing, with at least 50 high-powered assailants attempting to break through—such challengers as Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, Henry Picard, Craig Wood, Johnny Bulla, Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, and on.

Little this next June will be called upon to face the big test at Fort Worth, in what should be one of the big golf shows of all time. When Texas stages a party it is always something to remember. And this time Fort Worth will be set to crack all records.

As Texas has produced a finer golfer average than any other state, it is only fitting that a National Open should be held over Texas turf. Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl, Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Dick Metz, and the Mangrum brothers are all Texas born.

Little's Chance.

Lawson Little started the new season by playing exceptionally well in the recent $10,000 Los Angeles Open, which Johnny Bulla won.

But neither Little nor anyone else could match Bulla's second round opening blast of seven consecutive 3s over the tough Riviera test. The Stanford star remained in the running despite a tricky putter. On one occasion he took four putts on the 18th green. He three-putted from three feet.

"I am hitting the ball better than before," he told me, "and hope to have a good year. You know how rough this golf competition is. You can't win unless you happen to be at your peak, for there are too many good ones who can burn up the course. Pairs are no longer worth much. It is the birds that tell the story."

"The winner of the next National Open—any open, for that matter—has to be putting well. And putting is something that comes and goes. Naturally it would be a great thing to repeat, as so few have ever done this. But I know what the odds are against anyone in the field—at least ten to one, or higher."

Other Chances.

Once again in the Fort Worth test it will be interesting to see what Sammy Snead can do.

He is still one of the greatest of all golfers—one of the finest of all golfers. But so far he has been unable to keep his concentration set through a championship.

His great rounds have been followed by too many poor ones. At Cleveland he jumped from 67 in the first round to 81 in the last. That's too wide a gap for a golfer as brilliant as Snead can be with every club in the bag.

Byron Nelson is always dangerous. And this time you can keep an eye on Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret, the two Texans, who cleaned up the winter circuit a year ago. Both are great golfers.

So is Craig Wood, who may break his jinx in 1941. Wood seems to be always in there storming down the stretch, only to lose by a narrow margin. Wood is about due to get the right breaks.

Henry Picard is another great golfer who has yet to win a National Open. It will be interesting to see just how well Gene Sarazen will make out. He is the top of the veterans. After a 20-year campaign, his play at Cleveland last summer was sensational. His play carried its high standard through the P. G. A. test. Sarazen has been to the wars a long time, but he is still one of the best—a fine golfer and a great competitor.

Horton Smith is another who should have a good year. He came within two short putts, the type he rarely misses, of winning last June. He is sure to be a factor in the Fort Worth roundup.

IRON MAN ROLE.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Jan. 23.—Louis Adair, junior guard on the Alabama basketball team, performed an iron-man role in the Tide's last two encounters, against Tennessee and L. S. U., when he played all of both games without being relieved. Adair seemed to thrive on the hard work, however, as he led the Tide scoring in both games, marking up 10 points against the Vols and nine against L. S. U.

Smithies Play Monroe Quint For Loop Cellar

Typists Visit Columbus; Jordan Engages Unbeaten Canton Greenies.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

High and the Monroe Aggies clash in the opening tilt of a basketball double-header for the undisputed occupancy of the Big Seven League cellar tonight at 7:30 on Grady court.

PURPLES-ALBANY.

Despite the seeming unimpressiveness of that, one of the best basketball cards of the year is in prospect as the highly impressive Boys' High quint, drawing a bye in league play, will engage Albany High, for around 10 years the top high school team in south Georgia, in the follow-up tilt at 8:30.

Dwight Keith's Purple Hurricane will have revenge in their hearts and blood in their eyes as they go after the Indians, for it was the S. G. F. A. champs who shaded them by a single point in an early season joust in Albany the night after the Purples had given the Lanier Poets their first defeat in three years on their home floor.

The Hurricane always put on a classy show with their great floor play and if they ever begin to hit the basket with a bit more frequency the other preps are likely to go on a diet of humble pie for quite a spell.

UNPREDICTABLE.

Swede Phillips' Smithies snapped out of their lethargy long enough to nose out the fine Jordan High five last week, but dropped right back into their coma to bow to Commercial Tuesday. Monroe trimmed Boys' High in the season opener, but has bowed to Jordan and the Typists since then.

The sensational comeback campaign being staged by Rufus Godwin's five is in jeopardy of bogging down tonight when the Typists invade the small Columbus High court for another league game. Like Old Man River, unendingly, Canton High keeps rolling along without serious obstacle. Tonight, however, Shorty Register's second-place Jordan outfit will journey to Canton with a determination to put a crimp in the Greenies' winning habits. D. B. Carroll's home quintet will retain the league lead by a narrow margin even if they drop this one.

Albany Braves Beat Canton Greenies, 42-39

CANTON, Ga., Jan. 23.—Albany's Braves, taking an early lead and hanging on through a home-side rally, defeated Canton's Greenies, 42-39, here tonight in a sparkling game. Albany led at the half, 20-11.

Christo and Bowick, with 14 points each, paced the winners. Roebuck topped the Greenies with 11 points and Tippins and Bell had 10 apiece.

City Basketball

Sears & Roebuck and General Shoe went into play for the Walthour City Basketball League by scoring hard-earned victories over Dixie and Four Square, respectively. Pounds poured in 20 points to lead Sears' to its 47-40 triumph over Dixie, while B. Rainey scored 27 counters as his General Shoe mates submerged a fighting Four Square five, 41-32. F. McDaniel, Four Square forward, carried off scoring honors for the night with 28.

In the other league tilt, Central Cafe's improved quintet, Shipp's Georgia Power boys, 57 to 35, Getzen, Griffith and Doyle Butler stood out for the winners while Smith and Bill George starred for the Power five.

CRACKER GOAL.—Bo Johnston, former Georgia Tech center, broke through the Celtic defense for a basket in the last quarter of the game between the professionals and the Atlanta Cracker team last night at the city auditorium. Coming up to guard is Nat Hickey, veteran Celt. In the background is Bob McDermott (No. 3), Celtic forward who led the night's scoring with 20 points.

Celtic Magic Fools Police Team, 55 to 51

Touring Professionals Put on Fancy Show Before 4,000 at City Auditorium.

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Usually the score is the most important thing about a ball game, whether football, baseball or basketball. But not so when the Celtics come to town. The play's the thing then.

The magic men of the court are masters of horseplay. They discovered and perfected the wheel play. They really put the "play" into basketball play, as a packed house at the auditorium last night will testify.

The score, incidentally, was 55 to 51, in favor of the Celtics, that is, counting two points for the Atlanta Police Crackers on a field goal that little Davey Banks threw into the Cracker basket intentionally.

ALL-AROUND SHOW.

The Celts put on their best show in years to the delight of an audience of nearly 4,000. They rolled the ball around on the floor, went through slow-motion plays, lifted their opponents up to help them make field goals and exhibited excellent all-around form at "kibitzing."

But, don't get the idea that the Celtics didn't have any competition. They rushed away to a big 22-7 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the Crackers came back strong to close the gap to 31-24 at the half.

Late in the third quarter when the Men of Magic had obtained a 45-31 lead the show really began. The third quarter score ended that way, and in came Davey Banks, the past masters of court jesters. First Herlihy lifted Davey up for the jump, and then Banks went into reverse. He hid himself back of the goal, waiting for a pass while the action was taking place at the other end of the court. However, Cracker fans gave him away, and he was rushed as the ball came down and missed the shot.

Once when Banks hid out and was set to take a long pass for a crisp shot, Red Pittman dashed off the Cracker bench and intercepted the pass. Play continued as if nothing was amiss, for that's more or less, the spirit of the Celtic attraction.

HURLS BALL BACK.

The next time Banks got the ball near the Cracker bench, in-

A. Johnson had 19 and 17 points, respectively.

Then Ike Sewell Service girls ran away from the Atlanta All-Stars of the WPA leagues, 44 to 16. Smith, with 20 points, and Killian, with 16, led the way.

In the curtain-raiser, Sol Marshall's Alliance Braves defeated the Y. M. C. A. Cubs, 12 to 6, in a midgame. Edlestein topped the scoring with 10 points.

Riggs, Kramer And Guernsey Win Matches

Buxby Upset by Brooks in Third Round at St. Pete.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP)—With one exception, favorites continued their advance through the third round of the Florida West Coast tournament to the quarter-finals here today.

Top-seeded Bobby Riggs, former national champion from Chicago, was master of every situation in a 6-0, 6-0 romp over Ed Sanger, of Baltimore, and Frankie Kovacs, second-seeded, from Oakland, Cal.; clowned through another match, defeating Johnny Dennis, of St. Petersburg, 6-4, 6-1.

The only upset came when Martin Buxby, of Miami, former west coast champion, lost to Norman Brooks, of San Francisco, 4-6, 3-6. Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, seeded third, had to go three sets to defeat Rex Norris, chop-shot artist from Lansing, Mich., 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Frank Guernsey, former intercollegiate champion from Orlando, Fla., defeated Randall Rose, of Kingston, N. Y., 6-1, 6-3; and Garner Larned, of Chicago, won from Jim Vuille, St. Petersburg, 6-2, 6-1.

Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of Portland, Ore., second seeded in the women's singles, won her first match, defeating Faith McLaughlin, of St. Petersburg, in love sets, and Ann Gray, of West Point, N. Y., reached the semi-finals by defeating Ann Washington, of Tampa, 6-1, 6-1.

Six other dogs that qualified had completed their second series today, but none displayed brilliant form. Three of the six, Bobbitt's Peerless Pride, owned by L. M. Bobbitt, Winston-Salem, N. Seabiscuit Day For Santa Anita

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—(AP) Seabiscuit will come back to the scene of his greatest triumph, Santa Anita Park, but not to race again.

Charles S. Howard, owner of the famed thoroughbred, said yesterday a life-size statue in bronze of Seabiscuit would be unveiled at Santa Anita at noon February 6 and that the horse would be brought here from the Howard ranch in northern California for the ceremony.

It will be a Seabiscuit day. The feature handicap of the card will be named in his honor, and the retired champion will lead the parade to the post with his old jockey, Red Pollard, in the saddle.

Sculptor, Tex Wheeler spent four months at the Howard ranch modeling the statue.

SEC To Settle Title Battle In Qualifying

Tourney To Draw Best Players in East, Midwest, South.

By AL SHARP.

The seventh annual Southern Intercollegiate Golf tournament, which draws the best players from the Southern and Southeastern conferences, as well as strong eastern and midwestern entrants, will be held April 10-12 at the Athens Country Club, it was announced yesterday.

Following the plan which was tried out for the first time last year, the event sponsored by the University of Georgia will settle the championship of the Southeastern conference in qualifying rounds.

After the Southeastern's tourney was discontinued last year, it was decided to incorporate the loop's play in the Athens meet. The low individual and team among the Southeastern entries in the 36-hole qualifying will be considered champions of the conference.

This "battle on the side" has nothing to do with the Athens tournament proper, which is played for what amounts to the eastern, midwestern and southern championship among colleges, since the best teams from those sections are entered.

In last year's tourney, Bert McDowell, Louisiana State University senior from Kansas City, Mo., beat Bob Palmer, of the University of Michigan, 1 up, in an exciting title match.

MIDDLECOFF FAVORED. Cary Middlecoff, the University of Mississippi youngster who went to the semifinals last time, already has been tagged as the favorite for holding a commanding lead.

This time Middlecoff will be back with more experience and a state title in his right hip pocket. Middlecoff won the Tennessee Amateur tourney at Knoxville in July, and he also competed in the National Amateur at Mamaroneck, N. Y., in September. He was one of the 32 players qualifying for match play in the National, but ran into a red-hot Freddie Haas in the first round and lost. Middlecoff is from Memphis.

So you can see from a glance at Middlecoff's record that some of the best young golfers in the nation battle at Athens.

Greenberg Can Help Baseball Greatly If Army Drafts Him

Zeller, Tiger General Manager, Thinks Hank Could Further Interests of Game as Camp Athletic Officer.

By FELIX B. WOLD.

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg is a prospective Army draftee in May or June, but the Detroit Tiger front office, instead of putting on a show of gloom, looks at the situation with great optimism.

Drafting of the Tiger star, explained General Manager Jack Zeller today, actually might turn out to be a bonanza for baseball.

Zeller, who admitted fears for baseball's future unless more kid players are developed, took a long-range viewpoint.

"Look here," he said, "if Greenberg is drafted, they might possibly make him an athletic officer in camp. He could do a lot for baseball in a job like that." The Tiger executive went on to say that Hank, with his illustrious record on the diamond, would serve as an inspiration to young baseball-minded soldiers and do a lot for promotion of the sport in army camps.

Here Zeller has a vision. From all this camp baseball, he thought, might come more and better players. Ultimately, organized ball would profit with a new flow of talent.

Zeller's theory, coinciding with that of other baseball men, is that the game could consider the drafting of Greenberg and other stars as an investment in the future.

LESS COMPLAINT. With Greenberg to help out on the problem, Zeller might have less complaint about the way the minor leagues are handling the development of young players. Nobody can tell Jack that it's being done right.

"They don't develop them the way they ought to," he said. "They don't bring along any of these kids."

"They want a winner right away. So they ask us (the majors) to 'send us 14 men and a manager.' That's about the size of it. All they'll ever get that way is old players, or men that never would get back up here anyway."

HANK GREENBERG.

Autos Replace Gaudy Wagons In Gypsy Camp

Color Gives Way to Science; Group Reticent on Customs.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

The gypsy's trail is a paved highway these days. The gaudy old wagon of red and yellow that used to wander the back-country roads is a high-priced house-car pulled by a sleek limousine, or burdened jalopy with steaming radiator.

Romance is gone from the houses of Romany and the sweet, sad music of the gypsy fiddle has given way to the barrel house bawling of a nickel-in-the-slot juke box. Even the camp fire now grows rare, and more often than not is a two-eye electric stove tucked away in the corner of a luxury trailer.

There has even grown up a generation that abhors the name of gypsy and argues, "What is a gypsy and where can they be found?" Their young men pat back a yawn with a manicured hand, and, with a patient condescension, set the outside right.

"There are," they say, "many of the Romany. But that means only those people of all races who come with us and people will call you a gypsy, too."

They are different, the Romany—all of them are different. We—he waved a lazy hand toward the tents and the trailers about him—"are Spanish and Syrian. We are show people. We follow the fairs and the carnivals. We have the dancing bears, we run the percentage wheel and the joints on the midway."

"The Irish Romany trade the horses and the mules. The English Romany sell the lace and the furs. The Scotch are peddlers of trinkets. The Russian—they are the gypsies you speak of. They dress in the red skirts and wear the big earrings and tell the fortunes. They also steal and make it hard for all the people that are called gypsies. But we here are not gypsies. We are Americans. I myself am in the draft."

"By the way, what do you know of medicine. My two babies are sick with the pellagra. The doctor in Atlanta is giving them nicotinic acid for it. It is a disease of a vitamin deficiency."

So here we had driven from Atlanta to south of Macon to find this gypsy camp. To listen to the music of the fiddles, perhaps. To watch the dancing around the campfire and to hear, if such would be granted us, tales that are as old as time, of how the stars guide the destinies of man, of elves and brownies and good spirits and evil spirits, of charms and amulets and tokens that keep a man safe from harm.

Man in Green Hat. And we found a young man in a green pork-pie hat who talked of nicotinic acid as a cure for a vitamin deficiency.

We found the campfires, too. And the dark old women in flowing skirts. And wrinkled old men who talked grudgingly to us in English and talked behind our backs in a gabble of words that might have been any language in the world. And hosts of black-haired, black-eyed children who peered from behind their mothers' skirts and only came out when lured by a nickel.

But we didn't learn anything. About what rites go on when they celebrate their New Year's, 13 days after the New Year's Day that Christians observe for instance, or about their wedding customs, and their burial rites. When we asked these questions the chatter died and the crowd around us melted away and all that could be seen of them was a dark face peering from behind a tent-flap or back of the heavy curtain of a trailer. And now and then a voice: "What you want here? Go 'way."

So all we could find out about the gypsy of today we learned from the young man above, and from Roscoe Hunt who runs the Iron Kettle, a tourist camp south of Macon, and who sells them space to park their trailers and to pitch their tents for a few days about this time every year.

Strange Story. They trust him, and the story of how they came to trust him, and why they stop with him every year, is a little strange in itself. It starts forty-odd years ago in Elmira, N. Y., when Hunt, as a youngster, somehow made friends with a gypsy man who let him ride his ponies. Nine years ago Hunt at his new tourist camp near Macon, went out to draw a tank of gas for a car that had stopped, and recognized in the back seat the gypsy whom he had

after a cold then what

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice. You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S. Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

known when he was a boy. He began to ask some questions and the old man remembered him.

The old man must have passed the word around, for every year since then the shiny trailer houses and the battered old jalopies with their tents have been pulling up to Hunt's place about this time of the year to stay for a week or 10 days to celebrate their new year.

They don't bother anybody. They don't steal anything. They don't try to beat Hunt out of the 25 cents a night he charges them for tent and trailer space. They just worry him to death.

"They buy a pack of cigars and want a nickel bar of candy thrown in," he laughs. "And they mooch all the matches. They come in and play the juke-organ and play the same record over till it is about to run me nuts and I tell them 'Get out of here, you damn gypsies,' and they laugh and go on down to the camp in the grove."

"They are scared of their own shadow. That's what's the matter with them. These younger ones are some different. But the old ones are scared to death all the time. That comes of being persecuted for a thousand years. You drove in their camp last night and before you had the car stopped they had a kid up here asking me to come down there. Said you was the law."

"They been kicked around so much by everybody they don't trust any stranger. Old George, he's the head of one of the big families and owns that big trailer, he was in here last night and had some beer and he talked some. Talked about a buggy he had once. Cost him $300 and had silver on the whip socket. That's the way with them. Look at him in that ragged coat and them old busted shoes you wouldn't think he had a dime. But that's the finest trailer you can buy and that's a '41 Packard pulling it. Put all the money they've got in something to haul them around in style. They like to make a big flash. Look at all them rings the women wear. Diamonds big as nickels. Phoney, I guess, but flashy."

"Poorer ones can't afford these fine trailers and they live in tents and cook out over the fire like you see, and get around in old cars about to fall apart."

"I can't tell how much the old gypsy religion and customs they follow. They claim to be the Greek Orthodox. They celebrate the old New Year's and the Old Christmas, and on Christmas they put straw in the wagons and in the tents like the straw in the manger. New Year's they have a big feast, roast a pig and all, and they do some sort of ritual with the pig head, but I don't know what. Looks like mainly on New Year's they just eat and get drunk, and fight. They don't ever hurt anybody much fighting. They don't fight like we do, with their fists; they just sort of wrestle and try to tear the other man's shirt off. I reckon the one that tears the other man's shirt off wins. Sometimes when they all get fighting they start breaking wind-shields and tearing down tents and making a hell of a ruckus, but they don't hurt each other much."

Part as Friends. "They stay here a while and then all of a sudden they just crank up and go and I don't see them any more till this time next year. We always part friends. They don't try to beat me. But man, they love money. And talk. I bet last night they stayed awake all night jabbering about you and the photographer coming."

"You go back down there at camp this morning and take a pocketful of nickels and dimes for the kids and a few quarters and halves and maybe they will let you get a picture or two. But I wouldn't bank on it. For they are scared somebody will see it and come looking for them for something they've done somewhere. For nearly all of them have done something—like blessing somebody's money and leaving them standing there looking silly, or something like that. And some of these trailers aren't paid for. The finance company may be looking for some of them."

"But if you want to know anything about gypsy legend and lore and customs and all that stuff, you better get it out of a book. I wouldn't pay them any money to tell me. They'd probably tell a lie."

No Rebates on Overdue Taxes, LeCraw Rules

Neither illness nor neglect to pay city licenses or taxes on time should entitle a person to a rebate of costs and interests after their bills have gone to fi. fa., Mayor LeCraw yesterday wrote Riley Elder, municipal revenue collector.

The statement came as a result of a petition for relief citing sickness as the reason. LeCraw approved the petition, but asked Elder to cut down on such requests, warning "we must be more businesslike in our dealings," and adding "no private business would accept such an excuse."

Woman Is Convicted For Insurance Murder PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Forty-six-year-old Mrs. Agnes Mandiuk was convicted of first degree murder tonight, the last defendant to be tried in Philadelphia's notorious murder-for-insurance cases.

Her husband was the victim. The jury of nine men and three women recommended mercy, making the penalty life imprisonment. Mrs. Mandiuk, mother of two children, was accused of collecting $13,000 insurance as the result of the death of her husband.

Births

Birth certificates were filed in Atlanta yesterday for the following families: J. D. Vaughn, 650 Pryor street, son; C. Albert, 117 Baker street, son; L. M. Melton Jr., 910 Hill, son; R. H. Flournoy, 46 Washington, daughter; M. E. Turner, 2138 Ridgedale road, son; W. L. Betts, Fayetteville, son; C. F. Moody, Jonesboro road, daughter; G. J. Belmont, 50 Belle Meade avenue, daughter; J. R. 50-60 Millions Estimated as Campaign Cost Report Accepted by Senate Committee Investigating Expenditures.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A "rough guess" that between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 was spent on political campaigns leading up to the recent elections came today from Chairman Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, of the special senate committee investigating campaign expenditures.

The senator's estimate was based on a report approved by the investigating committee which showed that contributions aggregating $24,174,223 and expenditures amounting to $22,740,313 actually were reported by national, state and senatorial groups.

Believed Too Low. "I believe expenditures probably were three times the reported total," Senator Gillette said. "The committee compilation does not include campaign funds used by county or local candidates and committees. No one could make an accurate estimate on the total campaign costs."

The report, approved by the committee and to be sent to the senate later, said Republican organizations reported spending $14,941,143, and receiving $16,476,040, and Democratic groups listed $6,095,357 in expenditures, and $6,284,463 in contributions.

Nearly three-fourths of the more than $22,000,000 reported spent in the Roosevelt-Willkie contest was listed as the cost of the campaign in nine pivotal states.

Likewise, the reports before the committee indicated the same proportion of contributions (totaling in excess of $23,400,000) came from the same states—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts, Indiana and New Jersey.

Among contributions and expenditures in the national campaign, listed by states and parties, was: Georgia: Democratic, $13,411 and $13,000; Republican, $1,549 and $1,549.

Three, Including Briton, Wounded in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Japanese objections to a proposed 40 per cent increase in the city's taxes were punctuated at a taxpayers' meeting today by a shooting which wounded three men, including W. J. Keswick, British chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Council.

Besides Keswick, two Japanese officials of the council suffered slight pistol wounds. The shooting broke up the meeting at the Shanghai race course. Japanese consular police arrested Y. Hayashi, 60, chairman of the Association of Japanese Street Unions.

Draftee Held in Jail, Freed To Go To Army

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Jan. 23.—Charlie Copeland, Polk county volunteer for military service, was in jail yesterday when the roll call was read by the local draft board. Due to leave for Fort Benning, he was jailed on a peace warrant.

A quick telephone call to the county jail won his release, and now Charlie can do his fighting for Uncle Sam and not be bothered about looking at life from behind bars.

'Miracle' Saves 12 in Plane as Crash Kills 2

Sky-Sleeper Hits Tree and Breaks in Two at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Examination of the twisted wreckage of a 12-ton Transcontinental & Western Air sky-sleeper made it apparent that only a "miracle" prevented more than two deaths among the 14 occupants of the plane in a crash today.

Captain P. T. W. Scott, 36, of Little Neck, N. Y., veteran pilot who had flown more than 1,500,000 miles, and J. F. Mott, of Kansas City, a TWA employee riding as a passenger, were killed.

The 12 others on the plane were hurt, half of them seriously, and six suffering only minor injuries. The $135,000 ship, banking steeply for a landing at Lambert-St. Louis municipal airport just before dawn, struck a tall maple and hurtled to the ground, plowing through a row of trees, smashing two telephone poles and severing a 30,000-volt electric transmission line.

The impact broke the airliner in two, but it did not catch fire. The sleeper plane, bound from Los Angeles to New York, had crossed the airport at an altitude of 300 to 400 feet, considered normal flying height in view of weather conditions. Visibility was cut to two miles by light fog and drizzle.

Earl Bierman, radio operator in the control tower, saw the plane begin its left turn southwest of the field.

"Something apparently went wrong," he said, "because the pilot pulled the plane into what looked like an S-turn and it disappeared behind some trees. Then there was a flash."

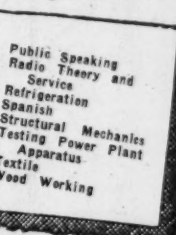

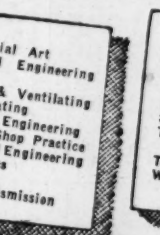

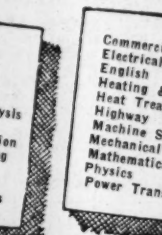

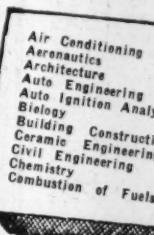

Federal and TWA officials began an investigation of the crash. Several of them went to DePaul hospital and questioned Orestis J. Dio Guardi, 28, of Jackson Heights, N. Y., the co-pilot, who suffered internal injuries, fractured right ankle and injured jaw. His condition was serious.

Your Daily Bread

Bread, "the staff of life," has a long and fascinating history. A modern chapter now is being written; one sees evidences of it on bakers' wrappers which read, "This bread now contains vitamin B." Vitamin B is a substance having many functions in the building and maintenance of health, among them the protection of the nervous system.

All whole grains, and bread and cereals made from whole grains, are good sources of this vitamin, though some milling and refining processes leave the grain product poorer in vitamin B, with a resultant diet deficiency in this element. Food research and the popularizing of vitamin information has resulted in improved methods of baking and milling, and we have available flours and breads rich in vitamin B. In some cases the finished product is richer in the vitamin than nature made it, having been reinforced through laboratory methods or by the addition of concentrated vitamin.

Dishes made with bread have a two-fold advantage, they are kind to the budget, and pleasing to the taste. It is a true note of economy to use up the left-over bread crumbs in making other and more expensive foods go farther. And in including bread in these dishes, valuable food essentials, besides vitamins, in the way of energy-yielding carbohydrates and proteins contribute to your well being. Following are several different ways of bringing food magic out of the bread box.

Bread Dumplings.
3 cups bread cubes
1-4 cup flour

3-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-4 teaspoon baking powder
2-3 cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter
2 eggs
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Combine all the ingredients. Let stand 10 minutes. Shape into balls and lower gently into boiling water to which a teaspoon of salt has been added. Cook 15 minutes. Serve with hot tomato sauce or cheese sauce. Yield: 8 small dumplings.

Peanut Bread Ring.
2 cups hot milk
4 cups bread cubes
1-2 cups chopped peanuts
2 eggs
1 tablespoon salt
1-2 teaspoon pepper
1-3 cup melted butter

Pour hot milk over bread, add peanuts. Beat eggs and add salt, pepper and butter. Combine with bread and milk, mixing well. Pour into greased ring mold. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 50 minutes. Unmold on hot platter and fill center with hot buttered lima beans and ham cubes, or with creamed eggs. Peanut mixture may also be baked in greased loaf pan. When done, unmold and serve slices. Yield: About 6 servings.

French Toasted Sandwich.

Make sandwiches of white bread. Any kind of filling may be used, but the following are especially good for this type of sandwich: cheese, peanut butter, peanut butter mixed with honey, minced olives, deviled ham or any of the prepared sandwich spreads.

Dip each sandwich into a milk and egg mixture made by combining
1-2 cups milk
1 well beaten egg
1-8 teaspoon salt
Fry the sandwiches in butter or margarine, letting them brown evenly at a moderate temperature. Serve hot. A garnish of broiled apricot or peach halves is attractive. A spoonful of red jelly in each fruit half adds color.

Chocolate Bread Pudding.
1-2 squares unsweetened chocolate
3 cups milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1-2 cup sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups bread crumbs

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, stir until blended. Combine eggs, sugar, and salt; add chocolate mixture gradually, stirring vigorously. Add vanilla. Place bread in greased baking dish; pour mixture over it and let stand 10 minutes; then mix well before baking. Place dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven.

Right:
Showing us a fine specimen of "burr" artichoke is Mrs. John R. Boyd. The artichoke she is holding is untrimmed, just as it came from the market. Before boiling, the sharp edges of leaves should be trimmed with scissors and the heavy stalk cut close to the leaves.

Below:
From the earliest days of man's civilization bread has been a basic article of food. Current improvements in baking and milling are making it possible for the human family to lean even more heavily upon the "staff of life."

Introducing the Artichoke

Artichokes are considered by some as a total waste of time; others would like to become better acquainted with this aristocratic member of the vegetable family. There are two distinct varieties of artichokes, seemingly unrelated to each other, since one is a root, and the other the flower bud of a plant. The French or globe or "burr" artichoke (it is known by all three names) is the aristocratic member of the family. Jerusalem artichokes, a potato-looking vegetable, so called because it is thought to have originated in Asia Minor probably in or about the Holy City, have been a staple article of food in Europe and Asia for many centuries. They are widely grown and used throughout the world, in some places taking the place usually held by potatoes in the diet.

It is characteristic of Jerusalem artichokes to turn dark when being cooked, and many a cook trying them for the first time has been discouraged by this unappetizing discoloration. A little vinegar added to the water in which they are boiled or steamed will help prevent discoloration, but nothing will eliminate it entirely except quick cooking and handling and immediate serving. To cook Jerusalem artichokes, wash, scrape and drop them at once into boiling salted water to which a little vinegar has been added. Boil until tender, drain and mash or slice and season liberally with butter or margarine, salt and pepper. Serve at once, piping hot.

But to get on to the nobler member of the artichoke family, the French, globe or burr. In this territory it is usually called "burr" and that name we shall use hereafter. It is a member of the thistle family, such kinship being seen in the symmetrical dark green globe and the spiny, thistle-like leaves. The heart and the base of the leaves are the edible portions. The burr artichokes which we find in our markets are grown almost entirely in California and are at their best from around Christmas to early summer. Most often they are served as a salad, one whole artichoke being placed on a lettuce leaf with a serving of dressing alongside to dip the leaf-base in as it is pulled from the "choke." In buying burr artichokes select those with leaves folded close together. If they are opened back, the artichoke is dry and old. A fresh burr is a good green in color, free from brownish spots. To cook them, snip off the spiny tips of the leaves with kitchen scissors and trim the stem end close to head so that artichoke will set upright firmly on plate. Drop the prepared artichoke in boiling salted water and boil about 20 minutes or until a leaf may be pulled out easily. Drain by standing them upside down. If artichokes are to be used as salad, chill thoroughly. A mound of mayonnaise or a tiny cup of French dressing should be placed on salad plate. To eat, the leaves are pulled off one by one, the base or fleshy end dipped into the dressing and bitten off; the remaining part of the leaf is laid on the edge of salad plate. When the leaves are all eaten, the heart at the base of the leaves, a choice part, is available. These hearts can be bought in cans, pickled or plain, and alone or in combination with other vegetables make excellent salads. Artichoke hearts (putting off leaves and reserving for soup) make a grand company vegetable served with Hollandaise sauce.

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Tuna Fish Casserole.

Submitted by Mrs. V. M. Perrin,
1165 Laurel avenue,
Cascade Heights, Atlanta.
1 can flaked tuna fish
1 package thin egg noodles
10 olives, sliced
2 hard cooked eggs

After cooking and draining noodles, mix all together. Put in a buttered casserole, sprinkle the top with grated cheese, and set in moderate oven until cheese melts. Serve hot.

Dainty Chips.

Submitted by
Mrs. Ray Yeager,
R. F. D. No. 1, Pitcairn, Pa.
1 bag of potato chips
American cheese
Potted ham
Sliced sweet pickles

Place a thin layer of cheese on each chip. Cover this with thin slices of sweet pickles and a layer of potted ham. Place them in a hot oven until the cheese is melted. Allow them to cool until crisp, and serve.

Mocha Cake.

Submitted by Mrs. W. L. Southwell,
1690 Peachtree road, Atlanta.
Cut strips from plain cake 3-4 of an inch thick and 1-2 inches long. Have ready about one pound of peanuts, freshly parched. After removing the husk, chop moderately fine and place in bowl. Mix icing separately of three cups softened confectioner's sugar with 1 tablespoon butter. Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract and sweet milk until the right consistency to spread. Toss the small oblong squares of cake first into the icing and with a fork turn quickly until each side is iced. Pick up with tips of fingers and drop into bowl of chopped peanuts. Quickly turn to coat all sides with the chopped peanuts. Place on plate to harden. Serve as tea dainty.

Candied Orange With Pecans.
Select 6 small oranges. Cut in half, removing seed only. Place in steamer, steam for four hours, or until rind can be pierced with a straw. Remove and have boiling a syrup of sugar and water. Drop oranges into syrup and boil until transparent. Parch pecan halves or quarters, add a dash of salt. Place the halves of oranges around fowl or roast. Stick pecan meats generously in oranges.

Cabbage Rolls.

Submitted by
Mrs. S. C. Savage,
R. F. D. No. 4, Covington, Ga.
1 pound beef or mutton
1-2 pound uncooked rice
2 teaspoons salt
1-2 teaspoon black pepper
1-4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 head cabbage

Put meat through meat chopper with suet. To this add rice, tomatoes, salt, pepper and cinnamon. Boil cabbage whole until partly done. Cut off leaves separately and lay on a bread board. Put a teaspoon of meat mixture on each leaf, roll in a snug ball (if cabbage leaves are very large, cut in two). Lay several of the outside cabbage leaves in bottom of casserole or baking dish with cabbage rolls laid side by side in layers. Pour 1 cup of tomatoes with a pinch of salt over the rolls and cover closely. Pour over enough boiling water to cover rolls. Cook for one hour over a moderate heat.

Caramel Pecan Pie.

Submitted by Mrs. T. O. Varner,
Commerce, Ga.
1 cup sugar (caramelize 1/2 of it)
3 eggs
2 tablespoons butter melted
3 tablespoons flour
1-2 cups milk
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring

First make caramelized sugar syrup by placing 1-2 cup sugar in skillet over medium flame and stir constantly until sugar is melted and quite dark. Remove from fire, add 1-2 cup hot water, stir until dissolved. Let cool. Separate eggs, using 2 whites for meringue, beat yolks slightly, add 1-2 cup sugar, flour, salt, milk, butter, caramelized sugar and 1-2 cup pecan meats chopped.

Line pie plate with pastry, fill and bake at low temperature (250-300 F.). For meringue, beat egg whites till quite stiff, add 2 tablespoons sugar and brown.

Loin of pork is one of the best of roasts. It is most delicious when roasted to the well-done stage. It should be roasted, uncovered, with no water added to the pan, in a very moderate oven. The roast shown is attractively garnished with fruit and sprigs of watercress.

To the left, yam croquettes are being made—recipe below. A frying kettle, good shortening and a fat thermometer insure non-greasy, easily digested croquettes.

Yam Croquettes

Good cooking has always been found in every part of this country but since there is a north, east, west and south region, each with slightly different historical experiences, customs molded by place and way of living, different climate and products, there are also special recipes and styles of cooking peculiar to each section and associated with it. So, in the realm of vegetables with southern tradition, two that are typical are turnip greens and sweet potatoes.

Sweet potatoes are always welcome—the yellow sweet potatoes full of mealy goodness. During fall and early winter months they are most plentiful and at their best. Although their preparation compares in many ways to the white potato, they lend themselves to being gilded over more heavily with sweeter flavors, such as pineapple, orange juice, syrup or marshmallows.

One of the very interesting ways to prepare sweet potatoes is with a marshmallow surprise center. These are made like little croquettes and fried in deep fat to a golden brown.

Sweet Potato Surprise.

3 cups hot sweet potato, rice
4 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
8 marshmallows
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon cold water
1/2 cup crumbled corn flakes

Combine sweet potato, butter, and salt, and allow mixture to cool. Divide mixture into 6 portions. Pat out, place a marshmallow in center of each and shape into balls. Combine beaten egg and water. Dip sweet potato balls in egg mixture, then roll in crumbled corn flakes. Fry in deep fat heated to 375 F. until the potato balls are well browned.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

The potatoes that are left over and the meat that is stored in the refrigerator can make a tasty hash for a quick luncheon or supper. For three cups of cooked potatoes, add two cups of cooked meat, salt, pepper, 3 tablespoons butter and 1-2 cup boiling water. Melt the butter in a frying pan, add the potatoes and meat, and mix. Pour water over and cook slowly without stirring until the underside is browned. Fold as an omelet and serve hot.

Use a can of tomato soup as a convenient and savory sauce for hamburger patties, breaded veal cutlets or chops.

Steamed Cranberry Pudding

Wash 2 cups ripe cranberries and chop coarsely then mix with 3/4 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons flour. Mix 2 cups stale, dry bread crumbs with 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt,

1/4 cup melted butter, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1/2 cup milk and 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder. Add the cranberries, mix well, and pour into a buttered pudding mold. Cover and steam for 2 hours. Turn out and serve hot with hard sauce or with foamy sauce.

Stuffed Rolled Flounder Fillets.

Allow 1 medium sized fillet per serving. For 6 fillets peel and chop fine 1-4 pound fresh mushrooms or 1-2 cup canned ones. Clean 1 cup canned shrimp and mash them fine. Crumble 2 slices of stale bread into fine crumbs. Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add the mushrooms and shrimp and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Then add the bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, a little pepper, 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and about 2 tablespoons hot water, or enough to moisten the filling. Spread each fillet with a thin, even layer of the stuffing and roll like a jelly roll. Fasten with a toothpick and place the rolls close together in a baking dish. Pour over them 1-2 cup water mixed with 1-2 cup white wine or 2-3 cup hot water mixed with 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Dot the rolls with a few small bits of butter and bake in a moderate oven for 35 minutes, basting two or three times with the liquid in the pan. When the fish is done, pour off the liquid, add 2 or 3 tablespoons undiluted evaporated milk and 1 tablespoon flour mixed with a little cold water. Let boil up once, then strain and pour over the fish on a hot platter.

Salt roasting fowls by rubbing 1-8 to 1-4 teaspoon salt per pound of bird into the flesh from the inside before stuffing. This is much more effective than salting the outside, which tends to blister the skin.

Fresh Mushrooms

Fresh mushrooms give the touch of a connoisseur to any dish and often become a delicious extra accompaniment to steaks, chops or roasts. An unusual dish is the one pictured below combining mushrooms in a wine sauce with broiled tomatoes.

Mushrooms and Tomatoes.

1 pound mushrooms
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup sherry
Salt, pepper
1 cup beef broth, beef cube dissolved in 1 cup boiling water may be substituted

Saute the mushrooms in butter for three minutes. Add sherry and beef broth and simmer until mushrooms are tender, about 5 minutes. To broil tomatoes, cut slice from stem end, brush with butter and broil slowly until tender.

Commerce Unit Gets 'All Out' Defense Orders

Jesse Jones' Instructions Received Here by Parker Persons.

"All out" for defense was the order received from Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, by C. Parker Persons, manager of the Atlanta office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, yesterday. Absolute priority in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is "to be given over to national defense functions."

The economic and business information, the services of government experts and all of the other facilities now existing in the Atlanta Bureau will be made available to other government departments and to industry and business in connection with the preparedness program, said Persons in commenting on Jones' order.

"Under this program," Persons continued, "the bureau's efforts will be concentrated on whatever activities can best further the relationship between industrial producers and government in carrying out President Roosevelt's defense objectives."

In the order received from Washington, Secretary Jones states: "The defense program is the No. 1 job of every government department which can contribute anything to it. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in conjunction with the Bureau of the Census and individual specialists in the Department of Commerce, has information which can be applied to many immediate problems.

"Facts need to be assembled with their application to defense needs constantly in mind. We must concentrate first on those things that will assist in the emergency and post-emergency period. The realignment of the Bureau of Defense purposes is designed to increase, not to diminish, the services which have been rendered in the past to the public."

To speed up fact-finding and analysis, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce must be a clearing house for business and economic facts.

That's Teddy's opinion of this grand cereal that costs less than 2¢ a serving*

*His Dad grins all over when he sees our youngest snack his lips over steaming Mello-Wheat. So do I . . . because I know that while this is finest quality wheat farina it's also extra economical," says Teddy's mother.

Ann Page Mello-Wheat costs so much less than other nationally known brands because A&P both packs and sells it.

As an early solid food for babies, Ann Page Mello-Wheat is recommended because it's nourishing and so easily digested. It is accepted by the American Medical Association's Council on Foods. It's a favorite with growing children and grown-ups, too. Your family will love all the Thrifty 33 Ann Page Foods. A&P both makes and sells these quality-famous foods, sharing with you the savings of its maker-to-you methods.

*Cost, including milk and sugar, based on best estimate of average A&P Self-Service Store prices which will prevail at time ad is published.

HOW TO GIVE VARIETY TO Family Breakfasts

Top each serving of your Ann Page Mello-Wheat with a dry, crisp cereal such as tasty Sunnyfield Corn Flakes.

Serve Mello-Wheat with butter and Ann Page Syrup or Honey.

Try it with Ann Page Strawberry Preserves, milk and sugar.

Mello-Wheat is top quality farina—with a grandcreamy, wheaty, nut-like flavor.

ESCAPED NAZIS—Frank Leppla tells other draftees at Fort McPherson how he escaped from a German concentration camp and came to this country seeking political freedom. He was drafted by Local Board No. 8 and inducted into the army yesterday.

S. C. Dunlap German Youth Dies at Home Drafted Here; In Gainesville Escaped Nazis

Was Former Mayor, City Manager, and Hall Purchaser.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GAINESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 23.—Samuel Candler Dunlap, 65, outstanding Gainesville resident and scion of one of north Georgia's most prominent families, died at his home here today after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Friday morning at the home, with a brother-in-law, Dr. P. E. Burroughs, of Nashville, Tenn., officiating. Interment will be in Alta Vista cemetery here.

A son of the late Colonel S. C. Dunlap and the late Mrs. Minnie Thompson Dunlap, he served two terms as mayor of Gainesville, two terms as city manager, and was president of the Gainesville National Bank from 1920 through 1933. At time of his illness he was purchasing agent for Hall county.

Prominent in fraternal affairs, he was a past commander of the Pilgrim commandery of Knights Templars, a Shriner, and a member of Phi Delta Theta, collegiate fraternity. He was an active member of the First Baptist church more than 50 years.

In 1918, he headed the Hall county Liberty Loan drive.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Eva Riley; two sons, James G. and Sam R. Dunlap, of Gainesville; a brother, Colonel Edgar B. Dunlap, of Gainesville; two sisters, Mrs. W. E. Thomas, of Gainesville, and Mrs. W. R. Asbury, of Clarksville, and a grandson, Gayle P. Dunlap.

NAMED BANK DIRECTOR.
DALTON, Ga., Jan. 23.—G. L. Westcott was added to the board of directors of the Hardwick Bank & Trust Company and all other directors re-elected at the annual meeting of the stockholders of this institution held here yesterday.

Shot in Knee While Fleeing From Concentration Camp.

Frank Leppla has been drafted. As a soldier in the United States Army he will help defend this nation against the government that kept him 10 months in a concentration camp, broke his nose in two places and finally shot him in the knee as he swam across a marsh to Holland and freedom.

Frank Leppla lived at 48 Hunter street and was a landscaper for a local nursery. When his draft order number was called by Local Board No. 8 he forgot the years he spent as a pacifist leader in Nazi Germany and went directly to Fort McPherson for induction.

He was sworn in yesterday afternoon, after passing his physical examination with an almost perfect score. Then he sat on a bench and told an assortment of draftees and regular Army soldiers how he came to this country in 1939, how he left Chicago three months ago because people said he was a spy and how he thinks Germany will defeat England unless somebody goes to the aid of the island democracy.

Boy Scout Leader.
"I was a Catholic Boy Scout leader in my home town, Mannheim," he begins, "and I was a pacifist. I believed that youth all over the world should co-operate in a peace movement. My three brothers, also, were pacifists. One of them was killed in the spring offensive against France and the other two are still serving in the German Army."

"When the government began its persecution of the Catholics, the secret police interned me in a concentration camp. There I worked on a marsh draining project. One night, in 1936, after serving 10 months in the camp, six other men and myself decided to escape."

"We dove into the marsh and struck out for Holland, which was just across the river. All of the six men were shot and killed in the attempt; only I escaped and with a bullet in my knee." Then Frank Leppla asks a soldier to feel his broken nose and look at the scar on his leg.

Lived in Holland.
He spent three years in Holland, "accepting the hospitality of those people." In 1939 he foresaw the German invasion of that Low Country and realized that when it came he would return to the "camp. With the aid of the American consul, he came to this country."

Leppla had a good job as a landscape architect in Chicago but, he says, soon people began to say, "Look! There goes a German. I bet he's a spy." So Frank Leppla came to Atlanta.

He is no longer a pacifist. "I fought Hitler in my own country. If necessary I will continue to fight him with this country. After all I am an American now, with my first papers."

Huge Airplane Factory Planned in Pennsylvania
HATBORO, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Plans for one of the nation's largest airplane factories and testing field for the production of fighter and bomber craft were announced today by the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation.

The plant and airport will cover a 400-acre tract in Bucks county, near Philadelphia, and will employ 10,000 men at peak capacity. Production is expected to start July 1 with a schedule of six planes daily.

Intense Fighting Rages in Albania

ATHENS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Some of the most intense fighting of the Greek-Italian war was reported tonight north of Klisura, in the central Albanian sector, where improved weather conditions permitted the Greeks to resume their offensive against Valona, last big southern Albanian port left to the Fascists.

The Greeks said they repulsed heavy Italian counterattacks launched in the Klisura area and attacked in turn, taking new positions by heavy fighting.

Fraternity Alumni Elect New Officers

Members of the Atlanta Alumni Club of the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity elected Harry Lane Siegel as the club's master for 1941, at a dinner held at the Progressive Club on Tuesday, January 21.

Other new officers are Dr. Melvin Weinman, lieutenant master; Ely Freedman, scribe, and Sidney Rose, exchequer.

Cobb Airport Plan Outlined By Carmichael

Program Calls for Expenditure of $600,000 Near Atlanta.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 23.—James V. Carmichael, Cobb county attorney, today disclosed plans for a huge Cobb county airport on the road to success, following transmission of a resolution by Atlanta city council to the Civil Aeronautics Authority approving the plans. It is estimated the airport will cost $600,000 or more, including hangars. He said plans submitted to CAA call for a Class 4 airport, as large as Candler field, with three 4,000-foot runways of concrete. More than 1,000 acres of land, lying south of Marietta about two miles and only 14 miles from Atlanta, have been optioned to the county. The site lies between the present Marietta-Atlanta highway and the nearly-completed super-highway, adjoining the property of Joe Thomas.

Purchase of land for the port will be financed by self-liquidating revenue certificates, Carmichael stated.

The proposed airport is not intended as a competition to any in the Atlanta area, but is one of several which government and aviation authorities say are needed to "encircle the metropolitan area."

Jack Gray, Atlanta airport

manager, has endorsed the project, along with Mayor LeCraw, the aviation committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Montgomery Knight, Tech aeronautics head, and Atlanta officials of the CAA. The Camp Gordon airport, now being speeded to completion in DeKalb county, and fields near Fairburn and near Gordon road in Fulton county, are others planned in connection with a comprehensive program to maintain Atlanta as the aviation center of the southeast.

Mayor L. M. Blair, for Marietta, and Carmichael, for Cobb county, revealed that plans were drawn some two months ago and have been tentatively approved.

They call for runways of 4,200, 4,300 and 4,500 feet in length—long enough for the largest planes—and 500 feet wide, of which 150 feet will be concrete.

Whether or not the port will be used by the Army Air Corps, for the civilian training program, or exclusively for commercial expansion is not definitely known and will largely depend on the decision of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Carmichael said.

Present funds of $40,000,000 allotted to CAA are exhausted and the availability of new funds is dependent on the action of congress.

The project calls for operation of the airport by Cobb county as a self-liquidating project under the Georgia revenue certificate act.

NEW TACTICS—Instead of establishing picket lines at the Allis-Chalmers plant in West Allis, Wis., where union workers walked out Wednesday, the strikers detailed men at the gates to make moving pictures of persons entering the plant. This unidentified striker went on duty at the employment office yesterday.

Strikers Make Movies of Men Entering Plant

No Picket Lines Formed; Defense Production Is Halted.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The hum of machines, until yesterday turning out implements of national defense, was missing today at the huge Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company plant where union production workers were on strike.

All shop departments remained closed. Apparently, no production men attempted to report for work. At each gate, a dozen members of the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union, which called the strike yesterday, were posted as observers. There were no picket lines. The neighborhood was quiet. Only a dozen west Allis policemen patrolled the factory area.

Shop foremen and superintendents, maintenance and powerhouse crews and office workers reported for duty. None was molested, but a few members of American Federation of Labor craft unions, under contract with the company, were jeered.

Movie cameramen posted by the strikers took pictures of numerous persons entering the gates.

A company spokesman said no conference between union and management representatives had been arranged.

The federal government and Governor Julius P. Heil took steps seeking a speedy settlement of the strike, which has halted work on $26,000,000 worth of defense orders.

AIR HUB BUSY. A greatly increased use of the Kansas City Municipal Air Terminal in 1940, with 143,537 passengers using it compared to 91,623 in 1939, has been disclosed by W. T. Brown, manager.

State Chairmen May Get More U. S. Patronage

Flynn Moves To Balance Sheet With Talmadge Forces.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—While recognizing ex-Governor Rivers as the Democratic National Committee man from Georgia, National Party Chairman Edward J. Flynn is prepared to balance the sheet with Talmadge forces in the state by giving to State Chairman Peters a greater voice in the distribution of federal patronage.

As a means of strengthening the various state Democratic organizations, Chairman Flynn, it was learned here today, soon will come forward as the sponsor of a plan for allocating to the state chairmen a larger amount of patronage than heretofore has been controlled by them. The allocation will be made at the expense of congressmen and senators who in the past have exercised the dominant influence in filling government offices in their respective states.

F. D. R. Satisfied.

President Roosevelt is said to have been consulted about the plan already and is reported to be ready to go along with it.

Chairman Flynn ended the dispute over the national committee posts in Georgia this week by announcing that he was recognizing the credentials of former Governor Rivers and Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price as committeeman and committeewoman, respectively. Counter claims for the posts had been made by Herman Talmadge, son of the new Governor, and Mrs. Fred Haye, of Toccoa, who had been named by Talmadge forces at the Macon state convention last fall after the formal election of Rivers and Mrs. Price at the Chicago national convention.

The action of Chairman Flynn was not intended as a slap at Talmadge forces in the state, but merely as recognizing the superior credentials of former Governor Rivers and Mrs. Price. As he put it, both were duly elected under procedure prescribed by rules of the national committee and cannot be upset without cause.

Plenty for Talmadge.

The new patronage policy to be inaugurated by Flynn, however, will more than make it up to the Talmadge forces. State Chairman Peters, who was personally selected for his present post by Governor Talmadge, will be allowed a free hand in filling a great deal of important state patronage—presumably without the necessity of consulting with members of the state congressional delegation.

The same practice would apply to all of the 48 states. It is Chairman Flynn's idea that only in this way can state organizations be strengthened in a manner to function more effectively with the national party organization in campaign years.

As applied to Georgia, the new Flynn program implies that the national party organization has accepted at their full face value assurances by Talmadge leaders of the willingness of the Talmadge administration to co-operate with the Roosevelt administration and is prepared to go along with the new state regime on everything—patronage included.

Boy, 2, Hit by Auto, Succumbs to Injuries
SWAINSBORO, Ga., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Emory Hugh Edelin, 4, died yesterday of injuries received when he ran into the path of an auto on route 80 near Graymont-Summit.

The accident was considered unavoidable, and no charges were made against T. H. Harper, of High Point, N. C., driver of the car. State Trooper Mattson said. The child was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edelin, of Summit, route 2. He is survived by a brother and two sisters.

Paul Kelly, Claire Owen Marry Ahead of Plans

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Farmer Paul Kelly, better known as Actor Kelly, returned today with his bride, Madeline Zwecker, better known as Actress Claire Owen, after a surprise pre-wedding wedding at Yuma, Ariz.

They said they were sitting in a restaurant here last night talking over previously announced plans to be married February 4, asked each other "why wait?" and then set out by automobile for Yuma. Kelly, who gave his age as 41, said in obtaining the license that he was a "farmer." The bride gave her age as 30.

104th Birthday Reached By Resident of Vidalia

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. VIDALIA, Ga., Jan. 23.—Prince Hatcher has come a long way. He has just reached his 104th birthday.

He's in good physical condition except for a heart ailment, which has kept him from lying down in the past 12 months. Instead, he sleeps sitting in a chair. Friends attribute Hatcher's heart trouble to the use of tobacco. He used it until he was 103.

New Zealand To Name Envoy to Washington

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Prime Minister Peter Fraser said today that New Zealand shortly would appoint a diplomatic representative to Washington whose status would be similar to that of Australia's minister, Richard G. Casey.

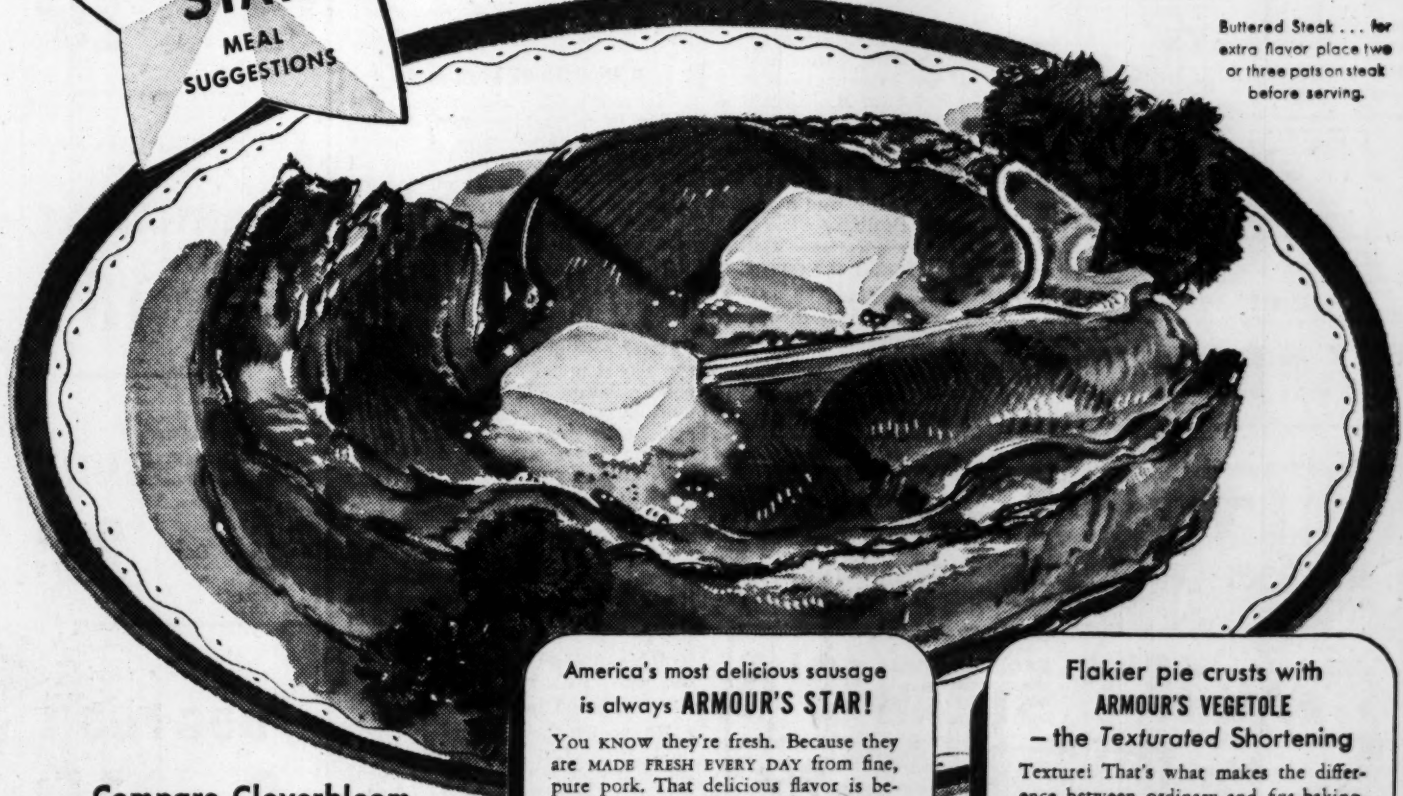

LET'S GO TO MARKET TOGETHER
Says Mrs. S. R. Dull
I wish we could go arm in arm together to your grocer to buy some flour. Maybe you would think you should get one kind for your cakes and another for your biscuits. But if you took my advice and bought White Lily, you would have the finest flour money can buy for all your baking purposes. After your first trial with White Lily, you would know why I have always endorsed this finer flour exclusively.

Legion To Rebuild Its Burned Home

Plans for rebuilding the burned sections of the American Legion home in Piedmont park were begun yesterday by Legion officials and representatives of an insurance company which had insured the building for $10,000, Frank Fling, commander of Post No. 1, said.

He announced the Post's weekly luncheon meeting will be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the Elks Club, 736 Peachtree street, and committee meetings will be held there pending reconstruction of the park home.

Fling said that Legionnaires of the post will discuss later fuller plans for rebuilding. Flames swept through the home Wednesday night, doing damage estimated at $15,000.

NEW JAYCEE HEAD.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Jan. 23.—Larry Tabor, assistant county health director, has been installed as president of the Thomasville Junior Chamber of Commerce to succeed D. R. "Happy" Joye.

Rayon Industry May Switch To Southern Pine

A new market for southern pine pulp—the rayon industry—is opening as a result of shortage of imported spruce wood pulp now used as the basic material for rayon cloth, Herbert W. Payne, director of the rayon division of the Textile Workers' Union of America, declared here yesterday.

The rayon industry would use in excess of 300,000,000 pounds of pine pulp each year, Payne estimated. He is in Atlanta to attend the first meeting of the TWUA board of directors ever held in the south. The meeting opens today at the Ansley hotel.

Supply Endangered.
"The war has raised the possibility of the spruce wood pulp supply being endangered and because of this increased activity has been begun to perfect a formula for making the southern pine pulp suitable for the rayon trade," Payne said. "I have no doubt this will be accomplished shortly because war and fear will intensify the development of the pine pulp, giving a new and permanent industry in the south."

Payne believes that with the final perfection of pine pulp as basic material for rayon, more of the rayon industry will expand into the south, and the industry must expand because rayon is rapidly supplementing real silk in the textile industry.

"Once the southern pulp is ready it will supplement spruce, because it will be better and will be cheaper, since there will be no importation charges," the director said.

Formerly cotton was used as the basic material for rayon and "it's still the best" but costs more than pulp. The shortage of supply from Europe will increase the use of cotton for rayon, thus benefiting the cotton farmer also, Payne declared.

Credit to Union.
Payne said there are 50,000 rayon workers and that 32,000 work under union agreements which provide for their health and insures them at least one week's vacation yearly with salary.

With the co-operation of the union, Dr. Alice Hamilton made a study of health conditions among the textile workers and found many of them suffering from exposure to carbon bisulphide which attacked the spinal structure of the workers and eventually softens the brain, making mental cases of the victims, Payne explained.

The doctor gave credit to the union for the study and as a result $2,500,000 was appropriated for the study and correction of the health traps. As a result, Payne said, workers today have better ventilation and improved equipment.

George Baldanzi, executive vice president of the TWUA, of New York, said the experiments in developing pine pulp for rayon use is a part of the national defense program, but would be a permanent new industry.

Buick Salesmen, Dealers Assemble
More than 400 Buick dealers and salesmen from the southeast met here yesterday as the guest of Tom Privette, zone sales manager for the Atlanta territory, for a one-day sales and advertising conference.

It was one of the largest gatherings of Buick men ever held in Atlanta. The meeting was in the city auditorium and opened with an address by W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager for the company, who also addressed by long-distance telephone 26 similar meetings held over the country.

Get your VITAMINS with BAMBY Bread

BAMBY puts back in its bread what the miller takes out of white flour.

Vitamin B₁ HEART OF THE WHEAT

The important health vitamin B-one, contained in the germ of wheat, is extracted from white flour in the process of milling.

Thus, the very element which scientists declare to be essential to good appetite, good digestion and the proper assimilation of starches has—until now—been lacking in all white bread.

Vitamin B₁ Restored

Through long years of research science has at last discovered how this precious vitamin B-one can be restored to white bread, in the baking.

A tasteless, colorless concentrate, quite as potent and effective as the natural vitamin extracted from the wheat kernel.

Now . . . each 16-oz. Bamby white loaf contains not less than 501 International Units of vitamin B-1—the same as 100% whole wheat bread.

NO INCREASE IN PRICE!

Dietitians and Doctors Recommend

Since vitamin B-one is not stored in the system, and not present in adequate quantity, in most foods taken into the system, doctors and dietitians advocate vitamin-fortified bread as an aid to health and well being of the human body.

Start serving your family Bamby Bread today, with every meal.

Loretta Young, Husband Arrange Work So They May Be in Same City

By Sheila Graham.
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—Loretta Young, the youngest-old star in the business—she is 28 and has been a star 13 years, blooms brightly on "The Lady From Cheyenne" set, and explains the whys and wherefores of her current private and professional bliss. It starts with my question, "Where is your husband?" "In New York," replies Loretta calmly. "But he'll be back very soon. We are fixing things so that we will be together most of the year. You see, he's a radio executive. And by great good luck he can work six months of the year in Hollywood. The other six months he has to be in New York. I have arranged my films to make two a year during the time my husband is here. The rest of the time we will be together in New York." Loretta is wise. Separation because of career—or any other reason, is not healthy for marriage—to judge by the many wrecks on this rock. Professionally, Loretta is in the happy state of the successful freelancer. "I get more money for two pictures a year than I did with six under contract to Twentieth Century-Fox," Loretta tells me. At the latter studio she earned $35,000 a year. Now she gets $50,000 per picture. "But best of all, I can choose my films. I don't have to make 12 bad pictures for every one that is good." Robert Preston is Miss Young's leading man. It's his first loan-out from Paramount. But his ecstatic grin is only 50 per cent due to working for Frank Lloyd. "I've never been so happy in my life," he crows. "I've been married two-and-a-half months." I hope you say the same, Bob, in two-and-a-half years.

Make the eyes shine and sparkle by daily bathing them, using an eyecup and a good eye lotion. This is an excellent relief for tired eyes. The lovely lady illustrating the use of the eyecup is Laraine Day, M-G-M star.

Average Person Needs Eye-Opener

By Winifred Ware.
If you are one of those persons, who bounce out of bed in the morning with wide-open, bright, shining eyes, feeling wonderful and ready to greet the world with a smile, don't read any further, for this is not for you. This is for the person who can't even wake up much less muster a smile; for the person who can't get the eyes open and who is utterly dependent upon an "eye-opener." We know just the preparation for this sleepy-eyed sleepy-head—an eye lotion. It does wonders for the eyes, in fact, for the whole system, particularly aiding the disposition and attitude of the average person in the morning. It's a wise man or woman who keeps a bottle of eye lotion and an eye cup on hand. However, we don't advise just any eye lotion. Any eye preparation definitely is one of which you must be absolutely sure, before using. Be very careful about using anything in the eyes, nothing at all unless it is something known to be good, effective, and harmless after long and continued use. The eye lotion we have found so good and have used so much is an excellent eye-opener, but that is only a beginning. Using it at intervals during the day will act as a pick-me-up, renew the sparkle, and refresh your whole being. It's particularly good to use the eye lotion as part of your toilet when making-up for dates and other gala occasions, for it gives the eyes a sparkle and a gleam which enhances your beauty. Again at night, get out the little cup and wash the eyes—it will help relieve nerve tension and make relaxation much easier, both of which encourage sound sleep. If you'll call me at this paper, I'll give you the name and price of this cooling and refreshing eye lotion. Write to Winifred Ware at The Constitution and enclose a stamped envelope if you live out of town.

Gathered Yoke Highlights Frock

If you like to hear people say "How pretty you look!" rather than just "How pretty your frock looks!"—this is the style for you. Lillian Mae has designed Pattern 4690 as a perfect background for your personality. Panels give slim, smart lines to both the front and the back skirt. The bodice buttons down to the waist—flower buttons would look delightful—and the feature of all is the yoke that's soft and gathered and very becoming—have it in self-fabric or highlight it in contrast. Your sleeves are short or long. Either rich silky jersey or a semi-sheer crepe would make a smart fabric choice. Pattern 4690 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1-8 yards 39-inch fabric. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae Pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number. The new 1941 Pattern Book by Lillian Mae is finished! So let Mr. Mailman bring the world of fashion to your doorstep! This colorful book brims over with easy-to-stitch outfits for every age; every hour. It shows original, distinctive designs in suits, ensembles, sportswear, afternoon and evening frocks and home styles. It brings news of fabrics and accessories. A valuable book to keep at home for easy reference, and its low cost is fifteen cents! Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

New Phrases Pep Up Your Conversation

A thrill to turn a delightful acquaintance into a warm friend! But chances for it are so brief in this bustling age—a street encounter, a moment between dances. The girl who can only say "yes" or "no" gets nowhere. What a different tale if you have a store of bright phrases, repartee. You make the most of your social contacts then. Meeting that interesting new man on the street, you say, smilingly, "How nice to see you." And, when he asks if he may walk your way, you reply with a twinkle, "Nothing ventured, nothing gained!" In all your social life, you get along more confidently by knowing a few friendly, gracious phrases. When you accept an invitation, you subtly flatter the giver with "There's nothing I'd rather do!" Greeting an unexpected caller, you make him warmly welcome with "Just the person I wanted to see!" Even a party where you don't know many people doesn't floor you. There's sure to be a fellow stranger to whom you can say, "Let's introduce ourselves before we become completely marooned." And in your more literary moments—giving a book review before your club or discussing a movie with a friend—a big help to know striking ways to say things: "A logically constructed plot, characters that are irresistibly compelling." In business, too, know the efficient phrases that will help you get a job, impress your employer: "I hear you have an opening in the bookkeeping department." "Thank you for the interview." Hundreds of such helpful phrases are given in our 40-page booklet, "1,500 Useful Phrases."

MY DAY: Inaugural Visitors Leave White House

By Eleanor Roosevelt.
WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—Yesterday was a day of leaving. Never has this house been as filled with young people as it was for this inauguration. Cots and cribs seemed to be in every room and the five youngest members of the household were really the ones who spread gaiety and life throughout the old house. On the whole, yesterday was fairly quiet. I received Mrs. E. J. Thill, of La Crosse, Wis., in the afternoon. She is "Mrs. National Consumer" for 1941, and I never saw anyone who enjoyed and profited more from a holiday. She told me of her two boys and I could see that she wished they had been with her to enjoy the many new experiences. I imagine this is a natural feeling, for it is always so much pleasanter when you can share whatever you are doing with people you love. Earlier in the afternoon I spent a short time with the superintendents of public schools and recreation of various cities who were invited to participate in a WPA education-recreation conference. At 4 o'clock I went to the ceremonies attending the dedication of the new annex for tuberculosis patients at Freedmen's hospital. The secretary of the interior, Mr. Ickes, turned the building over to Administrator Paul McNutt, who accepted it and promised to do his best to support the work of the hospital. Freedmen's hospital will need all the support which can be given it, for it is Howard University's training school for doctors. There is also a training school for nurses in connection with it. I am very anxious to see this hospital made valuable, not only because of the need it fills in serving the Negro population in the District of Columbia, but because of the great need for good doctors and nurses throughout the country to render service to our Negro population. There is need for preventive education among them, as well as for the early detection of the disease in any member of the family to safeguard the rest of it. The Dallas aviation school in Texas has an energetic advertising director. Like her brother, Mr. C. R. Smith, of American Airlines, Miss Flo Smith is full of ideas and is energetic about carrying them out. She writes me that she has started a movement in connection with the local British War Relief chapter. She collects tinfoil from all the children in the schools, and though little money is realized from the sale of it, so many of the youngsters are interested that they are spreading the word rapidly that Great Britain needs aid. She thinks it has stimulated a great deal of activity along other lines as well. Miss Smith suggests that this is one way that even the youngest child in our nation can take part in the aid being sent to England by the United States.

Remember Contribution For the Paralysis Fund

By Ida Jean Kain.
I wish you could meet some of the fine youngsters who have benefited from the Infantile Paralysis Fund. Then you wouldn't wonder how much good is accomplished by the money collected annually—or be tempted to view the drive as a political maneuver. You wouldn't even listen to such prejudiced rumors! I would like to tell you about one young woman. She is alert and pretty, has a good job, loves to work, and gets fun out of life. But if it hadn't been for your dimes and dollars, she might have been a helpless cripple, for at 17 she had infantile paralysis and both legs were so affected that she was unable to walk. Nevertheless, during the next two years she tried to find a job—there was nothing for her. Finally, she sought aid at an institution, receiving an allotment of the fund from the annual drive. As a result of physical therapy, some muscles which had been thought useless were made to function again. Certain others were trained to compensate for those which had been completely destroyed. At the same time, she was given vocational training. Today she can walk—she is lame, but she doesn't mind that! And she has a job! I was struck by the expression of pride and self-reliance in her face. Certainly it would not have been there except for the nation-wide response to this drive. Don't forget to help again this year. There are so many worthy causes that we have to budget our giving, but the infantile paralysis fund is one that should be included in your budget. Send your dime—or, if you can spare it, a dollar—whatever you can give will help to prevent some child from being crippled for life. How do you send your contributions? You can buy a button from the hotels, restaurants and theaters—all of these places have them on sale. Your children may bring the buttons home from school. Or, you can simply enclose your gift in an envelope and mail it to the White House, marked Infantile Paralysis Fund. Since half of all funds collected are used in the locality in which they are raised, your address should be enclosed. The other 50 per cent is used for research and to fight epidemics.

Proper Diet Cleans The Teeth, Says Doctor

By Dr. William Brady.
A supply ship from Capetown visited the lonely South Atlantic island Tristan da Cunha in 1932. Aboard was a dental inspector, the president of the Cape Province Dental Society. This expert examined the teeth of 156 of the inhabitants during the two days' visit. He found 131 persons, ranging in age from a few months to 92 years, with teeth entirely free from decay. Now the islanders do not subsist on rough food particularly. The staples of their diet are precisely the foods we try to persuade people in America to eat and to feed their children—milk, eggs, potatoes, fish, and such fresh vegetables and fruits as the inhabitants can grow on the sparse soil. They use some refined flour, tea and other "groceries," to be sure, but only for short periods when a supply ship arrives from the mainland. They depend on whole grain cereals the year round, and they frugally consume the entire grain, not just the ghost of it as we do in America. Finally, as the inspector who examined the extraordinarily fine teeth of these people observed—"In no case did the examiners find an islander who had ever cleaned (brushed) his teeth."

The parenthetical word brush is mine—that is what the examiner meant, but in fact they clean their teeth every time they eat, clean them as nature intended, with natural foods, such as vegetables, fruits, grains, during the process of chewing. Too many dentists take their views ready-made by certain interests, and these superficially educated dentists have a hackneyed answer for the Tristan da Cunha evidence. They shrug mincingly and imply that we in this country are much too highly cultured or something to return to the primitive food of our early ancestors or the diet of the savage, so we must brush our teeth and massage our gums or face social ostracism. That is a snobbish, blanket-blinded snobbery of the sort we would expect from pretentious little men who call themselves "Doctors" without being physicians at all. I don't brush my teeth, and I'll clash 'em with those of any dentist or any one else of my age who believes tooth brushing is worth his time. I'll wager a reasonable sum—to be paid to charity—that my mouth is as clean and wholesome as the mouth of any mature adult who brushes his teeth regularly. The chewing of vegetables, especially such fresh vegetables as may be good to eat raw, such as celery, lettuce, carrots, turnips, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers, onions and onion tops, not only keeps the teeth as clean as possible but massages the gums far more thoroughly and effectively than any artificial maneuver contrived by the dentist. Both fresh vegetables and fruits, moreover, supply what it takes to build and maintain healthy gums and teeth, that is, minerals and vitamins—except vitamin D.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
What to Eat and Why.
What can't be helpful to many readers if you give us a series of articles on food and nutrition, just now this seems an important subject. (A. S. C.)
Answer—Perhaps a little later. The subject is fairly well covered in the red book—Feeders Digest. For copy send 25 cents and 1-ct. stamped envelope bearing your address.
Crowned and Uncrowned.
Two bits and stamped, addressed envelope enclosed is for "Save Your Teeth." I hope the booklet tells about those crowned and uncrowned devitalized teeth that all the M. D.'s regard as a "snake in the grass." (H. A. S.)
Answer—If "Save Your Teeth" doesn't, the new monograph on "Pyorrhea" does. I am an M. D. who does not regard all pulpless teeth as a menace. For copy of "Pyorrhea," send a stamped envelope bearing your address.
Hernia.
I would like information concerning the injection method of treating hernia. Recently sustained right sided hernia. (A. W.)
Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for monograph on Hernia.

Administration Key Bills Get Swift Approval

Measures To Get Second Reading Today; Debate Starts Tomorrow.

Majority of the administration's key bills before the house met with swift approval at the hands of the Committee on the State of the Republic yesterday and will come up for their second reading today. Debate on the bills begins tomorrow.

Meanwhile, representatives filled the clerk's desk with new bills, including an additional one providing for the substitution of a state prison farm superintendent for the Board of Penal Corrections. The new bill would prevent the commissioner from hiring free labor except when absolutely necessary and make all hiring and firing in the department subject to the Governor's approval.

Consideration of five administration bills was deferred by the committee until a later date, but quick approval was given others. Action was postponed on the three measures creating the office of state superintendent of prison farms; the amendment to the fuel tax act that would repeal the 1 per cent allowance granted distributors to cover collection costs; and the bill to give the Governor power to suspend the state treasurer and comptroller general under certain conditions. Introduction of the last measure brought cries of "dictator" from the opposition.

Unanimous consent and speedy action was given the measure allowing the Governor to switch surplus appropriations from one department to another at the end of each quarter.

Introduction of that bill also brought charges of dictatorial ambitions on the part of Talmadge.

Speaking for it before the committee yesterday, Floor Leader Culpepper, of Fayette, announced that passage of the measure was the solution to Georgia's financial troubles, and, as for charges of dictatorship, the powers it granted the Governor expired in 1942.

"You are turning it over to the Governor," he said, "but you've got to trust somebody. I doubt the wisdom of trusting every man who occupies the executive office with this power, but not Gene Talmadge."

Other measures that received the committee's favorable report were:

The bill substituting a family driver's license for individual licenses.

The bill recreating the State Highway Board, cutting the salaries of its chairman and members. It was approved shortly after Lint Miller, the present board chairman, told the committee the reasons for his refusal to resign. The ouster of Miller is one of the measure's main objects.

The bill repealing the act setting up the office of supervisor of purchases, and re-establishing the job within the executive department.

The bill asking for the abolition of the State Licensing Board for Contractors.

The bill regulating the granting of pardons and conditional paroles.

The bill abolishing the Georgia Radio Commission and turning WGST over to the Board of Regents as trustee for Georgia Tech.

The bills creating new state housing and hospital authorities and measures cutting salaries of members of the Public Service Commission, the secretary of state, the state treasurer and state school superintendent.

The bill introduced yesterday setting up a state superintendent of prison farms in place of the Board of Penal Corrections was drawn after the board met and voted itself out of existence.

More specific than a somewhat similar bill introduced last week, it requires quarterly reports to the governor from the superintendent on the progress of the department, prevents the hiring and firing of employees without the governor's consent, would pay the superintendent a $5,000 annual salary and make other salaries subject to the governor's approval, would prevent the operation of any business in competition with private industry, and provides that no free labor can be employed by the agency except "foremen, electricians and necessary professional employees."

Also introduced was a bill to extend the emergency act under which the Milk Control Board now operates until January, 1946. A bill introduced earlier would re-establish the board after the expiration of the existing act, next August 15.

The Gentleman--

From Union... From Colquitt... From Meriwether

Representative C. E. Rich, of Union.

Representative C. E. Rich is in the house for his first time with the idea of promoting measures which will better Union county, and Blairsville, whose citizens sent him to the Georgia general assembly. He wants to propose a commissioners bill which will cause the creation of a board of county commissioners and which will ultimately result in better roads and more substantial revenues for his section.

Rich is a school bus driver and has come to know the state highway patrolmen well through their contacts with the school bus patrol. The 32-year-old legislator is in favor of the public safety department.

A judge of the city court of Colquitt, 46-year-old Senator J. A. Drake, of the 8th district, is in the upper body to "pass any necessary laws for promoting national defense." Engaged in the peanut business primarily, the senator also sells fertilizer, pecans, and all farm products.

He has a brother in the house and the two together want to promote two defunct measures. One is the abolition of poll tax but not by so doing to rob the schools of one of their income sources. For, even though this tax would be killed, still another would arise which would more than compensate for the school loss.

Economy is the keynote of every thought which Representative G. C. Thompson brought to this general assembly session. He's opposed to any increase in taxes and is interested in administration bills with particular enthusiasm for several local bills.

An old-time politician and office-holder is this freshman in the house. He has served as Manchester city attorney, member of the board of trustees of the Manchester schools, and conciliation attorney for Meriwether county. He is 51 years old and has two children.

Senate Speeds Talmadge Bills To Early Vote

Measures Abolishing State Offices Move on Well-Oiled Machinery.

Administration bills in the state senate were on the way to a third reading and an early vote yesterday as committees turned them loose en masse with the "go ahead" signal.

Political observers were quick to see the administration machinery in the senate is well-oiled and that there probably will be no waste of time in rushing the Talmadge-endorsed legislation through the upper house.

The bills are expected to be placed on third reading today.

The committees had charge of administration bills—Committee on the State of the Republic, of which Senator J. H. Clark is chairman, and Committee on Constitution Amendments, headed by Senator Kelly Holt.

The committees were in session for only a short time before they came in with favorable reports.

Speed Is Keynote.
Senate administrationists pressed for speed on measures aimed at executing the campaign promises of Talmadge.

Two specifically asked by Talmadge were a constitution amendment to extend the terms of Governor and constitutional officers from two to four years, and a new drivers' license bill to reduce the cost of permits for dependents in a family group from $1 to 25 cents a year. The head of the family still would pay $1.

Also reported favorably was an administration proposal to empower the governor to suspend the treasurer and comptroller general under certain circumstances.

To suspend them, he would have to have "trustworthy information" that they had absconded or were guilty of conduct plainly violative of their duties or were negligent in duty.

To Abolish State Boards.
A batch of abolition measures received favorable committee reports.

One would abolish the State Hospital Authority, then recreate it.

Another would abolish the State Housing Authority, then recreate it, thus cutting the chairmanship from the State Treasurer George Hamilton.

Still another would abolish the Board of Penal Corrections and put the penal system business administration under a superintendent of prison farms at $5,000 a year.

Abolition of the State Radio Commission is the aim of another, and one bill seeks abolition of the Contractors' Licensing Board, both created in the Rivers' regime.

Salary Slashes.
Also recommended for adoption were bills to slash the salaries of treasurer, comptroller general, school superintendent from $6,000 to $5,000 a year, and members of the Public Service Commission $100 a month. The chairman by $25 a month.

By a vote of 40 to 0, the senate yesterday adopted a resolution calling for two committees on education and public schools.

It provided that the present committee on education and public schools, headed by Senator H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards, would constitute the first group, to be known as Committee No. 1, and that another committee should be named and designated No. 2.

Only one bill was introduced in the senate yesterday.

It was a local bill submitted by Senator G. N. Coker, of the 39th, and providing for an amendment to the act creating the new charter for the Town of Canton by changing the official designation of the municipality from "Town of Canton" to "City of Canton." It was referred to the Committee on Municipal Government.

Lookout Mountain Circuit Proposed

Establishment of a new judicial circuit in north Georgia, to be known as the Lookout Mountain Circuit, was proposed in a bill introduced in the legislature yesterday.

Requested by Representatives John L. Mavity and E. H. Kelly, of Walker, W. A. McClure, of Catosa and Elbert Forrester, of Dade, it would include those counties.

Visitors Given Privileges Of Floor by Senate
The senate extended privileges of the floor yesterday to several visitors, including Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Majors, of Moultrie, and Mrs. B. H. Howard, publisher and editor of Dawson county.

Others who were invited to the floor included James H. Paschall, solicitor general of the Cherokee judicial circuit; Mrs. John C. Beasley, of Greenville, wife of the new state superintendent of banking, and Mrs. J. H. Clark, of Ringgold.

Peek Rewards Are Shared by Seven Persons

Wife of Lewis Turner Gets $400, Minus Deductions.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 23.—Mrs. Lewis Turner, of near Carrollton, wife of the convict who turned state's evidence at the Peek murder trials here last fall, has received $400 of the reward money offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those guilty of the dual murders, John T. LeCroy, clerk of Cobb superior court, revealed today.

LeCroy said an order for payment of the $1,100 reward money was signed January 4 by Judge J. H. Hawkins, of Marietta. The money was posted by C. M. Head, Cobb commissioner, and by the state, each posting $500. George McMillan, Cobb sheriff at the time, posted $100. B. D. Kilgore, Carroll sheriff, had reportedly offered a $100 reward, but this sum was never paid in, LeCroy said.

Sharing in the money, besides Mrs. Turner, were: Lewis Turner, $200; Hamp Riggs, of Carrollton, $75; Leander Leach, $100; Henry McGuire, $150; Charles Steele, $50; W. S. Gilland, $125.

Clerk LeCroy said they were "all witnesses in the case."

A stipulation when the rewards were posted was that no officer working on the case could share in the money. Recommendations for payment of the money were made by McMillan, the former Cobb sheriff; E. C. Ward, Cobb policeman, and Captain A. L. Hutchins, of the State Bureau of Identification, all of whom worked on the case.

LeCroy said Mrs. Turner received a net amount of $299.50, after deducting $80 and $20.50 paid out by Cobb officials as costs in the case. The checks, LeCroy said, were turned over to officers who worked on the case for distribution.

Lewis Turner received a sentence of one to three years for complicity in the murders of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed Peek, of Atlanta, in June, 1938. Bill Chappell, son of Carroll County Commissioner Hamp Chappell, was given a life imprisonment, as were also Jason Clark, Carroll convict, and John Holsombeck, resident of the Carroll almshouse.

Laundrymen Vichy To Let Admit 'Saving' Japan Mediate On Water Bills Siamese War

Operators Testify They Entered Agreement With Inspector.

Two Atlanta laundry operators testified yesterday they entered into an agreement with Clarence Thompson, city water meter inspector, to defraud the city of water over a period of years.

First witness was Thompson's trial was begun before Judge E. E. Pomeroy was Ben I. Tessler, who swore he paid Thompson approximately $17.50 a month to "save on his water bill." The other laundryman was Sidney Goldstein, who testified he paid from $18 to $43 a month to "save" on the water bills at his laundry on Edgewood avenue.

H. L. Scott, a filling station operator, is the third state witness scheduled to be called on the stand today or tomorrow.

With Thompson sitting quietly by, H. A. Allan, his attorney, launched an exhaustive attack on the testimony of each witness called by Assistant Solicitor General E. E. Andrews for the prosecution. Allen cross-examined every witness at length, and drew from Tessler and Goldstein that they have not been indicted in connection with the case.

Both Tessler and Goldstein swore that Thompson, a veteran of the city water department, approached them with a plan for reducing their water bills. They said he was to get one-half of the amount he saved them and that he collected monthly.

Olis Harris, foreman of the water meter repair shop, qualified as an expert to demonstrate to the jury he could run any water meter back 1,000 cubic feet in less than one minute. He described all possible ways of tampering with meters and added that many Atlanta meters were not sealed except by special orders. Blaine Walker, of the water department, testified on the water bills of the two laundrymen.

Thompson is on trial on a three-count indictment charging he defrauded the city of more than 2,000,000 cubic feet of water valued at approximately $2,200 over a period of about three years. The offenses charged are misdemeanors, punishable upon conviction with maximum sentences of one year on public works, six months in jail and a $1,000 fine on each count.

Minister in Gainesville To Be Ordained Saturday

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 23.—The Rev. Edward Hendree Harrison, of Grace Episcopal church, will be advanced to the priesthood by the Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, bishop of the Diocese of Atlanta, at an ordination and holy communion service at Grace church at 10:30 o'clock, E. S. T., Saturday morning.

Mr. Harrison, who was ordained at the diocese at St. Philip's Cathedral June 23 as a candidate from St. Luke's church, Atlanta, will be presented by the Rev. Duncan M. Hobart, of the Church of the Epiphany, Atlanta. The preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. John Moore Walker, of St. Luke's.

Livestock Short Course Is Offered for Farmers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

TIFFIN, Ga., Jan. 23.—Georgia farmers will have an opportunity to study the best methods of raising beef cattle and hogs in a four-day course to be given at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College February 11-14.

Farmers taking the course will study the economic and marketing aspects of livestock raising as well as the best practices in breeding, feeding and controlling diseases. Also special instruction will be given in the development of pastures and a year-round hogging off program.

Move To Exclude Possible U. S. Intervention Is Seen.

VICHY, France, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Marshal Petain's government announced tonight it had accepted the offer of Japan to mediate in the four months' Asiatic border conflict which has led to large-scale invasion of French Indo-China by Thailand's army, air bombing of cities on both sides and a pitched naval battle.

An authoritative source said that back of Vichy's readiness to accept Japan's good offices was a German "suggestion" which sprang from a desire to exclude any possibility of United States intervention. French colonial leaders were said to have pressed for an invitation to Washington to mediate; the turn to Tokyo was described as intended to forestall this.

Tokyo's formal offer of mediation was made January 21, the Vichy announcement said, and was accepted "in view of the existing friendly relations between France and Japan." Charles Arsene Henry, ambassador to Tokyo, was entrusted with arranging details.

The reference to "existing friendly relations" was at variance with charges made by informed French sources on several occasions that Japan was supporting Thailand in the border situation.

Vichy's action marks another step in the extension of Japan's influence over southeastern Asia.

U. S. Is Urging Bulgarians To Resist -- Turks Suggest Colonel Donovan Went to Sofia for This Purpose.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Some Turkish newspapers expressed the opinion today that the United States might be urging Bulgaria to resist any Axis demands that might spread the war, and suggested that it was for this reason that Colonel William J. Donovan had gone to Sofia.

Said Iskand: "The Axis would never have the courage to open a new front in the Balkans if they were sure that the Balkan countries all intended to defend their homelands. There is no doubt that Donovan's visit to Bulgaria is made for more than just to gather information. He must also have carried a message to King Boris not to yield to Axis provocation. The one road to safety for Bulgaria is resistance. All the Balkans and Britain and even the United States are behind Bulgaria if she resists."

(Informed Bulgarian sources expressed the belief that Colonel Donovan had made a point of the position of the United States as a friend of small nations, but that Bulgaria feels herself too weak for any resistance should an emergency arise.)

Polio Victim, on Mend, Talks for Fund Drive

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Jan. 23.—When Earl Staples, Carroll county fighting-paralysis fund chairman, visits the schools in an appeal for contributions a living example of Warm Springs Foundation's benefits to all classes is with him. Fred Smith, 15-year-old son of a tenant farmer near Temple, has spent periods totaling a year at Warm Springs since he was stricken with infantile paralysis. Well on the mend, he makes enthusiastic talks for the drive.

The Army IN GEORGIA

The Fourth Division at Fort Benning is busy with preparations for the reception of more than 5,000 selective service men in a five-day period starting February 10. This large influx will bring the division to full strength for the first time since it was reactivated early last summer.

It is expected that the selectees will come from the Second Corps Area, which has headquarters in New York. They will be sent from reception centers where they will have been classified and provided with the full allowance of clothing and individual equipment. The Fort Benning detrainment point will be at Ochlocknee, near Fourth Division headquarters.

TRAINING SCHOOL PLANNED FOR BENNING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Army plans for training several thousand draftees and other enlisted men and commissioned officers for the expanding land forces were announced today by Secretary Stimson.

Beginning next July 1, Mr. Stimson said, 200 officers would be trained at the infantry school, Fort Benning, Ga.; 50 at the cavalry school, Fort Riley, Kan.; 125 at the field artillery school, Fort Sill, Okla., and 125 at the coast artillery school, Fort Monroe, Va.

Candidates must have had at least six months of active field service and three months of service remaining.

14 GEORGIA DRAFTEES TO BE INDUCTED

Fourteen Georgia draftees will be inducted into the Army today at Fort McPherson, completing the state's January quota of 1,992 men.

Fulton county's share of the call, 331 men, was filled on schedule. Of this number 212 whites and 48 Negroes were sworn in at the local Army post yesterday.

The state's February quota has not yet been announced, but it is expected to consist largely of Negroes. So far facilities for training Negroes has been limited, but with the construction of housing units, more Negroes can be accepted.

U. S. Drifting Into War, Says Dr. Hutchins

Educator Says Country Not Prepared for Entering Conflict.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, asserted tonight that he believed "the American people are about to commit suicide" by drifting into a war for which they are "morally and intellectually unprepared."

"The conclusion is inescapable," he said, "that the President is reconciled to active military intervention if such intervention is needed to defeat the Axis in this war."

Support F. D. R.

"I have supported Mr. Roosevelt since he first went to the White House. I have never questioned his integrity or his good will. But under the pressure of great responsibilities, in the heat of controversy, in the international game of bluff, the President's speeches and recommendations are committing us to obligations abroad which we cannot perform."

"The effort to perform them will prevent the achievement of the aims for which the President stands at home."

Cites Utterances.

The 42-year-old educator, speaking on an unsponsored radio program over the National Broadcasting Company's Red network, cited recent utterances of President Roosevelt defining the American goal as "a world founded on freedom of speech, freedom of worship, and freedom from want, and freedom from fear," and added:

"I hold that the United States can better serve suffering humanity everywhere by staying out of the wars in Europe and Asia."

"We used to hear of 'all aid short of war,'" he continued in the prepared text of his address, "his first in eight years dealing with other than educational subjects."

Words Missing.

"The words 'short of war' are ominously missing from the President's recent speeches. The lend bill contains provisions that we should have regarded as acts of war up to last week."

Dr. Hutchins emphasized that in this, his "first public questioning" of President Roosevelt, he was speaking "simply as an American citizen, and that he wished to dissociate himself from 'all Nazis, Fascists and appeasers,'" because "I regard the doctrine of all totalitarian regimes as wrong in theory, evil in execution and incompatible with the rights of man."

Dr. Hutchins said he wished to dissociate himself from those who want us to stay out of war to save our own skins or our own property. National selfishness should not determine national policy."

125 Teachers At Chicago For Aid to Britain

Faculty Members Urge Passage of the 'Lend-Lease' Bill.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(UP)—One hundred and twenty-five members of the University of Chicago faculty tonight issued a statement urging immediate enactment of the "lend-lease" bill which they said would empower President Roosevelt "to take all necessary measures to prevent the national disaster which threatens us as long as Hitler remains undefeated."

The statement was released less than one hour before Robert Maynard Hutchins, the university president, was scheduled to deliver a nationwide radio address questioning President Roosevelt's policies.

The signers of the statement included Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, philosophy of law professor, who has been closely associated with Hutchins in educational movements; Dr. Quincy Wright, an authority on international law; Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of humanities; William H. Spencer, dean of the school of business; Leon P. Smith, dean of the undergraduate college; and Harry A. Bigelow, dean emeritus of the law school.

Show Their Colors.

Dr. Mary B. Gilson, assistant professor of economics, who helped circulate the statement, said a similar one had been released at Princeton University a month ago and caused herself and other members of the faculty "to show their colors."

"Many Americans have not yet fully realized how gravely a Hitler victory would affect our destiny," the statement said. "They fail to see that one of the strongest weapons of the Nazis has always been to lull their respective victims into a false sense of security. They refuse to realize that should we permit Britain to perish, the Nazi tyranny would threaten our world, too. The Nazis know that the triumph of Fascism remains incomplete as long as the existence of a free America can give the lie to Hitler's boast that democracy is dead."

"At present the singlehanded but valiant effort of Great Britain is all that stands between us and the Nazi avalanche. If we allow this British bulwark to fall, America will face the terrible prospect of being forced to fight alone against the totalitarian onslaught which will draw its strength from the harnessed resources of the rest of the world."

Lip Service to U. S.

"There are Americans who, though paying lip service to national defense, in fact, practice a policy of appeasement by telling us that the war is no concern of ours, and that we are not threatened by anything that happens beyond our shores. But with Britain beaten, a war for self-preservation will be forced on an isolated America at a moment best suited to the destructive will of the enemy...."

"America today still has a choice. A relatively brief period of concentrated effort will spare us endless and perhaps futile agony.... In order to keep war from our shores, to insure the survival of America as a free nation... we must by all means in our power prevent a Nazi victory."

"Therefore, we urge the immediate enactment of house bill 1776, which will empower our democratically elected chief executive to take all necessary measures to prevent the national disaster which threatens us as long as Hitler remains undefeated."

YALE EX-PRESIDENT ATTACKS AXIS AIMS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Axis victory would end American business "as we know it," Dr. James Rowland Angell, retired president of Yale, declared tonight, adding that, even if the democracies won, its pattern would be so altered as to be hardly recognizable.

"If the totalitarian states win the war, business as we know it is assuredly done," Angell told the Connecticut Bankers' Association. "Individual enterprise will have neither meaning nor existence."

"Even if the democracies win, as I believe they ultimately will," he continued, "the kind of business activity that built our great commercial and industrial system will be so modified as hardly to be recognizable."

Haile Selassie Is in Ethiopia Leading Revolt

Celebrated Return by Hoisting Flag of House of Judah.

CAIRO, Friday, Jan. 24.—(UP)—Haile Selassie, ruler of Ethiopia, who was ousted by the Italian conquest, entered his country January 15 and is leading a revolt against the Italians with British co-operation, it was announced officially early today.

As soon as Haile Selassie crossed the frontier from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, he celebrated his return to the kingdom of the King of Kings by hoisting the red, green and gold flag of the House of Judah.

(In London last Tuesday Prime Minister Winston Churchill hinted that great events were in the making in east Africa, where British forces are advancing both from the west and south against Italian East Africa (Ethiopia and Eritrea). Haile Selassie has been in Africa for several months.)

Canada Retakes Escaped Germans

AN EAST CANADIAN PORT, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Peter Schiering, a 30-year-old German airman, the second of two German prisoners who escaped yesterday while hundreds of captives were being transferred from a ship to a train, was recaptured by city police here today.

The other, Helmut Brueckmann, was taken early today when he sought lodging at a rooming house.

A woman telephoned police headquarters that she had seen a man changing clothes behind a reservoir, and officers in a radio-equipped car found Schiering dressed in an old pair of overalls, an ordinary civilian cap, but his feet still encased in his airman's boots.

London's Skies Free of Raiders

LONDON, Jan. 24 (Friday)—(AP)—London early today seemed due for the fourth night in succession without an air raid, with thick weather over the Dover strait apparently holding German bombers to the ground.

The dark skies were free of Axis raiders up to just before midnight.

12 Cargo Ships Sold to British For $2,779,600

Maritime Commission Rejects Bid for 20 Laid-Up Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Sale of 12 cargo vessels from its laid-up fleet to British shipping interests was announced today by the Maritime Commission.

The British will pay $2,779,600 for the 12 vessels whose deadweight tonnage totals 107,061.

The British had bid $4,611,650 for 20 ships, but this was rejected.

Today's sale increased to 49 the number of ships the commission has sold to the British from its laid-up fleet.

In addition to the commission's sales, it has authorized the sale to the British by private American operators of 146 ships of all types since the outbreak of the war.

Today, the commission approved applications for the transfer to British registry of three American-owned vessels.

Five of the vessels upon which the British submitted bids were sold to the United States Lines Company of New York city for $1,328,384. The five vessels total 44,228 deadweight tons.

Steel, Oil, Arms Targets Blasted At Duesseldorf

British Dump Bombs Through Cloud Gaps Over Reich.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—British planes again have taken up the winter attack on German industrial centers, the air ministry disclosed today, bombing steel, oil and munitions targets at Duesseldorf through cloud gaps for two and one-half hours overnight.

This "concentrated though medium" raid, made in bad weather, was the twenty-first on the Duesseldorf area.

Despite the clouds, official sources said, the pilots could see the spread of fires set by their incendiary and high explosive bombs, and "the sky glowed with suffused and reflected light."

"A sudden opening came in the clouds at the very moment of one particularly loud explosion, and the crew of one aircraft saw debris thrown high in the air," the official account related.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire failed to prevent any of the planes from reaching their objectives, it was stated. (Berlin's account of raids in "western Germany" said a few bombs were dropped by a few planes, causing unimportant damage to private property and starting small fires.)

Other sections of the Ruhr and two airdromes in German-occupied territory also were attacked, the air ministry said.

Road Patrol Told To Help Public

Georgia's State Highway Patrol will be ordered to "help the public as much as possible" during the administration of Governor Talmadge.

In announcing this policy yesterday, the chief executive said he was extending a hearty invitation for tourists to come to Georgia.

"I want the patrolmen to put off making arrests and cases until the last," he asserted.

"I'll say this to the tourists," he continued, "if any state patrolman attempts to act discourteous or hijack them, they can call up Talmadge and I'll see that he's fired."

Indecision, Confusion

Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, placed his finger squarely upon the crux of the controversy over aid to Britain in a radio address refuting Joseph P. Kennedy when he said "It is unlike his great genius and his striking career of action for him now to preach indecision to a people whom he should be warning every minute of the day and night, and whom he should be counseling to bold, daring, vigorous action."

The isolationists, other than those who counsel absolute abandonment of Britain—Lindbergh, Browder and Marcantonio—have contributed not a whit to clarification of the public attitude. Their entire plea is based upon indecision and confusion within their own minds and a questioning of the grant of powers to the President while admitting the necessity for the concentration of power.

The quaverers admit the necessity of aid for Britain. Almost to a man they have demanded concentration of power and mobilization of industrial and labor resources. And they have yet to advance a valid reason for their opposition to the lend-lease bill. The best they can do is to propose an alternative of a gift of billions to Great Britain, which would accomplish the purpose desired yet which would violate one of the main arguments they advance—that America is asked to underwrite a British victory without control of the aftermath of that victory. Confusion upon confusion thrice confounded!

America cannot see Britain defeated. Upon that, the nation is agreed. The sole argument in congress rests upon the method. The nation is agreed that the method can only be an extraordinary grant of power to the President. Even foes agree on this basic fact. It has not been shown yet, despite the scores of extraordinary powers granted the President in this crisis must trust one man. That man is the President.

"We might as well make it a gift; we'll never be paid," says a senate debater on aid to Britain. Besides, double-entry bookkeeping is so complicated, on a cuff.

Rumanian Mystery

Like many another European event of recent years, the riots of Rumania lead along many paths of interesting conjecture. Masked as they are by the strictest censorship, the riots could be the outgrowth of any number of objectives or conditions.

In the order of probability, here they are:

(1)—Nazi-fomented to provide an excuse for full military occupation of the country. This possibly would be necessary as an adequate explanation to Russia.

(2)—Russian-fomented to hamper German operation in the Balkans and as a warning to Berlin that the end of the trail has been reached in so far as territorial acquisitions in that part of the world are concerned.

(3)—As a result of nationalist sentiment among the Rumanian Iron Guard. This organization has been termed pro-Nazi, yet actually can only be termed pro-Rumanian. Within the organization itself there are pro-Nazi and pro-Communist factions, one the "Codreanu Communist" group and the other the elements led by Horia Sima, who is Antonescu's vice premier and highly acceptable to the Nazis.

(4)—As a result of economic unrest and food shortages. Similar trouble has been hinted in other Nazi-occupied countries. The difference is that in Rumania there remains an organized vehicle for resistance.

(5)—Unlikely cause is that Hungarian revisionists seek civil turmoil which would regain for that country the part of southern Transylvania still held by Rumania.

(6)—Through machinations of British secret agents. This also is unlikely, and any British activity undoubtedly would tend more to the direction of oil field and transportation sabotage.

These are the possibilities. The true meaning probably will not be known until the end of the war, and it is possible even then it will not be discovered. One thing could be said with certainty—the riots were not spontaneous.

We can remember well when "billion" was no more than a congressman with a cold, saying "million."

Banana Launchings

Hemisphere solidarity will be knitted considerably to a new theme song devised by the Maritime Commission: "Yes, We Have Plenty of Bananas." As a matter of fact, bananas may put Helen of Troy to shame, for her face launched but a thousand ships, while bananas may launch untold thousands in the years to come.

To some, the story that the luscious fruit will be used to launch ships may come as a complete surprise, but all who know the skid ratio of banana skins will understand the advantages to be obtained by the use of seven thousand pounds of the grandpapa of all slippery surfaces.

The commission press bureau succinctly reports that "The objective of a launching is for the vessel to slide promptly from dry land into deep water. For this purpose, juicy bananas have been found an efficient substitute for launching grease." What makes this all the more remarkable is the fact that the ship scheduled to skid along the banana trail has been built in a Beaumont shipyard, hard by the great oil fields of Texas.

But it is all in the interest of hemisphere solidarity, the commission asserts. Banana oil!

The bread ration in Madrid has been reduced for the rich. This is bad, since the poor presumably are eating the cake.

Optimistic Dietician

Colonel Albert P. Clark, head of the Fort Lewis Base hospital, has declared that he could take 5,000 men of the drafted army and, by feeding them a specially prepared diet, within six months have a force of "supermen" absolutely unbeatable.

Colonel Clark must have been reading the Siegel-Shuster comic strip. If he will just capitalize his designation, and promise 5,000 supermen then he'll really have something.

But, outside of fiction, whether written or drawn, the good colonel's theory seems to more than border on the optimistic. Probably his specially fed recruits would surpass the average. More minerals and vitamins, as he suggests, in the diet should have desirable results on stamina, strength, alertness and courage.

However, Dr. Clark says his proteges would be men "who would fight with rocks and bare fists if they lost their weapons."

Unfortunately, modern wars are not fought with rocks and bare fists.

The great radio war, too, has its refugees. Like Jeanie, whom we have kindly taken into our lives.

No Depression Indicated

The United States Treasury Department received $155,102,087 more, in December, 1940, by internal revenue collections, than in December, 1939. The total for December, 1940, was $554,095,220.

Principal increases, it is reported, came from corporation income tax, individual income tax, levies on liquor, gasoline, automobiles, cigarettes and admissions.

When a nation is gaining so rapidly in income tax payments and in taxes on luxuries which can, after all, only be classed as luxuries, there is no reason to worry about the economic condition. Times can't be very bad when the nation, as a whole, is buying more liquor, gasoline, automobiles, cigarettes, etc.

Cairo advises tell of the capture of a gallant Italian officer, found in a barrel in a bakery. Which of course recalls the days when knight-hood was in flour.

What the Duce could use, at this juncture, is one consecutive victory.

Editorial Symposium

SENATOR WHEELER IS REBUKED

Senator Wheeler: "The New Deal's triple-A foreign policy—it will plow under every fourth American boy."

President Roosevelt: "I regard that as the most untruthful, most dastardly and unpatriotic thing that has ever been said. That really is the rottenest thing that has been said in public life in my generation."

The quotes are from the NEW YORK DAILY NEWS editorial, which goes on to say that "Senator Wheeler, in opposing the lend-lease bill, may be misguided, acting from false information. . . . But nobody can convince us that Burton K. Wheeler is unpatriotic." And the HARTFORD COURANT suggests that "Were the President confident of the outcome of the policy . . . he probably would find no occasion to condemn Senator Wheeler so roundly as he has. His withering comment . . . only emphasizes that the implications of his policy are more shrouded in uncertainty, more cloaked in risk than he likes to think."

At the same time, the ST. PAUL DISPATCH feels "President Roosevelt was entirely justified in the resentment he expressed" and characterizes Senator Wheeler's statement as touching "just about the all-time low in the art of demagoguery, and there is not a thing to be said in its defense." And the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL declares "President Roosevelt flatly rebuked Senator Wheeler's remark 'when he called it the rottenest thing that has been said in public life in my generation.'"

The BIRMINGHAM NEWS believes it is perhaps "inevitable that in a great public controversy over a vitally important issue there will be some use of heated language," feeling, however, that the senator had "a very ugly way of stating his argument, and . . . deserved to be rebuked."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

REPORT FROM BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Two influences have startlingly all-out air battle with Germany. The first is the stream of encouraging reports from American observers stationed in Britain, who continue unanimous that German bombing has done surprisingly little damage to productive facilities. The second is the visit to this country of Air Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding. And, of the two, the Dowding visit is more important.

Dowding's nickname is "Stuffy," and his advance notices were far from favorable. Although supremely qualified to speak with authority by his experience as commander of the Hurricane and Spitfire pilots who saved Britain in the frightful six days of September, he was said to be the least promising envoy to America in the entire fighting services of Britain. Now, however, he has begun work with our generals, has met informally with many nonmilitary high officials, and has lectured at the War Department to the top men in the air force. And, although some of our air experts consider him somewhat optimistic, he has both made a good impression and carried conviction.

ASTONISHED BY SUCCESS

Dowding's most dramatic report concerned progress made on the British device for combating night air attacks. The nature and even the effects of the device are closely guarded military secrets, revealed only to the chiefs of our air force, who are adapting it for our use. But those who have all the data in their possession are willing to disclose that the device permits a fighter plane to locate and attack a bomber, even on the darkest nights. Although they say there are still some bugs in it, they confess themselves astonished by Dowding's evidence on the success of the device to date. Furthermore, they see in it strategic significance far beyond the prevention of the big night bombing raids. They even hope it may be used to intercept the Germans' long-range four-engine bombers on their way out over the Atlantic to spot incoming British convoys for the submarine fleet.

American airmen received the news on the little device with mingled relief and satisfaction. It was by no means all that Dowding brought, however. His information has also done much to dispel the notion that the big night bombing raids are totally destructive. In the famous Coventry raid, for instance, he reports that a rifle factory and a plant making the small Siddeley engines for training planes were the only ones seriously damaged, while the city's machine tool shops and the vital Rolls Royce engine factory near by escaped virtually unscathed. Interruption of production by damage to electric power lines and other public utilities rarely lasts more than three or four days, he says. And he insists that, although the rate of increase has naturally been slowed by bombing, British aircraft production is still gaining perceptibly every month.

DECENTRALIZATION

This he attributes to the decentralization system, by which parts of every plane model are subcontracted to hundreds of small shops, subassemblies to scores of slightly larger ones, and even final assemblies are simultaneously carried on in several plants. Because of this, he explains, production can never be really knocked out. Moreover, he states that, despite the best German efforts, only one major final assembly plant, Shorts' big factory at Rochester where the Sunderland flying boats are made, has ever been hit so badly as to be put out of production for a substantial time. Finally, he is extremely encouraging about comparative British and German air strengths. He contends, first, that the Germans used all their air power in the September attack. Many of our experts doubt him, but have difficulty answering his question, "Why should the Germans have held back?" Second, he estimates present British air power as nearly three times greater than four months ago, and without making exaggerated claims, feels confident the Germans have lost some of their former advantage in numbers.

Most of Dowding's story is confirmed by our own observers. For instance, their dispatch showing that the great raid on Southampton did not prevent Spitfire from turning out four or five extra planes that week exactly checks with Dowding's data on Coventry and what he says of the value of decentralization. In short, the only disagreement is over what deductions should be drawn from the agreed facts, and this is not too serious. Even the gloomiest of our airmen—and some of them are virtuosos of gloom—now hesitate to credit the Germans with much chance of victory by unsupported air action.

TO SETTLE CONTROVERSY

This general agreement, and the good impression made by Dowding, have helped him in the negotiations over American air types, which were the primary object of his visit. There is even a hope that the sharpest controversy between our air experts and the British, over the value of our .50-caliber machinegun, will soon be settled. The British, after testing the .50-caliber model exported to them, are convinced that adequate fire power in the air can only be attained by use of cannons or of large numbers of .30-caliber machineguns. Our people are equally certain that an improved .50-caliber model, never sent out of this country until now, can pierce any plane armor almost as easily as a cannon.

Dowding and a delegation of our experts are in Dayton, Ohio, ending the long and often acrimonious argument by the simple method of a careful test. The extremely urgent problem, whether or not to redesign our plane models, hinges on the outcome. And the fact that such problems as this are at last being squarely tackled is another reason for encouragement about the air picture.

The Indignity Of Fear.

I have just read a book. It is titled "Journey Into Fear." And it has left an impression upon my mind and invoked more thought than nine out of ten publications that come my way.

It is the story of an Englishman. An engineer employed by a firm that makes big guns for navies or for armies. An ordinance engineer.

Personally he is just an average fellow, a technician who happens to make an unusually good salary. He is married to an average sort of wife, a woman chiefly interested in her social and club affairs. Their marriage is matter of fact, comfortable. She undoubtedly married him because he has a nice income and she likes her well enough, his domestic life, may be.

But of the hot intensity of overwhelming passion, they never knew anything. He takes it for granted all marriages are like his. A reliable wife, a couple of pleasant children, a good home and nothing to worry about. He is the type of man capable of thinking down to root causes of worrying over the world situation. Just a pleasant, comfortable sort of slug, doing his work well and unconcerned with outside affairs.

Even the war doesn't shake him up appreciably. He just goes on his prosaic way.

Then, To Turkey.

Then, he is sent to Turkey by his firm. To arrange for some new naval guns to bring the Turkish fleet up to date. The guns are to be delivered in the spring. He is ready to start home with his plans and specifications. Some on paper. Some in his head. Because they mustn't fall into enemy hands.

But still the Englishman is his usual phlegmatic, calm, unconcerned self. Until an unwarman shoots at him one night. Of three bullets, only one touches him, a flesh wound on the back of his hand. And he is told, by the Turkish police, that Nazi agents are determined to kill him before he reaches England again. Because by doing so, they will delay, for weeks, the rearming of the Turkish fleet. It is utterly impersonal, cold-blooded. Just a war incident. He has suddenly become a pawn in the war game. The Turks do their best to protect him. Keep him hidden in Istanbul.

On the Ocean In War Time.

I felt something of the same sensation while crossing the Atlantic in 1939, after war had begun. The Athenia had been torpedoed a week before we left Southampton. We were "blackened out." We traveled in zig zags. We took an unknown route. And, deep in our consciousness, all the time, was the knowledge that Nazi U-Boats were at large, somewhere in that waste of water. That they would be delighted to send a torpedo into our vitals. And that the men on the submarines didn't know any of us, didn't know who we were, nor care. That we were merely numerals on a passenger list, and

Future Of Unions

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Never mind whether I advocate such a course. Do you want to know what I think will happen to our labor or union problem by the time we come out of the ether?

Well, it is my idea that the Wagner act will never be amended in any important particular and, of course, never repealed, but that it will just scale off and be forgotten, because by that time we will have our own adaptation of the Nazi and Communist system of handling labor questions. By then so many of the people will be employed directly or indirectly by the government and the right to strike will be abolished. It will be recognized as a fact—which it certainly is—that the strike is a modified form of war and that, of course, people cannot be permitted to make war on their own country.

So there will be arbitration and, probably, concessions to the workers, varying according to the political strength of the administration. But strikes will be out. Moreover, most workers will like this arrangement, because people don't like to strike and will be glad to get rid of that old-fashioned and bossy agitators who jerk them around nowadays.

No Right To Strike

Already, from over on the left, from voices which invariably sing in praise of the Roosevelt government, you can hear discussions of the suspension and eventual abrogation of the right to strike. Mayor LaGuardia, a Socialist in his time and now the political patron of the only representative that the Communists ever had in congress, is against strikes by workers on the municipal transit lines. Sidney Hillman, a man of similar political persuasion, is against strikes on defense projects, and the New Leader, a Social-Democratic paper, says it is not by rigid formalism that rights can be ascertained but by the will of the people, preferably acting through process of law but, when that fails, operating in cruder ways.

In other words, if you strike, well, how would you like some castor oil or how would you like to be transported to a concentration camp up around Danneberg? "Every obstacle to the production of defense of democracy, no matter whether it is labeled 'rights of private property' or 'rights of organized labor,' must be overcome," the New Leader says.

Speaks For Future

Now, of course, I know this paper doesn't speak for the administration, but I would like to bet you something that it speaks for the future and that once the purposes of preparedness and of war it never will be revoked, no matter what happens to Hitler.

The idea that I have is that without ever saying so this government has always been Socialistic in some unforgotten way and that the administration has a sneaking approval of the Nazi and Communist method of handling labor and running industry from a government office.

Of course, what with the expense of running the preparations, and possibly a war, too, and giving Britain what she needs, industry will become nationalized, too. Business will be so deep in hock that the government will just take over, and labor, therefore, will work for Sam, who might be a pretty tough boss, at that. He is a pretty tough boss in some of his services where politicians don't have to meet union conditions or demands and want to make good records for themselves, but no worse than many private employers, and he has no slack seconds.

Might Like Sam As Boss

The workers might like Sam as a boss, but nobody is going to ask whether they like him or not. Nobody is going to ask them whether they want to go to work for him. They will think they are working for private industry, but will suddenly realize one day that Sam owns the industry or runs it with his money.

The contention that government contracts should be withheld from unfair employers can be applied to plants controlled by unfair unions, too. And, of course, over on the left they have long taken it for granted that when the government is the customer the government can dictate the labor conditions. It can revise them up as easily as it can revise them down, too.

Don't ask me for the details. I am better on big, lumpy general ideas. And don't get petulant now because this system, in a general way, is Hitler's and Stalin's.

Fate, as Miss Anita Loos wrote, keeps on happening these days.

they'd send us to death without compunction, utterly impersonally. That is what really caused our nervousness.

"Journey Into Fear." It is a fascinating subject for thought. I imagine helpless civilian populations in Europe, have lost something of the dignity of humanity because of that loss of individuality when the Nazi planes drone overhead, machine-gunning and bombing, "just a horde of refugees." Unimportant cattle, in other words.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

COLONEL CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

America's hero of almost two decades ago, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, was the chief witness before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on yesterday.

He again repeated what he has said twice before in public addresses, that he believes we should not enter the war in Europe. This time, however, he went farther and said that he did not believe our own entry into the war would enable the English to defeat the Germans.

I do not agree with Colonel Lindbergh, because it seems to me that if we get into the war we could ferry over enough planes and pilots and supplies to give control of the air to the Allies. And, also, the addition of our fleet to that of England would improve the blockade. Once control of the air is obtained, as Germany has not yet obtained, or demonstrated it, over England, it would be possible to invade France and then Germany. This would be easier than invading England.

While I do not agree with Mr. Lindbergh, I nevertheless do not become angry about his statements, nor do I think he should be barred from making them. He could be right about it.

He had one new idea in his testimony of yesterday. This was that he hoped neither Germany nor England would win; that a stalemate would result, and that this country would be better off if it kept strictly out of it. He would wish that we encourage peace, presumably by seeking a negotiated peace.

The man who once flew a small plane from New York to Paris to become the great hero of the world, consistently has been an isolationist. He is one today, perhaps the leading one. As such he will be a target of attack. That is all right, too. The important thing is to allow him to be heard.

INTERNAL COLLAPSE

Colonel Lindbergh spoke of the fact there was no sign of internal collapse in Germany. He also said he did not believe England would be invaded unless there was internal collapse in that country.

It is that factor which makes it vital for this country to make up its mind. Obviously, England can't keep going unless she can feed her people and supply her fighters, air and ground and sea. If factories are destroyed, if more and more persons are made homeless, if supplies run short, then England will collapse internally. So, this country must decide whether it will become the great arsenal of democracy or not. And it must decide in a hurry.

If it delays it might the better adopt Colonel Lindbergh's idea of isolation and attempt to negotiate a peace, rather than to wait too long and thus arouse the anger of the British because of our delay, and the hatred of the Germans because we caused it.

There is some objection to the hearings being held. It seems most important the facts be known. The hearings must be held unless, already, we want to retain only the forms of democracy. There is some objection that many of the witnesses merely are confusing the committee. This may be true. But Lindbergh was not one of them. He was easy to understand. He believes we ought to stay out of it. In this he makes himself crystal clear.

NEGOTIATED PEACE

There is going to be increasing pressure for a negotiated peace before winter is done. The fact Germany to date is staying out of Italy in any but the slightest fashion, might become (and this is my surmise) the basis of the deal. Italy might be sold down the river as the basis for a negotiated peace, leaving to Germany the continent and to England her empire and the Mediterranean.

There again congress must make up its mind. The fact Mr. Roosevelt now says he does not believe we will use our Navy to supply supplies is surprising. It means he does not regard English shipping losses as so severe, or he is unwilling to risk the certainty of war by using our own warships as conveying agents.

In the first place, it is useless for us to bend ourselves to this great effort to manufacture supplies for England if she is not to receive them.

In the second place, if we do use our own ships to convey them those ships will be attacked and our official entry into the war will start with that attack.

It is, unfortunately, the merest rhetoric for us to say that England will win because England is right and Germany wrong. Because, unfortunately again, the right does not always win, nor has it always won in the history of the past.

We have got to make up our minds to be willing to go to war or that we will not. If it is the latter, then we must remain neutral. If not, then we must hurry.

If Poison Doesn't Kill the Wolf

He Is Smart Enough To Avoid It Next Time

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When the primitive man has a pain, he thinks some evil spirit is tormenting him or some enemy has wished a hex upon him or one of his capricious gods is mad at him. Our own ancestors had similar ideas.

Modern man, even though ignorant of medical science, has the inestimable advantage of knowing that effect follows cause—always, invariably and inexorably. From beginning to end, in every detail, his life develops in logical sequence as one act causes a certain reaction, which in turn causes another, and so on to the finish.

Thus, whether he does it with deliberate purpose or in innocent ignorance or in lazy indifference, he shapes his own life bit by bit as the mason lays one brick on another to build a skyscraper.

What, then, if he is weak and miserable and joyless when he should be in his prime? If he was born with normal equipment, and if he has no organic trouble or incurable disease, he is as he is because he prefers being that way—because he had rather avoid self-discipline and follow every whim or idle impulse and weakly indulge himself, thus keeping himself in misery and shortening his life many years, than to take the trouble to be well and fit. Stated plainly, it seems incredibly foolish, since so much is lost and nothing gained, yet it is altogether true. We do make ourselves what we are.

What, then, can he do to be saved? He knows the simple rules—fresh air, sunshine, exercise, sleep, pure water, plain food. But these are generalities, and he needs specific rules. Men in prison have grown strong; men in the Arctic have lived on meat alone and kept perfect health; men have obeyed all the rules and yet failed to feel good.

The right way is the scientific way of trial and error. Man has the gift of reason. If he eats onions and has indigestion, he knows the cause of his misery.

A sick lady of 50 rebuilt her health and kept it for 30 years merely by keeping a record of every reaction and then limiting herself to the food and behavior that had no ill effect.

It isn't natural to feel bad. Perfect health is natural. There is a cause for every woe, and any person of good sense can find the cause and avoid it. Only man punishes his stomach to tickle his palate.

Standardized Nation—Which Isn't Bad, But There Are Breaks

America, our critics complain, is becoming horribly standardized.

True. No matter what city you visit you find the same chain groceries, the same chain filling stations, the same five-and-tens, the same cigar stores.

As an occasional writer of so-called literature—which, I suppose, I should be awfully sore about that, I suppose. But I'm not.

Because, with the big chains, you know what you're getting—and you usually get it.

I like to know, when traveling, that I can count on getting something I know about at a price—and usually a fair price—that is about the same as in my home town. And know I won't be gyped.

But not all business is systematized and standardized and regimented.

There's something no corporation head ever has been able to standardize—or control or put into a card index system.

Personality.

I don't do much shopping around. But I'll walk a block out of my way to buy cigarettes at a certain chain drugstore because I like the sunny smile of the girl behind the counter. I'll pass up one on my way—belonging to the same chain—because the old person who dishes them out is a crab.

"Mr. Jones"

The Mistress of the Manor does her grocery shopping once a week—on payday. She makes out her list and goes on a spree—of canned goods and vegetables and meats and whatever she thinks I might like.

But does she buy from the United and Amalgamated and International Food Purveyors? She does not. That may be the sign over the door. But she buys her groceries from Mr. Jones, at the general counter, and Mr. Smith, in charge of meats, sausages and bones for the dog. If Mr. Jones or Mr. Smith is transferred to another store, she follows him unless it's too far away.

I have a favorite hotel in Georgia. It is not the worst hotel in its town but next to a flophouse it's pretty bad.

There is never any hot water when you want it and the steam radiators don't work well and the room telephone is often out of order—but I like the darn joint.

Why? I don't know. Probably because I know the boss and the boss knows me and he isn't too busy to swap a yarn. His rates are the same as the hotel two blocks up the street, where everything is as new and efficient as a Jefferson nickel.

But I don't know the boss at the 100-per-cent-efficient new place. And he doesn't know me. He doesn't want to know me. To him—or his desk clerk—I am Room 427. And I don't like just being Room 427.

Georgia's '7th Wonder'

"Juno, Emma and Johtown have 'come to town,'" writes Albert S. Hardy in his Gainesville News.

He is writing of three little towns in the upper end of Dawson county, between Dawsonville and Americola Falls.

I know them, for several times I have slid and skidded over that dirt road in an effort to reach the falls—or a place in sight of them.

Mr. Hardy explains that he means Juno, Emma and Johtown are accessible now, in all weathers. Now there is a "black-topped, hard-surfaced road to them.

State Insurance Men Organize 'Round Table'

60 Underwriters Named to Membership by New Group.

Sixty members of the Georgia Life Underwriters' Association were elected to the new Georgia Leaders' Round Table, organized yesterday at the annual sales meeting of the state association here. Membership for the round table, formed to encourage quality in life insurance production, is based on the volume of business handled by agents throughout the state.

David J. Marx Jr., of the Atlanta office of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, was named chairman. Other officers are: George Mathews, New York Life, Columbus, Ga., vice president, and Charles G. Bethea, Penn Mutual Life, Atlanta, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Thomas H. Daniel Jr., Union Central Life, Atlanta; Luther H. Guest, Connecticut Mutual, Atlanta; Herbert C. Lorick, Prudential, Augusta; M. Oliver Nix, Pacific Mutual, Atlanta, and George M. Venable, Northwestern Mutual, LaGrange.

On the sales conference program was William H. Andrews Jr., of the home office agency of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, N. C., who spoke on "Success Has Its Price"; J. Roger Hull, Mutual Life Insurance Company, New York, on "Facing the Future," and A. R. Jaqua, associate editor of the Diamond Life Bulletins, of Cincinnati, on "The Empty Desk." The speakers stressed the importance of democracy and declared that security and life insurance could not exist under a dictatorship. New methods of salesmanship were also discussed.

At the luncheon the underwriters weren't finished all the way to the falls but it soon will be. All of us have some kind of hobby or "bug." One of mine has been trying to get a road built to Americola listed in the books as one of Georgia's seven "wonders." It has always been virtually inaccessible.

From what I read in the papers there are—or will be—two good roads now. The road Mr. Hardy discusses leads, I think, to the foot of the falls or close by. The other, which joins Route 9 between Dawsonville and Dahlonega, leads to a point near the top.

When these roads are completed and spring makes driving a pleasure Americola should become a favorite resort of Atlantans. It isn't more than 65 miles away.

Box-Office Gene

Motion Picture Herald's annual rating of movie stars as box office pullers in rank: Gene Autry fourth in the "top 10."

Well, I cannot point to myself with pride on that. I reviewed movies for seven or eight years—and I have yet to get a glimpse of Autry. Which might humiliate him terribly if he were to discover it.

Cowboy films have rarely been "first runs" at uptown theaters in the larger cities. But how they do pack 'em in in the smaller towns! Especially on Saturday afternoons.

Which reminds me. Anonymous postcard asks why I so often mention things which I confess I don't know anything about instead of things I do know something about.

Even an anonymous postcard writer should know the answer to that one. The field of things I know nothing about is so much larger. For instance, I don't know why a person writes a wholly inoffensive letter to a newspaperman and is ashamed to sign it.

Good Morning

By Dr. Louie D. Newton.

"My ambassador," as President Roosevelt dubbed Joseph Kennedy in those hectic days immediately preceding the election, hurrying him home from London to make campaign speeches, has contributed more confusion to our public state of mind than anyone else, perhaps. And that is saying a plenty.

I have tried to read what Mr. Kennedy said in his radio speech, and in his testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and to save my life I can't tell what he is driving at. He is quoted as saying very definitely one thing in one breath, and apparently contradicting his position in the very next breath. I guess it is my inability to understand the laws of relativity, or something.

And then the President comes along with one of his typical comments to the effect that certain objections raised to the lease-lend bill are to be regarded as "cow-jump-over-the-moon stuff"—old Mother Hubbard." Last No-

Roosevelt Aide To Visit China For Survey

Move Is Parallel to Harry Hopkins' Mission to England.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—In a parallel move to Harry Hopkins' special mission to England, it was announced today that Laughlin Currie, administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, would visit China soon to make an economic survey. Apparently he is to help determine what aid that country should receive in the pending lease-lend bill is passed. Emphasizing the administration's interest alike in Chinese and British resistance to Germany, Italy and Japan, Currie will go to Chungking at the invitation of the Chinese government and will bear a special message of greeting to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Known as President Roosevelt's personal economic advisor, Currie, 38 years old but with an extensive background in economics, will be accompanied by Emile Destres, senior economist of the federal reserve board. Currie is expected to make an intensive study of China's whole economic structure to determine the most effective means of helping that country in an economic and financial way.

As a close adviser to the President, however, he is expected also to study China's war needs generally and the strength of Chinese resistance to Japan, much the same thing that Hopkins is believed to be doing in Great Britain.

Ile de France Is Being Made Into Troop Ship

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—The 40,000-ton French luxury liner Ile de France is being converted into a troop or supply ship in Singapore under the direction of British authorities, members of the crew of the American freighter Steel Traveler reported today.

They said that when the Steel Traveler, which arrived here today, tied up beside the French liner at Singapore several weeks ago, workmen were hurriedly outfitting the ship for transport purposes.

The vessel last was heard from in Saigon, French Indo China.

The American vessel brought in a cargo of tin and rubber.

Exams To Decide Hospital Personnel

Because the new Army general hospital now under construction at Camp Gordon will soon require a large staff of employees, the United States Civil Service Commission yesterday announced competitive examinations for the hospital personnel, for which applications will be received in Atlanta up until February 20.

The jobs open for examination are meat cutter, cook and baker, all paying $1,080 to $1,500 a year; plumber, $1,680; hospital attendant, $780 to $1,080, and mess attendant, $720 to $1,080 per year. The commission will also examine locomotive engineers for the position of locomotive engineer, paying $1,860 a year. Last day for applications for examination is February 20.

Applications close on February 12 for the position of foreman, card grinder, at the Federal Penitentiary, paying $1,680 per year. Application blanks and information may be had at the New Post Office Building.

WELL, DIDN'T WALLACE PAUSE, REFRESH IN IOWA?

Editor, Constitution: I saw a picture of Governor Talmadge taken in Washington city along with Vice President Wallace during the Governor's visit up there for the inauguration.

The thing that struck me was that in the summer of 1938, when Talmadge was a candidate for the senate, he shouted all over the state that he was going to send Henry Wallace back to Iowa for a long, long rest. Since Talmadge keeps his promises I just wonder how he came out or will come out on this.

EXPLAINS WHY NAILS ARE SIZED BY "PENNY"

Editor, Constitution: Mr. Malcolm White, Commerce, Ga., wants to know why the word penny is used to describe nails. The latest information on the subject is as follows:

four penny and ten penny nail sold, respectively, for four pence and ten penny nails for ten pence per hundred. According to the second explanation 4 d. and 10 d. applied to nails, 1,000 of which weighed four pounds and ten pounds, respectively.

The abbreviation "d." which now means penny, was in earlier times used for pound.

Thus penny as applied to nail refer to the size and also the weight. A 2 d. nail is 1 inch long and there are 876 nails in on pound, and 6 d. is two inches long and there are 181 nails to the pound, and others in proportion. This applies to common wire nails. I trust this explanation will prove satisfactory to Mr. White and others who may be interested.

A Story of the American White-Collar Girl

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

The last thing I felt like it was starting conversations, but the steward thinks that's a good idea and brings it to me on a tray. And Dr. Marcus Eisen, that being who it was in person, didn't make any attempt to carry through. He went off, downstairs and got his own lunch and when he came up again I was asleep. By evening I felt better and even got into the diner. I found him at the same table with me. I just supposed maybe the seating was arranged according as the chairs were on deck. Well of course when my wits got sorted out I realized he had fixed it with the maître d'hôtel.

We were staying different places when we got to Bermuda and I was having fun with another crowd so I didn't see much of him. I ran into him one day over at Elbow Beach, tanned as brown as coffee, with a bunch of the G-string girls. He took me dancing on the hotel terrace one night, he's a good dancer too though he was crowned a bit more than is comfortable in Bermuda August. There's a terrace right alongside the water and the colored boatmen drift their little sailing boats up to the edge like butterflies in the moonlight. We went for a sail in the harbor, but I had to explain to him that I had to starve one fever successfully and I had no intention to start up another. He was a bit piqued. Of course Mark, successful and bright the way he is, can always get as many of his own kind as he'd care to whistle at. I was someone outside his routine and I had him puzzled. They certainly do like to know all about everything, and he'd lead up questions to try to get me placed. The most I would tell him was I came from Philly, and he'd say: Well, it's only two hours away. I think he believed I was some kind of a trained nurse that hadn't had the advantages of a New York or John Hopkins training. If he'd known I was getting ready to move into my own apartment on Riverside he'd have had the number one out of me after two Aquarium cocktails. I had to smile when he told me how he'd moved his Mother down to West End avenue, which was their idea of Seventh Heaven. I liked the way he talked about her. That Jewish feeling about old people is all to be good. They're wonderful to children and old folks, they can be pretty tough with everybody in between.

He told me a lot about infantile paralysis, how it usually moves from south to north and comes in a kind of annual epidemic, mostly late summer and early autumn. Matter of fact he said he was taking this vacation to get good and tough for an extra number of cases when he got back. That was why he always stopped after the third snort, and I liked that in him. With a crowd he could get to be a pain in the neck, he was so damn full of high spirits, but get him by himself talking about the children and you forget that alligator belt with his initials M. E. on a gold buckle. He had an inferiority hidden away inside him that must have taken a hundred generations to build up, but there wasn't any inferiority when he picked up a microscope or a sick kid. We took a picnic to one of those islands where there's an old prison and the cockroaches spring at you as big as mice. Mark was so excited about them he couldn't believe it, he caught one in an olive bottle and took it back to his hotel and dissected it up with a razor blade to see what it was all about.

I knew in a way that I was going to see him again because he could teach me a lot, but I thought it was good for his soul to stall a while and I wouldn't give him any address. What's furthermore I thought likely I'd run into him somewhere along the kosher belt on upper Broadway. He gave me his card. "Any time you get paralyzed," he said, "call me up."

What I liked, he had something to work for that was worth it. I think of that when I go down to visit Mac and Martha and see little Kitty sprawled out asleep in bed. What's wonderful is to have something besides yourself. Maybe these white collar girls, business sharecroppers Molly calls us, who've been through it and learned what to do without, wouldn't

SYNOPSIS. This is the story of Kitty Foyle, the all-American white collar girl. She is telling it to herself, musing, as most of us do sometimes, as it is all very confidential. When she was 10 she looked back over her 28 years she realizes that she has lived the last 10 of it lived her lifetime. When all the years before she had been preparing for the last 10. From her Pennsylvania Dutch mother came her stubborn courage, from her Irish father came her humor, her sentiment and her dream. Dear old "Pop" with his whiskey, his rheumatism and his "kick" it was Pop who had really taught her what it was all about and he had taught Wyn crickets for him. Pop and his crickets Wyn had come along and all that love could mean. But now Kitty is a spinster with her Aunt and Uncle. Her horizons are wider, but somehow the folks are narrower than Pop, even to a small girl just beginning to grow up. However, she and Molly, her pal, are making the best of this painful process. But now Kitty, after attending school in the Midwest, from the home of her Aunt and Uncle, is back home in Philly for her vacation. She and Molly are at the shore. Kitty is back in the Midwest preparing to go to Prairie College, where she went to high school from the home of her Aunt and Uncle. But Pop has had a stroke and that cuts Kitty's college down to 10 days. Just now Kitty is starting in as Wyn's secretary. She started out doing some typing for him and became more than a secretary. It hadn't been for his family they would probably have been just like other couples but the "Main Line" blue blood and the Foyle strain just didn't seem to mesh. At least not in Philly. After Pop passed on Kitty decided to take a job with Delphine, a New York cosmeticsician. AND NOW KITTY FOYLE TALKING.

make such bad wives after all. Learning to do without things is the only weapon we got. It was a long time till I saw Mark again. To be honest I guess I forgot his existence except for a snapshot someone took on that boat, his shoes showed up strong. I had plenty to think about. After Pearl Velour left, and Delphine not in such good health, I found myself practically running the office. It began to look as though anyone in the cosmetic business had no private life at all. With the Government thinking up new kinds of regulation all the while, and distribution costs shooting up, it was a good idea to have your nails enamelled so you wouldn't bite them in your sleep. Delphine said "Keety, by what it appears, the Government does not wish its ladies to be beautiful. What do the wives of the Treasury Department look like? Are they all homey? You better call Soap and Glycerine Producers, see if they make progress on that excise tax repeal. As a matter of fact all that federal regulation was maybe a good thing, it will help to crack down on some of the competitors that don't pay what we do for pure chemistry and use all sorts of synthetic allergies. What hurts Delphine is when they want us to label quantities in fractions of pints instead of ounces or drams.

She says pints is a word that's got no glamour, it suggests only milk or hootch or house paint. To anyone that was brought up with Pop, drams suggests hootch too, but on our billing we always spelled it drachms.

Mr. Detaille didn't have so much time for swinging Indian clubs, he was busy reckoning figures. It was certainly a wallop when he worked it out that our distribution costs were 72 per cent of factory value and nearly 50 per cent of retail value. Cost of production was about 66 per cent of factory value, not even reckoning Mr. Detaille's breakage with clubswinging. There's not much margin there. Delphine went to Washington once and a while to talk things over with some official at the treasury, she always wore the Olympia for those visits, but that man must have had hay fever, it didn't seem to do any good. She came back very depressed. "Keety, I didn't take much time for lunch, and sometimes to get away from perfumery I'd stop in at a quick eat on Sixth avenue and read the paper while I had a sandwich. Everybody there looked so hard-run it cheered me up. I didn't take much time for lunch, and sometimes to get away from perfumery I'd stop in at a quick eat on Sixth avenue and read the paper while I had a sandwich. Everybody there looked so hard-run it cheered me up. I didn't take much time for lunch, and sometimes to get away from perfumery I'd stop in at a quick eat on Sixth avenue and read the paper while I had a sandwich. Everybody there looked so hard-run it cheered me up.

I noticed it was because all the men ate with their hats on. The chewing made their hats ride up and down, you would almost feel seasick if you watched it too long. One day I see a brown plush fedora that demands attention and sure enough it's Mark Eisen. He was so pleased and respectful, and I was feeling solitary, I couldn't very well avoid him walking back as far as the office with me. It seemed to give him a great kick when he learned what line I was in. "And I thought all the time you were taking people's temperatures in Philadelphia." After that may phone bell began to ring on Riverside. Reminds me of the call I got from his nice old mother. She rang up, said Mark talked so much of me and wouldn't I come to their apartment Saturday afternoon, they were going to have bar mitzvah for Mark's kid brother. I said sure; I supposed that was something to eat. Then I found it was a confirmation ceremony and made me practically a member of the family. They'd been making a man out of Hillel because he was 13 or something. We had schnapps and sponge cake and I guess what the kid had been through brought out the family excitement, anyway he got sort of fresh before long and wanted to keep on making speech about his maturity and Mark got peeved. They certainly take their religion seriously. I like that, though Mark gets comical about it once and a while, he has a line he pulls when he's had a good snort. "Wherefore on this night rather than all other nights do we lean back in our chairs and relax." It's a quotation from Pass-over.

It seems funny I pick up so many little bits of other people's religions and don't get hold of one of my own. When I go over to Amsterdam to do my marketing there's a little tobacco and a newsdealer, they've got a youngster about three years old, a cunning boy in a sun suit plays out on the pavement. He's got that lovely golden skin and United Cigar Store eyes, the Jewish hasn't come out on his features yet but you can see it there ready for when it'll be needed. It's fun to think about things without taking sides and I always say to myself, That kid's my candidate for the year 2000.

What every Soldier and his Family should Know.

by CAPT. GENE MORGEN.

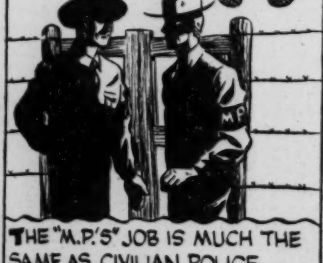

"Will there be racial discrimination in housing of draftees?" As a southerner I am anxious to know whether the "Jim Crow" laws of my section of the country will be respected?"

"Jim Crow" laws will not apply in the United States Army. White and Negro soldiers will be separately regimented, but they will be on the same standing as regards rate of pay and quality of equipment, housing, food, medical care and recreational opportunities. Negro regiments of the National Guard are officered mainly by their own color. Regular Army units composed of colored enlisted men have white officers, with the exception of chaplains, who have the rank of captain.

In the World War an officers' training camp for Negro soldiers was established. It is considered likely that a similar opportunity may be offered later on. "I am an occupational specialist in a industry that is vital to national defense. Instead of taking deferred status, can I serve for a year in a branch of the Army in which my knowledge will be useful?"

If in the opinion of your local board you can be spared from your job in civil life with due regard to the national interests, you may request induction in advance of the time when you might normally expect to be called. Once inducted you have no choice in the branch to which you will be assigned. However, in view of the Army's intention to "put the right peg in the right hole," there is a good prospect that, through the answers given in your questionnaire and interviews by personnel officers, you would be assigned to a place where your knowledge and skill would be useful.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 23rd and April 19th (ARIES)—The entire day with the possible exception of between 1:43 p. m. and 3:38 p. m. holds excellent influences, favoring correspondence, contacts with others, unusual pursuits. The period between 1:43 p. m. and 3:38 p. m. suggests caution in dealings with the opposite sex and matters of adornment.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The entire day with the possible exception of between 1:43 p. m. and 3:38 p. m. holds excellent influences, favoring correspondence, contacts with others, unusual pursuits. The period between 1:43 p. m. and 3:38 p. m. suggests caution in dealings with the opposite sex and matters of adornment.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—An excellent day for matters pertaining to the general public, writing professional people and politics. So, excellent results should be attained today. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:30 p. m.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Before 10:31 a. m. favors travel, quick decisions and changes. After 10:31 a. m. favors general business interests and for making harmonious arrangements with others.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The entire day favors social matters, partnership affairs, financial interests, dealings with the opposite sex, with the best aspects operating after 9:12 a. m.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The period previous to 2:07 p. m. does not appear to be conducive to pleasant contacts and is likely to bring a feeling of tension, which can result in irritations and disagreements. Be especially careful of any new proposition offered you today and at all times any tendency towards extravagance.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—An auspicious day to improve conditions around you and to undertake work of a constructive nature. The entire day favors general business activities, buying and selling, social and domestic interests.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The tendency will be to hurry through things, to answer too quickly and possibly too short. Guard against this tendency, else there may be much regret later. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 4:03 p. m.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Good results should be derived from new beginnings today. Promises, interviews, communications, travel, financial interests, should be surrounded with much optimism and favor.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The morning hours and until 10:55 a. m. are excellent for obtaining co-operation from others. Keenness and alertness will be noticed in your dealings and a general attitude of harmony surrounds your transactions. After 12:40 noon be careful of undue aggression.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—From 5:06 p. m. favors routine affairs in your life, but suggests caution in secretive ideas, around liquids, water and chemicals. The remainder of the day is auspicious for making progress in those things that will advance your standing with people and for those things that are matured slowly.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—An excellent day for dealing with matters pertaining to the general public, professional and literary people. Some excellent results should be attained today. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:30 p. m.

VARIETY—Two of the most versatile comedians of Hollywood and Broadway, Milton Berle and Charlotte Greenwood, will share co-starring honors in a radio adaptation of "Tall, Dark and Handsome," tonight on Kate Smith's program to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock.

The play, a screen version which soon will be released to the nation's theater goers, is a satire on Chicago's boom-boom days—that period of the 20's when prohibition, mobs and gun molls were mixed up with gin and Tommy-guns.

Among the songs Kate will sing are "Stone's Throw from Heaven," and "I Do, Do You?"

CONCERT—Brahms' "Cradle Song" will be Soprano Lucille Manners' featured solo during the Friday Concert program to be heard over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight.

The choir will be featured in "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," and Dr. Frank Black will conduct the orchestra in works by Godard and Wagner.

The program includes: Toros from "La Folia" Suite (orchestra) by Lacombe.
Gavotte from "Manon" (Miss Manners) by Massenet.
Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes (choir).
Big Bass Viol (Mr. Graham) by Bohannon.
In the Village, from "Scenes Poétiques" (orchestra) by Godard.
Cradle Song (Miss Manners) by Brahms.
Flourish Chorus from "Tannhauser" (ensemble) by Wagner.

PLAYHOUSE—Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy," the stirring story of a prizefighter-violinist, torn between his love for music and a craze for money and power, will be presented by the "Playhouse" over WGST tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Sylvia Sydney, able stage and screen actress, will portray the difficult role of "Lorna." Luther Adler will enact the leading male role.

"Golden Boy" enjoyed a brilliant run of 250 performances on Broadway and won national praise as a film.

DRAMA—When a husband quits a secure job in civilian life to take up the hazardous duties of a test pilot, should he heed the protests of his wife, who fears for his safety? This is the absorbing problem for the weekly drama, "I Want a Divorce," starring Joan Blondell, to be presented over WATL at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

OBOLER—Bette Davis, Motion Picture Academy Award winner, will be starred in Arch Oboler's radio adaptation of the motion picture and novel, "Of Human Bondage," on Everyman's Theater, over WSB tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

TWO JOIN NAVY.
LEXINGTON, Ga., Jan. 23.—Billy Findley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Findley, and Hugh Tiller, son of Mrs. George B. Tiller, enlisted and were accepted for training in the United States navy this week. They were sent to Norfolk, Virginia.

British Author Wins Friends For Her Nation

Jan Struther, Creator of Mrs. Miniver, Here for Lecture.

By HAROLD MARTIN.
If England had a few more people like Jan Struther they could send over here to wander around talking to people they wouldn't have any worries about how much help we would send them and how soon we could get it over there.

Anybody who meets and talks with the diminutive author of that British and American best seller, "Mrs. Miniver," at once begins to feel that we can't stand for people as nice as she is to be worried by a crazy little man with a moustache and his fleets of bombing planes.

It's hard to explain what she has but it seems to be in the main, just friendliness, and a sort of casual ease of manner so different from that of the usual Englishman or Englishwoman who comes over here to talk to us from lecture platforms. It is easy to feel that one person like Miss Struther can do more good for England than a boatload of lords in Homburg hats and little clipped moustaches.

Stress On Differences.
"There has been too much stress on the differences between the two countries," says Miss Struther, who arrived here yesterday afternoon for her lecture at Agnes Scott last night. "Too much of this business about 'You can't get a decent cup of tea in America,' on our part, and too much 'But, my dear, they don't even have running ice water in the London hotels.' Those things don't matter."

Not that Miss Struther feels that she is over here to do a propaganda job. She came over, she says, because she has no knack for growing potatoes, and is too light to carry a stretcher.

Her husband—a Mr. Somebody-or-other-Graham, one of those hyphenated English names—is in the Army, and her 16-year-old son is still in England. Her husband, she understands, was in London the night of the big fire, and though, she hasn't heard from him since, she seems to assume that he came through all right.

Her Pen Name.
Jan Struther, of course, is her pen name, an elision of her maiden name, Joyce Anstruther. Only one thing about her visit here perturbs her. She's to have luncheon with Margaret Mitchell today and she hasn't read "Gone With the Wind."

"I suppose I'd better just make a clean breast of it," she said, and seemed pleased to learn that Miss Mitchell inscribes upon a roll of honor the names of those who have not read her book.

Search for Plane Still Unsuccessful

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—(P)—Coast guardsmen today continued without success their search for a light airplane that disappeared Monday with two aboard during a flight from Havana to Key West. Lieutenant K. P. Maley, base commandant, who is directing the air and water search, said planes had patrolled more than 49,000 square miles of territory and covered "all the likely and unlikely territory," and that flights over the "likely territory" would be repeated.

The two men aboard the missing plane are John L. Morris Jr., 15, of Miami, and Dr. Grady W. Eason, of LaGrange, Ga., dental surgeon.

George, Russell Sponsor Bill To Pay Damages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Senators George and Russell, of Georgia, and Andrews and Pepper, of Florida, today introduced a measure calling for payment of $25,000 each to Frank P. Walden, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Viola Harp, of Silverton, Ga., to settle claims arising out of a collision between Walden's automobile and a Civilian Conservation Corps truck near Callahan, Fla.

DEFENSE TRAINING.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Jan. 23.—A national defense shop course will open at Spalding High school Monday night, offering instruction in operation, care and repair of automobiles, trucks and tractors. The course will be taught five nights weekly, from Monday through Friday for eight to 10 weeks.

HOSPITALIZATION PLAN.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 23.—The city commissioners of Phenix City have taken steps to acquire the town's hospital, known as the Community hospital, and plan to finance it either by mutual consent to 35-cents-a-week levy on every household in Phenix City, or by taxation. Those paying the 35 cents weekly would be entitled to free hospitalization.

TEACHER INSTRUCTION.

DALTON, Ga., Jan. 23.—A joint meeting of teachers of the city of Dalton and Whitfield county will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the Dalton High school auditorium to receive special instruction work in the conducting of classes. Dr. Rachel Sutton, Professor J. D. Salter and Miss Julia Teasley, of the University of Georgia System, will conduct course
